Agreeably to notice given, the Convention of the Democratic Republican delegates of Anne-Arundel county re-assembled at Ellicott's Mills on Saturday, the 10th of August, 1839, when the meeting was organized by appointing AB-NER LINTHICUM, Esq. Chairman, and Bex-

The object of the call being briefly stated, on motion the following resolutions were adopted.
Resolved, That this meeting do now proceed to select a suitable person to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Dr. Ri-CHAED HEWITT, a candidate recently nomina. ted for the Legislature, and that Dr. ZACHA-RIAH MERRIKEN be unanimously recommended to the voters of the county for that

On motion, Resolved. That the Delegation of the First Election District have power, and they are hereby requested to convene in their own district, and select as early as practicable a proper and suitable candidate to fill the va cancy occasioned by the declension of Doctor JAMES OWENS, lately a candidate for the Legis. Humphreys,

On motion, Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the Chairman and Secretary, and published in the Democratic papers in Annapolis and Baltarote.

ABNER LINTHICEM, Chairman.

In pursuance of the scond resolution the delegates from the Prist District are requested to meet on STURDAY NEXT, at 11 o'clock, A.M. or the Lancastrian SCHOOL HOUSE, little or no disturbance, thanks to the little or no disturbance. to supply the remaining vacancy on the Delegate Ticket.

A coloured man by the name of Samuel Benedict, at Monrovia, in Liberta, (Africa) is an honour to his race, and his example will do much for colonization. He was a slave in Sa. vannah, but his excellent qualities marked him as above his race. He is self-taught, has esta-blished a settlement, founded a lyccum, and is planting sugar and coffee with great success. He writes out for Law Books of our country. as he does not altogether approve of adhering too religiously to Blackstone and English laws.

TEXAS.

The last news from Texas is full of interest. Just emerging as it were into life, and recover ing from the effects of the sanguinary conflict in which she was engaged to secure her inde pendence, she finds herself threatened and attacked by powerful tribes of Indians, both on the north and west, and by the Mexicans en the south. If this system of warfare is carried on, her little army, composed, we should judge, of as brave men as ever shouldered a muske will not be able to withstand all the attacks from the different quarters. The most natural enemy of the Republic, Mexico, by itself could make no impression upon her, nor could the Mexicans possibly do much, even if they were assisted by the natural enemies of the "pale faces" who reside within her western limits, but the inroads of the tribes from the north located within the territory of the United States will be a greater source of annoyance than any she has heretofore had to encounter. What is the duty of the Government of the United States in the present position of affairs. We learn that the Cherokees, a tribe removed by the United States Government from one portion of their territory to another, headed by a brave and influential Chief, have actually invaded the territory of Texas, a neighbouring nation, and made war upon her citizens. Is it proper that this government should allow such invasion, and should it not use its authority to prevent it? It is clear to us that the United States is as much bound to prevent such an invasion as her a loaded pistol, and instructed her to go out it would be to prevent an invasion of Canada and present the money to one of the robbers When a horde of savages have been crowded upon our frontier, and bordering upon other nations, they should be kept in submission, and not allowed to violate an adjacent territory. The question is one of interest and should engage th tion of the government without loss of time. [Balt. Chron.

The following singular event is related in the Jackson (La.) Republican of the 27th July: STRANGE OCCURRENCE.

Amongst the apparently endless catalogue of strange occurrences and crimes with which the press has teemed, the following, which has been communicated in a letter from a lady residing personally acquainted with the writer of the letter, we have no hesitation in expressing our belief of her statements. Here is the strange tragic tale.

Some time since the sheriff of a county in the southern part of Mississippi had received, in his official character, a large sum of money -say fifteen or twenty thousand dollars. Under pretext of a call from home for a day or two, he placed the money in the keeping of his wife, whom he charged to take good care of it.

Late in the evening of the day on which he lest home, a stranger of genteel appearance called at the house, and asked permission to remain over night. Disliking to entertain a stranger during her husband's absence, the wife of the sheriff denied the request, and the stranger rode on. Directly after his departure, however, the lady came to the conclusion that she had done wrong in refusing to take him in, and sent a servant to recall him. The gentleman returned, and soon after retired to rest.

Late in the night, three men disguised as negroes, came to the house, called up the ladv. and demanded possession of the money left in her charge. Believing that there was no help for it, she at length told them that the money was in another room, and that she would go and get it for them.

It so happened that the money had been deposited in the room occupied by the stranger; and on her going for it she found him up and loading his piztols. He had been awakened by the noise, and had overheard most of the con-

Telling the lady to be of good heart he gave and to shoot the fellow whilst in the act of doing so—on her doing which he (the stranger) would be ready for the other two.

With a coolness and courage that it is difficult to conceive of in a woman, she did as directed, and the robber who received the money fell dead at her feet. Another instant and the stranger's bullet had floored a second robber. The third attempted to escape, but was overtaken at the gate by the stranger, and fell under the thrust of his knife!

As soon as practicable the neighbours were lady proved to be her own husband, and the o-

Such is the story in substance. As before stated, it comes in a letter from a lady whose credibility we are willing to vouch. If error existed in the statement, either the writer of the letter was misinformed or we have been most egregiously hoaxed.

From the Arkansas Gazette, July 17. WASHINGTON COUNTY MURDER. We gather the following particulars of this atrocious homicide from a letter from Washingon county, published in the Batesville News of the 4th inst.

Little Morris, O'Reilly, Polladore E. after satisfying himself that the murderers were gone, moved from his hiding place, and com-menced with astonishing intelligence to rescue all from the ruins of the rapidly advancing flames. He ran and twoke his little sisters, and hurried them out of the burning dwelling-re turned, and found his wounded brother restored to consciousness. His feeble strength being unequal to his weight, Morris threw his arms around the shoulders of his almost murdered brother, and tenderly drew him beyond the insance of the increasing fire-returned, caught up the infant, but finding it lifeless, gently laid it down a few paces from the door, on the breast of the father. He then essayed to return for the lifeless bodies of the others, but the fire now lasing wrapped the door in flames, forbid his entrance. Seeing his angel like purpose thwarted, he, with his little sisters and brother, sught such a resting place as a houseless farm and clear sky afforded.
