PARALYTIC RHEUMATISM.— A perfect cure effected by the treatment of Dr. W. E. eas. Mr. John Gibson, of North Fourth street, Williamburgh, afflicted with the above complaint for three jears and nine months; during which time he had to use crutches. His chief symptoms were excruciating pain in all his joints, but especially in the hip, shoulder, haces and ankles; an aggrevation of the pain towards night; and for the most part all times from the enternal heat, un obvious thickening of the fascia and igaments, with a complete loss of muscular power.—For the benefit of those afflicted in a similar manner, Mr. Gibson conceives it meet to say that the pains have satirally cassed, and that his joints have completely recovered their natural tone, and he feels able to resume his estimary business.

Dear Sir—Had the immertal Cowper known the medical qualities of the Camonalle Plant, he as well as thousands since (hosides mynelf,) would have experienced its wonderful effects on the nervous system. The public utility of Cowper was highted in the bad, throthe natural effect of his nervous abelity upon the mental powers, which made it necessary for hun to seek relief beneath the rural shade, but the calm retreat gave the absorbed nature me repose. If some one then had his physical sature no repose. If some one then he known the secret of concentrating the medical virtee of Camonile, the discoverer would have been immed-talized with poetic zeal as the benefactor of sufferin

THE DYING STUDENT.

Yes, I must die! I know the hectic blush Upon my check talls of my life's decay, As truly as the lingering twilights flush Upon the sky tells of the death of day. The shadows of long night reel through my brain, And visions of the spirit-land are there :-The sluggish blood is curdling in each voin, And bids me for the life to come prepare.

My languid pulse proclaims that life's dull tide Is obbing fast towards that shoreless sea On which my spirit, bark-like, soon shell ride, In hope and strange expectancy most free. Why do I shudder at the thrilling doom? Why is my mind at times so tempest tost? Why should the spirit fear the grave's deep gloom,

Or dread the wonders of the heavenly host? Oh, it is hard that one so young as I -Should say to earth and all its scenes, adicu! For the last time should look upon the sky, And watch the stars fade slowly out of view. These eyes no more at daylight's closing boar Shall see the moon rise brightly from the sea, Nor shall my steps again press to the bewer Where I vowed love and deathless constancy!

Fair girl, my Mary! Mistress of my soul!
My heart is breaking while it clings to thee; I feel, while sinking, that thy sweet control Could make this world a paradise for me. But oh, my lovo! my lip is ashy pale,
And, like a sick bird, thought is fluttering low Yet, till the cloud shall o'er my heart prevail,

To thee its current ceaseless still shall flow. Long have I struggled in the lists of fame, And decked my brow to wear the laurels shade, And now, when men begin to lisp my name, The night comes on and glories from me fade. In vain, most vain, at midnight's solemn hour I've bidden spirits from the mighty deep, And felt, with pride, my own exhaustless power, Wide o'er mind's realms, soar with an eagle's sweep

Oh, for one day upon the mountain's erest,-Oh, for one night beneath the jeweled sky,— Oh, for one hour where I have been most blest, With my heart's love and her wild minstrelsy! Vain is each wish-these shattered nerves, this clay Shrink from the thought on which I wish to dwell Night gathers o'er my mind, and I can say Bet one word more, and that one word, farewell!

Thus spake the student, as life's fitful gleams, Like an expiring taper, rayed death's night— Still clinging to the hopes and cherished dreams Which on his heart had shed a blissful light. He passed away, and many a manly eye, Unused to tears, in sorrow for him, wept-And many vowed, 'till met within the sky,
His name enshrined should in their souls be kept.

THE RESTING PLACE.

RIGEL.

BY REV. J. N. MAFFITT.
"So man lieth down, and riseth not up till the neavens be no more; they shall not wake, nor be raised out of their sleep." However dark and disconsolate the path of life may seem to any man, there is an hour of deep and quiet repose at hand, when the body may sink into a dreamless slumber. Let not the imagination be startled, if this resting place, instead of the bed of down, shall be the bed of gravel, or the rocky parement of tually conceal the countenances of the wearthe tomb. No matter where the poor remains of wearied man may lie, the repose is distinguish their own brothers and cousins .deep and undisturbe ed-the sorrowful bosom heaves no more—the tears are dried up in their fountains-the aching head is at rest, and the stormy waves of earthly tribulation roll unheed. ed over the place of graves. Let armies engage in fearful conflicts over the very bosoms of the pale nations of the dead, not one of the sleepers heed the spirit stirring trump, or respond to the rending shouts of victory.

How quiet these countless millions slumber in he arms of their mother earth! The voice of the elements—the winds—the waves, nor the giant tread of the earthquake, shall be able to addition of that kind, which might be produced cause an inquictude in the chambers of death. battle shall be fought; and then a silver voice at first just beard, shall rise to a tempest tone, and penetrate the voiceless grave. For the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall hear llis voice.

Translated from the New York Times. MEAN DURATION OF THE LIFE OF MAN.

than formerly. In France, it is 32 years; in England it is 32 for the men and 34 for the women; in Belgium it is 32, but this number Varies greatly according to locality. In cities or large towns the mean life of man is from 29 to 34, whilst in the country this number reaches to 31, 97. The life of woman is subject to the same accidents. In cities or towns, the term is from 30 to 29, whilst in this country this number reaches to 32, 95. Long life in man depends, as will be seen, in part upon the na-ture of the places that he inhabits, it also depends upon the nature of their professions or business. An individual whose profession, business or employment is painful or fatiguing to excess, will sooner arrive at the first term than he who does not abuse his constitution. Thus the mortality of the negroes of the English colonies relative to the mortality of the negroes who serve in the English simy, is in proportion of 5 to 6 black slaves over one free man. But let us see by the following table, what are the professions most proper to conduce to longevity in man.

Number of persons, 100 of Professions. whom attained their 70th year in the professions opposite.

Theologians Agriculturalists Traders, Manufacturers Soldiers Clerks Lawyers Artists Professors Doctors According to this table, it will be seen that the most favourable professions to longevity, is a sedentary life which is not exposed to any Another writer prepared an European table in which is found the names of 1,000 individuals whose age exceeded 100 years, 1,360 individuals, men and women, who lived from 100 to 110 years. 227 from 110 to 120 years

These examples of longevity are not confin. ed to Europe. The Cenobites of Mount Sinai frequently attain the age of 110 to 120 years; in Syria, in Barbary, in Arabia and Persia, we find that a great number of natives have exceeded their 100th year. At Philadelphia, M. C. Colloret died at the age of 120, leaving a widow aged 115, with whom he had lived 99 In South Carolina, M. Solomon Scribel, who emigrated thither in 1696 at the ago of 19, died at the age of 148. Mrs. Judith Crawford died at Jamaica at the age of 150, in the most perfect possession of her intellectual faculties; and at St. Helena, under a burning tropical sun, Mrs. Elizabeth Honoria Frances Lamb died lately at the age of 110, leaving 160 children and grand children-she had been married 8 times.

> From the Lady's Book. WHISKERS, &c.

Doubtless it is one of the most desirable objects with young ladies and gentlemen to ap-pear amiable in the eyes of each other; but it s quite as evident that they often mistake the proper course for the attainment of that object. Let us take, for example, those beaus who labour so assiduously to cultivate huge whiskers. Boz locks, and mustaches. Could the suffrages of the ladies generally be taken, we incline to think that these fancied improvements would be voted quite objectionable. For, besides the immense waste of bear's grease which results from a taste for these ornaments, they so effecers, that young ladies are sometimes unable to Persons who carry their faces behind a n this sort cannot be supposed to possess clear consciences, for honesty and fair dealing have no motives for any such concealment. it is true, are sometimes fond of lap-dogs, cats and kittens, and these have whiskers; and it may be that this circumstance caused the introduction of these appendages among the beaus. But a sheep, notwithstanding all that has been said about its simplicity, is a superior animal to any of those just mentioned, and a sheep wears thunder shall not awake them; the loud cry of no whiskers. And, if a sheep had any choice on its visage by such means as are employed They shall rest end pass away; the last great among some of our own species; namely, the application of bear's grease, dec. In short, wo may venture to offer it as a general remark that no really valuable animal whose face is disfigured by such additions, either natural or artificial.

And, if our authority is worth any thing, such ornaments are by no means attractive to the more judicious portion of female observers.

MAN.

This curious article of Physiology says *Le Courier des etas unis is borrowed from the Revue Britaniqus.

In the many articles that we have consecrated to this interesting question, we have demonstrated that the mean life of man is now greater ted that the mean life of man is now greater than termerly. In France, it is 32 years; in
