CERTIFICATES.

MORE CONCLUSIVE PROOFS of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Wm. Evans' celebrated GAMBLE AND APERIENT ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS, in alleviating afflicted mankind.—Mr. Robert Cameron, 101 Bowery. Disease, Chronic Dysentery, or Bloody Flux. Symptoms, unusual flatulency in the bowels, severe griping, frequent inclination to go to stool, loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, frequency of pulse, and a frequent discharge of a peculiar fetid matter, mixed with blood, great debility, sense of burning heat, with an intolerable bearing down of the parts. Mr. Cameron is enjoying perfect health, and returns his sincere thanks for the extraordinary benefit he had received.

ASTHMA, 'THREE YEARS' STANDING.

Mr. Robert Monroe, Schuylkill, afflicted with the above distressing malady. Symptoms: Great languor, flatulency, disturbed rest, nervous headache, difficulty breathing, tightness and stricture across the breast, distension, nervous irritability and restlessness, could not lie in a horizontal position without the sensation of impending suffocation, palpitation of the heart, distressing cough, costiveness, pain of the stomach, drowsiness, great debility and deficiency of the nervous energy.

LIVER COMPLAINT, TEN YEARS' STANDING.

Mrs. Hannah Browne, wife of Joseph Browne, North Sixth st. near Second street, Williamsburg, afflicted for the last ten years with Liver Complaint, restored to health through the treatment of Dr. Wm. Evans' medicine. Habitual constipation, pain of the bowels, total loss of appetite, excruciating pain of the epigastric region, great depression of spirits, languor, and other symptoms of extreme debility, disturbed sleep, inordinate flow of the menses, pain in the right side, could not lie on her left side without an aggravation of the above distressing symptoms, with other symptoms indicating great derangement of the functions of the liver.

A CASE OF TIC DOLOREUX.

Mrs. J. E. Johnson, wife of Capt. Joseph Johnson, of Lynn, Mass., was severely afflicted for ten years with Tic Doloroux, violent pain in her head, and vomiting, with a burning heat in the stomach, and unable to leave her room. She could not find relief from any kind, until after she had commenced using Dr. Evans' medicine, of 100 Chatham street, and from that time she began to amend, and feels satisfied if she continue the medicine a few days longer, will be perfectly cured. Referring to the above distressing symptoms, with others, which it is not essential to intimate.

PARALYTIC RHEUMATISM.

A perfect cure effected by the treatment of Dr. Wm. Evans. Mr. John Gibson, of North Fourth street, Williamsburg, afflicted with the above complaint for three years and nine months, during which time he had to use crutches. His chief symptoms were excruciating pain in all his joints, but especially in the hip, shoulder, knees and ankles; an aggravation of the pain towards night; and for the most part all times from the internal heat an obvious thickening of the fascia and ligaments, with a complete loss of muscular power. For the benefit of those afflicted in a similar manner, Mr. Gibson conceives it meet to say that the pains have entirely ceased, and that his joints have completely recovered their natural tone, and he feels able to resume his ordinary business.

POETRY.

TO THE RAINBOW.

Oh lovely is the brilliant bow
That spans the evening sky,
When every thing looks fair below
And every thing on high;
Where far the thunder pillar roars
Its lightning gilded form;
And in the distance disappears
The ensign of her storm.

Oh lovely is the brilliant bow
That spans the arch of God,
When sweet the evening zephyrs blow
And willows gently nod;
When living nature wakes again
To cheer the closing day,
And blushing roses drink the rain,
And brooklets bubble gay.

Oh lovely is the brilliant bow,
As when around the world—
High o'er the dying deluge's flow—
Its way outline cut,
And man beheld with glad surprise—
Swift brightening into form
Its glorious colors span the shroud—
The witness of the storm.

Gleam out! gleam out! thou brilliant bow,
And cheer the slumbering breast,
When rolls the awful thunder low,
And sunset gilds the west;
Gleam out! as I have seen thee oft,
Above the rolling deep,
When bending brightly from above,
Thou lilted the storm to sleep.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BEES.

In July and August the bee-hives must not be neglected. This is the season when the bee-moth is seeking a convenient spot to settle her progeny where they need not labor for themselves—how natural! She will deposit her eggs in some chink of the hive if possible, where her young ones may luxuriate on the rich repast which the bees have been preparing through the summer.

It is said the moth will not lay her eggs in salt. If this proves true the discovery will be worth as much as twenty thousand loads of sugar beets. For the great destroyer of the bee is the moth, and but for her, millions of honey may be raised with but little expense.

The hives should often be canted up and all the dirt and filth brushed away from the platform on which the hive sits. Then salt should be sprinkled over the board; and, luckily, bees are fond of salt, and ought to be supplied with it even if they have no terror to the moth.

Houses.—Bees need no large palace to live in. They flourish much better in hives about 14 inches square and of the same height. No gain or notch should be cut as a door for entrance, for the whole hive should be raised up from the platform on pillars one-third of an inch thick, so as to let the inmates have a doorway in front and rear, as well as in each wing.

We keep our hives raised thus through the winter, and we have practiced it for years. The hives need no other shelter than that of trees which should be so situated in regard to them as to cast a shade on them by ten o'clock, which should continue until three.

If the worms of the moth are found crawling about the hive they should all be destroyed. The bees seem unwilling to meddle with them, and they often crawl into the hive.—Boston Cultivator.

INSTINCT.

This wonderful and mysterious power, which invariably lends its possessor right, and never, like man's boasted reason, gets its followers into scrapes, is seldom more beautifully displayed than in the following instance:

In a hive of bees it was discovered that the moth had commenced its ravages, the destruction of the young bees, or the abandonment of the hive by the old ones, was anticipated. In view of the latter alternative, a new hive was placed near the old one. Shortly after, the bees were seen entering it, each carrying what appeared to be some green leaf. On examining the hive, long rolls of clover leaves were discovered. Looking closely, they were found to consist of separate packages, neatly folded up, and cemented at the edges with great nicety; each package containing a young bee, and a sufficient quantity of nutriment for its support. From the facts, it would seem that the persecuted bees, in order to guard their young in future against the attacks of their deadly enemy, adopted this ingenious device. Had they been actuated by what man calls reason, could they have superior intelligence, or greater apparent knowledge of causation?

A FRONTIER INCIDENT.

Col. James Clark, Sen. of this township—a man of the days of '76—has promised to furnish us with some sketches of the exploits of the frontier men. The incident given below is very nearly in the words of Col. Clark, and may be relied on as strictly true. We trust our aged friend will make frequent drafts upon

AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE PERFORMED BY DR. Wm. EVANS.

Dr. Wm. Evans, of 100 Chatham st., N. Y.—Mr. W. W. V. of 160 Eldridge street, was labouring under a disease, which was by many physicians considered incurable, and could find no relief from any source whatever, until he made application to Dr. Evans, and placed himself under his successful course of treatment, from which he began to find immediate relief, and in a few weeks was perfectly cured.

A Letter from Mr. Sheldon P. Gilbert, to Dr. Wm. Evans, proprietor of the celebrated Camouillo Pills.

Dear Sir—Had the immortal Cooper known the medical qualities of the Camouillo Plant, he as well as thousands since (besides myself) would have experienced its wonderful effects on the nervous system. The public utility of Cooper was lighted in the land, thro' the natural effect of his nervous debility upon the mental powers, which made it necessary for him to seek relief beneath the rural shade, but the calm retreat gave his physical nature no repose. If some one then had known the secret of concentrating the medical virtues of Camouillo, the discoverer would have been immortalized with poetic seal as the benefactor of suffering man.

The above lines were prompted from the effect I have experienced from Dr. Wm. Evans' Camouillo Pills. Yours, with esteem,
Sheldon P. Gilbert.

DYSPEPSIA AND HYPOCHONDRIACISM.

Intersting Case.—Mr. William Salmon, Green street, above Third, Philadelphia, afflicted for several years with the following distressing symptoms: Sickens at the stomach, headache, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, impaired appetite, sometimes acid and putrescent eructations, coldness and weakness of the extremities, emaciation and general debility, disturbed rest, a sense of pressure and weight at the stomach, night sweating, nervous, great mental despondency, severe flying pains in the chest, back and sides, costiveness, a dislike for society, or conversation, involuntary sighing and weeping, languor and lassitude upon the least exertion.

Mr. Salmon had applied to the most eminent physicians, who considered it beyond the power of medicine to restore him to health; however as his affliction had reduced him to a very deplorable condition, and having been recommended by a relative of his to make trial of Dr. Wm. Evans' medicine, he with difficulty repaired to the office and procured a package, to which, he says, he is indebted for his restoration to life, health and friends. He is now enjoying all the blessings of health.

Persons desirous of further information, will be satisfied by every particular as to this singular case, at Dr. Wm. Evans' Medical Office, 100 Chatham st. N. Y.

A SEVERE CASE OF PILES CURED AT 100 CHATHAM STREET.

Mr. Daniel Spinning, of Shrewsbury, Eden Town, New Jersey, was severely afflicted with Piles for more than 20 years. Had had recourse to medicines of almost every description, but the advice of several eminent physicians, he never found the slightest relief from any source whatever, until he called on Dr. Evans of 100 Chatham street, N. Y. and procured some medicine from him, from which he found immediate relief, and subsequently a perfect cure.

REMARKABLE CASE OF ACUTE RHEUMATISM.

Long—cured under the treatment of Dr. Wm. Evans. 100 Chatham street, New York. Mr. Benjamin S. Jarvis, 13 Centre street, Newark, N. J. afflicted for four years with severe pains in all his joints, which were always increased on the slightest motion; the tongue preserved a steady whiteness; loss of appetite, dizziness in his head, the bowels commonly very constipated, the urine high colored, and often profuse sweating, unattended by relief. The above symptoms were also attended with considerable difficulty of breathing, with a sense of tightness across the chest, likewise a great want of due energy in the nervous system.

The above symptoms were entirely removed, and a perfect cure effected by Dr. Wm. Evans.

SAVAGE MORGAN.

In the spring of the year 1778 or '79, while posted at a place called Martin's fort, on the Monongahela river, near where Morgantown now stands, Colonel Clark became acquainted with Captain David Morgan, then about sixty years of age. Morgan resided with his family in the fort, but cultivated a farm on the opposite side of the river.

Having one day sent a couple of his children over the river to work in the field, he soon became alarmed, lest they should be assaulted by Indians, who at that time prowled through the forest, striking at the settlers as opportunity offered. Morgan took his rifle, and crossing the river, mounted the fence, where he sat looking at his boys at work. He had not been long in that position, when, to his extreme surprise, he discovered two brave savages running across the field towards the children. He quite deliberately picked the flint of his rifle, newly primed it, and then started (at a run) to throw himself between the Indians and his unprotected children—at the same time giving the latter an alarm that sent them scampering towards the fort.

Morgan followed his boys at full speed, both the Indians in chase, until he came to a large walnut, behind which he took refuge, and prepared for a rough tussle with the approaching savages. The Indians, observing Morgan's caution, also freed. Then it was that the aged father and expert warrior put in practice a stratagem worthy of a Whetzel, a Simon Kenton, or the most crafty savage. He placed his hat on his ramrod and projected it on one side of the tree, so as to catch the eye of the Indians. In an instant the sharp crack of both of their rifles was heard—a brace of bullets whistled through the hat—down fell the mock Morgan—the Indians shouted and rushed towards what they supposed to be a dead enemy.

But Morgan's grey scalp was not yet ripe for the knife. He took quick, deliberate aim at the foremost of the advancing savages—fired—the Indian sprang upward and fell forward a dead man. On came the remaining red skin. As he approached, he flung his tomahawk at Morgan's head. Morgan threw up the hand in which he held his rifle, and saved his head, but lost his little finger. In a moment the savage was upon him. They clunged, and a fierce struggle followed.

The old man stripped his antagonist and threw him on the ground—but in an instant the Indian turned him, and yelled for victory. Morgan says he laid still a moment to get his breath, expecting the death-blow to be struck. He succeeded, however, in getting one of the fingers of the right hand of the Indian in his mouth, where he held it with a death-grip. The savage attempted to draw his hunting knife with his left hand—but it drew hard, and gave Morgan a chance for his life.

Observing every movement of the Indian with a hawk's eye, he saw the handle of the knife extending above the head of the savage, and in an instant seized and drew it through the grasp of his enemy, nearly severing the hand of the latter. The knife was soon deep in the side of the savage, who rolled over with a grievous death-groan.

When Captain Morgan rose upon his feet, he found himself covered with blood, fainting and dizzy. He knew not whence the blood came, nor whence the weakness, until, for the first time, he observed the loss of his little finger.

Re-loading his rifle and ascertaining that there were no more enemies abroad, he went to the fort, and procuring assistance, returned, scalped the two Indians, skinned them, and afterwards tanned their skins—of which he made a drum's head, razor straps, &c. Colonel Clark has often seen him wearing a belt wrought out of this human leather. "Ever after," says the Col. in conclusion, "the neighbours called him Savage Morgan."

A MOUNTAIN PROSPECT.

Upon the tops of mountains we respire with greater freedom, our bodies are more active, our minds more serene, our pleasures less ardent, and our passions much more moderate.—Our meditations acquire a degree of sublimity from the grandeur of the objects around us. It seems, as if being lifted above all human society, we had left every terrestrial sentiment behind; and that as we approach the ethereal regions, the soul imbues something of their eternal purity. One is grave without being melancholy, peaceful but not indolent, pensive yet contented. Our desires too lose their painful violence, and leave only a gentle emotion in our hearts. Thus the passions which in the lower world are man's greatest torment, in happier climes contribute to his felicity. I doubt much whether any violent agitation or vapours of the mind could hold out against such a situation. Imagine to yourself the amazing variety, magnitude and beauty of a thousand stupendous objects; the pleasure of gazing at an entire new scene, strange birds, unknown plants, another nature, and a new world. To these,
