Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles,
Prince George's & St. Mary's Counties

This directory is produced by the Southern Maryland Agricultural Development Commission (SMADC).

It is provided as a means to assist and promote farmers and related businesses as Southern Maryland diversifies and transitions away from its tobacco-dependent economy.

The Southern Maryland Agricultural Development Commission is dedicated to the following mission:

“To promote diverse, market-driven agricultural enterprises,* which coupled with agricultural land preservation, will preserve Southern Maryland’s environmental resources and rural character while keeping the region’s farmland productive and the agricultural economy vibrant.”

*“Agricultural enterprises” is considered interchangeable with “natural resource-based enterprises” and is broadly defined as tobacco-free sustainable agriculture, and includes forestry and aquatic resources and agriculturally related activities such as agritourism and value-added processing.

Thanks for Buying Local

THANKS FOR USING THIS DIRECTORY!

From arugula and alpacas to zinnias and beyond, this directory will lead you to some of the finest and freshest farm products and services our region has to offer.

On average, food travels 1,500 miles from farm to plate in the U.S. Food grown in your own community was probably picked within the past day or two. It's crisp, sweet and loaded with flavor. It tastes better and is better for you.

When you buy direct from the farmer, you are re-establishing a time-honored connection between the consumer and the grower. Knowing the farmers gives you insight into the seasons, the weather, and the miracle of raising food. And when you visit an agritourism farm or patronize stores and restaurants that buy local produce, your dollars stay in your community.

Imagine! If every household in Southern Maryland spent just $8 on locally grown farm products for 12 weeks, $54 million could be invested back into our neighboring farms and economy.

"Buying Local" also supports our local agricultural economy, preserving the rich heritage and beauty of Southern Maryland as selling farmland for development becomes less likely. Picturesque barns, lush fields of crops and meadows full of wildflowers will survive only as long as farms are financially viable.

Your choice matters. Please help keep our Chesapeake farm region vibrant and growing!

Buy Local! Buy Fresh!

So. Maryland
So Good...

What is So. Maryland, So Good?

So. Maryland, So Good is a campaign designed by the Southern Maryland Agricultural Development Commission (SMADC) to help consumers identify truly Southern Maryland products and buy accordingly. By building a direct link between buyers and growers in the five Southern Maryland counties and promoting the advantages of buying local, we hope to help keep farming vibrant and vital in Southern Maryland.

As a consumer, you have a unique opportunity to help preserve Southern Maryland's rural charm by supporting local farms.

Always look for the So. Maryland, So Good logo at stores and restaurants and ask for Southern Maryland products where you shop and dine.

SMADC also promotes the region's cultural heritage through the Southern Maryland Trails and provides educational resources for children, including Cornelia and the Farm Band coloring books, animated songs, posters and curriculum.

Visit www.smadc.com for more information about SMADC's programs and updated information on other farm products and services.

Some Terms to Know

ORGANIC

Some farms are listed as “organic” farms. According to federal law, it is now illegal to use the term “organic” unless a farm is certified. A “certified organic” farm must meet United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) and State of Maryland standards and is annually inspected. There are some exceptions; please contact the Maryland Department of Agriculture Organic Certification Program. The directory indicates if the farm has been “certified organic” by the State of Maryland. Some farms may follow organic practices, but are not certified. These are listed as “may follow organic practices, not certified” farms.

PICK-YOUR-OWN (PYO)

The directory specifies “Pick-your-own” (PYO) farms. See “Pick-Your Own/Cut-Your-Own” in the index (page 135).

CUT-YOUR-OWN OR CHOOSE-YOUR-OWN (CYO)

The directory specifies “Cut-Your-Own” (CYO) farms. See “Pick-Your Own/Cut-Your-Own” in the index (page 135).

COMMUNITY SUPPORTED AGRICULTURE (CSA)

Farms that offer Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) or subscription options will typically offer a weekly supply of produce or flowers throughout the season for a set fee. See “Community Supported Agriculture” in the index (page 139) and call the farm for more information.

This directory includes only voluntary listings and is not intended to be an endorsement of any particular farm, service, or business. Farm information was compiled through voluntary responses to our survey.

SUMMER IN A JAR: FARMERS EXTEND THE GROWING SEASON

The time-honored tradition of preserving food by adding acids (lemon juice or vinegar) and processing in jars to produce pickles and relishes (acidified foods) has been one of the most profitable ways for farms to make the most of the season's bounty. But until recently, foods such as pickled beets and other acidified foods were hard to find at farmers' markets or in local retail stores. This was due in part to the many complex and costly regulatory requirements that prospective on-farm processors must complete before they are able to manufacture and sell their products.

For the past several years, SMADC has been working in close partnership with state and local health agencies to help farms navigate these regulatory hurdles and increase the opportunity for farms to profit through the sale of acidified foods. As a result, there are now farms in Southern Maryland that are fully certified and licensed to manufacture and sell acidified foods and many varieties of farm-made pickles, relishes, etc. for sale at farm stands, farmers' markets and stores. That's good news for farms and delicious news for you. Look for them this summer!

to sell packaged frozen meat cuts of pork, beef and lamb directly from the farm. Call us for more information.

COMING TO A TABLE NEAR YOU: LOCAL MEAT!

Thanks to a recent SMADC initiative, many more farms in Southern Maryland are offering a wide variety of USDA-inspected meats (lamb, pork, beef, veal and goat), and even sausages and bacon in convenient, frozen, ready-to-buy portions.

By providing a grant to purchase two commercial capacity freezer trailers, SMADC has made it possible for the region's farmers to meet state DHMH and USDA regulatory requirements for meat transportation and storage and sales of locally raised frozen meat cuts directly to customers.

Farms also have the ability to market their products with pride, showcasing their humane practices, individual feeding and finishing methods, and where applicable, antibiotic, steroid and hormone-free meats. And vacuum packaging makes it easier for customers to see what they are purchasing and helps keep the meat fresh and freezer burn resistant.

As the public becomes more aware of the benefits of locally raised meats, many small family farms will have increased potential for profit, and consumers will have the added satisfaction of knowing their choice to 'buy local' is keeping farms alive in our region.

AGRITOURISM: FARM FUN AT ITS FINEST!

The past decade has seen a surge in the popularity of destination farms in Southern Maryland as farmers transition away from tobacco to more sustainable endeavors. Agritourism encompasses corn mazes, wineries, pick-your-own farms, petting farms, and farms offering ag-related workshops and classes.

SMADC has had a part in supporting these farms as they transition into agritourism or enhance their existing offerings. Support has included grants, training and marketing support—including the popular Southern Maryland Trails: Earth, Art, Imagination guide distributed across Maryland and beyond.

The Trails book combines agritourism destinations with local art studios and galleries, restaurants serving locally grown food, lodgings, parks and more. Its goal is to help tourists experience the best of the region's hospitality, beauty and ag-related culture.

Find out more about the Southern Maryland Trails, including how to get your free copy of the guide (book or download) at www.somdtrails.com.

SOUTHERN MARYLAND WINE: IT'S A GRAPE YEAR!

Many Southern Maryland farms that once grew tobacco are now growing grapes for wine to supplement their farm incomes.

SMADC played a role in the growing regional grape industry by offering a series of research and grape-growing grants beginning in 2000. In concert with the grant program, SMADC sponsored training for new farmers learning to grow this new crop. Seminars focused on soil, pruning and choosing the right grape varieties for the region (and for great tasting wines).

SMADC also provided a grant to the new Port of Leonardtown Winery, the latest in a series of wineries to open in the region.

Four years after SMADC's first grape grant, many farmers are finding that grapes are a sweet addition to their farm offerings.

MARYLAND FARMLINK: LET'S GET TOGETHER!

The Maryland farming community has an innovative resource to bring farmers together to educate and inform each other on the business of farming, to link buyers and sellers of farm land in Maryland and to help members find business partners, mentors and farming information: www.MarylandFarmLINK.com.

An open Farm Forum provides a venue for individuals to ask questions on farm-related topics. Members with expertise on specific topics are encouraged to give answers/advice and the content generated in the discussions becomes a permanent resource within the site.

A Person-to-Person function of FarmLINK allows members to identify and contact other members who are willing to partner, mentor or give advice on specific farm-related topics. Members may communicate directly with each other, using messaging tools within the site, to arrange partnerships or land transactions or simply to mentor one-on-one.

The Property Manager component of the site, where farm owners list land for sale or lease, contains photos, descriptions and contact information for each property.

There is also a resource section that contains tools such as sample farm leases, estate planning webinars and links to other agricultural resource sites.

Discovering the New American Farmer

Farmers in Southern Maryland – like farmers across the nation – are facing their greatest challenge ever: to figure out new strategies to stay in business, or to disappear forever . . .

In this 30-minute documentary, Southern Maryland farmers, watermen and policy-makers describe the changing face of farming, the decline of the "family farm," and why and how our local community and our nation should take steps to preserve our valuable agriculture and aquaculture resources. You'll learn about:

- the rise and fall of tobacco as Maryland's cash crop
- this state's innovative programs to support farmers as they transition to alternative, sustainable forms of agriculture.
- farmland preservation
- food safety
- CSAs, specialty markets and agritourism
- what you can do to keep farming healthy and viable in your community

This informative video, complete with closed captioning and bonus educational clips, is available on DVD for $10.
