

for protecting domestic manufactories by high duties to supply the wants of government, it appropriated its revenue to construct roads and canals in those sections of the Union, which were or might thereby become friendly to the system. In this state of our political affairs, when an interested majority in Congress seemed to have lost sight of the Constitution, or disregarding its provisions, were engaged in a course of legislation to promote the interest of particular occupations, and for the benefit of particular sections, at the public expense, the veto-message of President Jackson on the Lexington and Maysville Turnpike Road Bill was hailed as an unequivocal evidence of a determination on his part to arrest the exercise of this unconstitutional power, and to put a stop to those extravagant appropriations.

With these remarks, your Committee submit the following resolutions:

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Georgia, in General Assembly met, That they do concur with the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee in deprecating the exercise of the powers which have been assumed by Congress, of appropriating money out of the Treasury of the United States, and in subscribing for stock under State Corporations.

Resolved further, That this General Assembly does expressly declare, that the Government of the United States does not possess the powers, under the Constitution, to carry on a system of Internal Improvement within the several States, or to appropriate money to be expended upon such improvements.

Resolved, That his Excellency the Governor be requested to forward copies of these Resolutions to the Governors of the respective States, and to our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

Agreed to, 21st December, 1832.
