

To any deficiency of the Treasury as of 1st December, it is the usage of the Department, to add the probable amount of the Journal of Accounts for the present session, because it occasions rapid and heavy drafts upon its resources in the beginning of every year, considerably exceeding its current unappropriated receipts in the same time;—and from past experience, it may not be estimated at less than $45,000.

Which would make the charge for those accounts, upon the receipts of the current year, $56,137 03.