ther invisible reason, which now and then glitters forth to the gase in the chape of the almighty lucre. Why not be honest at once and acknowledge the routh that you think it unjust to be taxed for the cducation of children not your own? Why not openly avow you do not like the idea, that your money should enlighten the masses, that all the indigent of our county should enjoy the great enefits which education confers? Why not directly assert that you ignore all philanthropic and patriotic schemes that are effected at your expense?

The practice of kicking slyly in the dark at any thing without any definite sim, "eren if the caselle is not "hid sader a bashel," is rather a bad one, and vould look far more respectable, adding considerably to the intelligence of Mr.
