thirty-three, I state that the above proposed dispatch was communicated to the committee this evening, and a resolution passed proposing no specific relief, but that the Northern States discontinue, strictly in accordance with the above dispatch, and as I believe in the lead the people of the South, from information derived from their own members of the committee and other Northern representatives, I fully concur in the above dispatch.

The manifesto was immediately communicated to the several constituents of the gentlemen named by telegraph.

It appears that on Thursday last week when the above manifesto was received, the resolution of Mr. Davis, declaring it necessary to take measures to effect a speedy settlement of the troubles between the North and South by granting all necessary guarantees to the South, was adopted.

Major Wm. B. Stone, M. Bannan, Gen. Mitchell spoke in favor of the resolutions. A substitute was offered by Col. Thomas A. Miller, who alleged that South Carolina was too harsh.

lignations of the Act of Congress of 1850, commonly known as the Fugitive Slave law, and submit cheerfully to its faithful enforcement; and that we point with pride and satisfaction to the recent conviction and punishment, in this city of Philadelphia, of those who had broken its provisions by aiding in the attempted rescue of a slave, as proof that Philadelphia is faithful in her obedience to the law; and furthermore, that we recognize the passage of a law which shall give compensation in case of the rescue of a captured slave by the county in which such rescue occurs, precisely as is now done by existing laws in case of destruction of property by the violence of mobs.

Resolved, 6. That as to the question of the recognition of slaves as property, and as to the question of the rights of slave-owners in the Territories of the United States, the people of Philadelphia submit themselves obediently and cheerfully to the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, whether now made or hereafter to be made, and they pledge themselves faithfully to observe the Constitution in this respect, as the same has been or may be expanded by that august tribunal.

Resolved, 7. That all denunciations of slavery, as contained in the Fugitive Slave Act, and all laws which maintain that institution, and which will have the effect of increasing the number of slaves in this country, which ought to be abolished, and which are inimical to the honor and glory of the American Union.

Resolved, 8. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

Resolved, 9. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 10. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

Resolved, 11. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 12. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

Resolved, 13. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 14. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

Resolved, 15. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 16. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

nation to remove all political agitation for the abolition of slavery; shall repeal all acts designed to nullify or embarrass the faithful execution of the fugitive slave law; shall consent to the citizens of the South enjoying the services of their fugitives, and to the citizens of the North enjoying the services of their fugitives, and to the citizens of the South enjoying the services of their fugitives, and to the citizens of the North enjoying the services of their fugitives.

Resolved, 17. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 18. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

Resolved, 19. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 20. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

Resolved, 21. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 22. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

Resolved, 23. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 24. Resolved, 28. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

The Warning Voice of Henry Clay.

The Hon. Henry Clay, in a speech made as long ago as 1833, warned his countrymen, in a strain of impassioned eloquence, of the dire consequences of abolitionism and northern attacks upon southern institutions, and in reading his warning, every one will be strikingly impressed with the fact that what he then predicted has actually come to pass. We make a few extracts:

Resolved, 29. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 30. That we cordially approve the suggestion that a Convention, or Congress of Delegates from the States, comprising the States held for the purpose of consultation upon the causes that induce them to maintain such a step, and of suggesting such reforms as they would propose, and that it be the firm conviction of the citizens of Philadelphia that the proposition made by such Convention would be received by the people of the other States in a fraternal and cordial spirit, and with an entire consent to remove all grounds of just complaint.

Resolved, 31. That we appeal to the citizens of all the States, and to the people of all the States, to unite in a common effort to secure the abolition of slavery, and to support the Constitution of the American Union.

Resolved, 32.
