The London Quarterly (Conservative.) The Ediaberg Review (Whig.)

+ The North British Review (F. Church.) Blackwood's Edinbury Magazine (Tory.)

The present critical state of European adairs This present critical state of European affairs will render these publications unusually interesting during the forthcoming year. They will occupy a middle ground between the hastily written news-items, crude speculations, and flying rumors of the daily journal, and the pondecous tome of the future historian, written after the living interest and feitlement of the great political events of the timeshall have passed away. It is to these periodicals that readers must look for the only nelly intelligible and reliable history of current events, and as such, in addition, to their velicatabilished historys, scientific and theological character, we urgo them upon the consideration of the leading public.

The receipt of Advance Sheets from the British publisher gives additional value to these reprints, insistuch as they can now be placed in the hands of subscience where the consideration of the passes of the state of the can now be placed in the hands of subscience where the can now be placed in the hands of subscience where the can now be placed in the hands of subscience where the can now be placed in the hands of subscience where the can now be placed.
