To the Eliter of the Nomines:

"The galled jade winces," and is so completely enreloped in foam, from the Jorture inflicted, that it is difficult to discover the point which first needs attention. I must applogise to your feaders for attempting to administer to a disease covered in such a mass of fume, lest its noxious vapors may escape and infect more widely the atmosphere around. I will, however, promise to abundantly of soap and water, so that no offensive contagion shall pass through memory of the saws, why did I vote against his resolution in committee, and for it in general meeting? The answer is plain and simple-because I submit to the will of the majority. In this particular, there is a radical difference to tween Mr. Bonic and myself. He processes Democracy, and in practice denies the most exacutal attribute of republican government, viz: that the majority shall rule. Hence the difficulty helms now raised, and now supports. This difference is fundamental and will, perhaps, forever keep us apart. I, on the other hand, make no such profession; yet, it has been my practice through life, I compose, thorself of the majority when fairly and legally expressed.

Nr. Bonic charges that "a few days after voting for Mr. Belwice's resolution, saking the Governor, in his distretion, to converte the Legislature to provide for a conjention, went from the Baltimore conference to request the towernor to sall a convention."

legislature to provide for a Contraction, weat from the Baltimore conference to r quest the Governor to kall a convention." I deny theilact, and nothing but a wilful perversion of tenth could postif, such a statement.

In his Districtof Columbia resolution, Mr. Bonic still proves the correctness of the old a lage: "Oder a tailor, always a trilor." Still perversion, mistification and an attempt to misled the public mind. Mr. Bonic knows it was the latter clause of his resolution, wherein he asserted to a fact without proof and of which the had no mean to verify, to which I objected and requested him to strike out, as not accessary, to the point of he resolution. This, as I before stated, he defined to do.

Mr. Bonic will find a refutation of the charge, that I patronize the "Patrict," in the same paper in which he repeat the same day.

Mr.-Bonic bestows more than half a columns in attempting to rid himself from the hat paired out by the that his "anti-socious resolution would effectually present the metore ment of the fugitive slave law at the North. Now, i his statement be true, that I are to be made a General by Gov. Hicks, this doctring may have a very speedy practical solution. Mr. Bonic has anticipated me in applying to Gov. Hicks for a spreadmate military commission, and has also, with his formatission, obtained arms at the basels of two. Hicks and in qualitying to his commission, his before God and many spreadly savon.
