

THE NEW HARDEE

From the fact that the usual mode of giving command by military officers falls so heavily upon the ears of sensitive privates, we would recommend that the following style be adopted, and that it be termed the "Chesterfield Manual":

1. Gentlemen, you will please give me your attention.
2. You will be kind enough to cast your head and eyes to the right, and endeavor to observe the "immaculate bosom" of the third gentleman from you.
3. Oblige me now by casting your visual organs to the front.
4. Allow me to suggest the propriety of coming to an order arms.
5. Gentlemen, will you condescend to shoulder arms?
6. You will confer a special favor by coming to a support.
7. If it meets your approbation, I beg leave to propose that you carry arms.
8. Now, gentlemen, you will please present arms.
9. I shall consider myself under an embarrassing obligation if you will once more oblige me by carrying arms.
10. Having a high appreciation of your intrinsic worth, as well as your exalted position in society, I humbly trust that I am not infringing upon your good nature when I request you to trail arms.
11. Gentlemen, for the last time, permit me to remark that it is my most desire that you should shoulder arms.
12. If it is not too laborious, I should be delighted to see you change your position by coming to a right face.
13. To conclude your arduous exercises I will further trespass upon your well-known affability by desiring you to come to arms port.
14. Gentlemen! soldiers! blood-stained heroes! If congenial to your feelings, you may consider yourselves dismissed.

A HORSE NELL

The Harrisburg Union tells the following good story of one of the government horses:

Many incidents connected with the horse purchases for Government will probably become matters of history hereafter, and we will add one just learned from a friend, which we think will stand pre-eminent among the evidences of the honesty of the loyal men who acted as agents for the government.

A number of horses were purchased at various prices in the Juniata region, which were examined and passed by an inspector named Sherbourne. As Government had no forage, the horses were placed among the farmers in the vicinity on Shaver's creek was allotted six head. He took excellent care of them, and was getting along finely, until one day one of them slipped his wind and his spirit soared away to where oats are plenty, the pasture forever green, and no driver's lash to goad him on to labor—fabulously known as horse heaven. The farmer was alarmed, because, honest, conscientious man as he was, he feared Government would hold him for the loss of this fine army nag. In order to clear his skirts, if possible, he summoned half a dozen of his neighbors to hold an inquest and post mortem examination over the dead body of the charger, that they might certify that he did not die of neglect or inattention. The concave assembled, and after due deliberation, decided that the horse had died of old age—one of the jury of inquest testifying that he had known the animal personally for upwards of twenty-seven years!

A Good Example.—The Washington correspondent of the Bridgeport Standard writes:

Our hotel are full. An officer on asking for his bill a few days ago found that a quart of wine was charged, when he had but a pint. His took exception to it. "Lawd, you're incorrigible," said the waiter. "Officer," said he, "went to his room to pack his carpet bag. Having purchased his bag was too full to get in an extra pair of boots. Landlord sent for—came. Says the officer, 'I can't get these boots into this bemeddled bag.' " "Landlord," said he, "I'm sure I can't." "Yes, you can," for a man who can put a quart of wine into a pint bottle, can put those boots in that bag." Landlord cancelled the whole bill and returned the amount.

NEW YORK ADVERTISEMENTS

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE BRITISH REVIEWS. Great Inducements to Subscribe! Premiums and Reductions.

SCOTT & CO., NEW YORK continue to publish the following British Periodicals: The London Quarterly (Conservative), The Edinburgh Review (Whig), The North British Review (P. Church), Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine (Tory).

The present critical state of European affairs will render these publications unusually interesting during the forthcoming year. They will occupy a middle ground between the hastily written newspapers, crude speculations, and flying rumors of the daily journal, and the ponderous treatise of the future historian, written after the rising interest and excitement of the great political events of the time have passed away.

It is to these periodicals that readers are indebted for the only really intelligent and reliable history of current events, and as such, in addition to their well-illustrated literary, scientific and theological character, we urge their attention upon the consideration of the reading public.

The prospect of Advance Sheets from the British and Foreign Periodicals to those who subscribe in the hands of the publishers, is the original inducement.

Terms (Regular Prices) Per annum, in advance: The London Quarterly, $2.00; The Edinburgh Review, $2.00; The North British Review, $2.00; Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, $2.00.

Premium to New Subscribers. One of the most valuable Periodicals for 1860 will be sent to new subscribers for the year 1859-60.
