IN MEMORIAM.
For the Montgomery County Sentinel.
Oh! tell me not my love is dead,
She sleeps, what angels guard her bed—
Calmly awaiting God's decree,
That joy shall follow parity.
But, ah! that were left alone,
To weep in secret, tears unshown,
Our heart-strings strung by memory's sigh,
For her whose virtues cannot die.
It is not so—'t is not so—
That she who laughed at every foe,
So young, so lovely, full of bloom,
Should fall thus early in the tomb.
Her little feet, bathed in tears,
Laying on hope, with up-turned eyes,
Gazing at Heaven's bright glory.

A Valuable Hint.
The following was sent by a correspondent to the editor of the Lady's Book:
In severe cases of croup, pneumonia, or any irritation of the lungs and throat, a certain remedy has been found, and one which is within everybody's reach. It is the sugar of the pure kind broken into lumps. Persons of those who prefer it, may be taken in the mouth, but for young children, or those whose throat is too sore to swallow the sugar, let it be dissolved in cold water, making a thick, sweet syrup, and take a mouthful at a time very frequently. Two instances have come under my own notice, and I can answer for their truth. One was a babe of seven months, attacked with croup, who took a half tumbler of sweetened water in teaspoon doses in one hour, and was relieved instantly of cough and oppression of breath. The other was a soldier suffering from pneumonia whose cough was so violent as to cause him to raise blood, and who was relieved by eating the sugar in lumps. He pronounced the cure as complete, and he has not returned since.

From the South.

The Speech of Vice-President A. H. STEPHENS—The War.
From the Richmond Dispatch, Nov. 20th.
Vice President Stephens made a speech at Crawfordsville, Georgia, some weeks since, which we first reported in the August Chronicle. The present war, he said, is emphatically "the people's war," it is the effort of one people to free another from existence, and it becomes every man in the South to exert every capacity in aiding the army which is preventing its becoming worse than a stiff-necked tyrant. That the Government, while doing all it can, cannot compass through rebellion for the army, the efforts of communities and individuals.

THE FUTURE.
Nothing could be plainer than that the leaders of the Republican party are determined to support the restoration of the Union. They have a plan, and they will execute it. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of rebellion, and they will not permit the South to remain in a state of slavery and oppression. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of anarchy and confusion. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of poverty and distress. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of degradation and dishonor. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of ruin and desolation. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of darkness and ignorance. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of crime and sin. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of misery and sorrow. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of despair and hopelessness. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of death and destruction. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of hell and damnation. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of perdition and torment. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of punishment and retribution. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of judgment and condemnation. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of wrath and anger. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of vengeance and revenge. They will not permit the South to remain in a state of hatred and malice.
