Howard periled their lives, and to which they pledged their sacred honors. In a cause advo-cated by Jefferson and Madison, defended by Andrew Jackson and James K. Polk and Franklin Pierce, and commended to us by the lurning eloquence of the gifted and lamented Douglass. However much our enemies may deride us, and charge us with infielity to the Constitution, no one act of our party can be pointed at as in hostility to the fundamental principles of that sacred instrument

When we held the executive and legismitro power of the National Government, and controlled a large majority of the State administrations, we never tampered with the Constitution, and sought, by amendments to the majority of the Constitution, and sought, by amendments to the Constitution, and sought, by amendments to the Democratic party. How different has been the policy of the Radicats. In the midst of a the policy of the Radicats.

Democratic party. How different has been the policy of the Radicals. In the midst of a fearful civil war, while a large proportion of the States were unrepresented in the National coincils, the dominant party commenced amendatory assaults upon the Coastitution, and insugnrated asystem of cruel legislation which, after the storm and tumults of our fratricidal conflict, was intended to leave us to the melancholy cain of a hearitest despotism.

Ilere, in our own Maryland, we are happily, living under a good Gystemment, which I trust by your aid this fall may be continued for another four years. Your work is before you, and you have only to put your hand to the plow and mot look back.

The Radicals are dumbfounded because your Convention was wise enough to put forth as candidates men who, whstere might be their defects, had made a record of devotion to constitutional principles which he who ruds could read, and did not construct a platform of common-place assertions or of promises, which like Radical pedges, only hold good till after the election.

They want to know of the "new denature it."
