An Eloquent Appeal for Justice to the Come One and All Senstor Vickers of Maryland, concluded his and Examine speech in the Senute, .in support of Ceneral Amaesty, in the following terms, which will meet with a response in average generous beart. in the country :

It has been said that the sublimest word in our language is daty, and the most important, responsibility, that the man who has conquer-ed a sation is not, great until he has conquerresponsibility, that the man who has conquerce a sattest is dot; great until he has conquerce a sattest is dot; great until he has conquerce in himself, for true greatness is moral greatness and nobility of spirit; and that he who cannot forgive others breaks the bridge over which he himself must pass. Let us rise to the moral grandeur of duty and responsibility, achieve a tictory over our prejudices, over our memorise of the past—our treenments, and spirit of regitation—rise to the dignity and honor of our station, and to the cashed standard of pure and generous patientim, forgetting ourselves and all our conflicts and differences in the love we bear to our fellows, equal in all the elements of true manhood to ownelves. It was said by an eminent historian that the true end of politics is to make life easy, a prople happy. Let us verify in our history to-day this adage of a wise man, and lewre no blot upon the history of our times by maintaining distinctions among equals.

You boast of having struck the manacles from the hands of the slares, while you place them upon the mind, the volition, the freedom of the whites. Let us act up to the wisdom to the whites. Let us act up to the wisdom of the whites. Let us act up to the wisdom to the whites. Let us act up to the wisdom to our race; withdraw your military from the southern soil and resture transquillity and brider. Suffer not the flecting and unworthy indusences of party to welsh down the mighty balances of party to welsh down the mighty in view of the past, looking with the prescience and hope of the patriot to the supercience our people and the Sister equality, justice, confidence, and constitutional rule, the recurs and solid foundation of free republican institutions?

the secure and solid foundation of tree republican institutions?

Can there be anything in the history of governments and of men higher, sub-limer than a great people, by their Representatives and Senators, obliterating all traces of protectifion and bringing back into a roommon fellowship, into full communion and brotherhood, those who are "bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh," who speak our language, worship the same God, and seek to serve the same country? Send, therefore, the white-winged messenger of peace, reconcillation, and hope to these who will contribute to our growth, unity and prosperity. growth, unity and prosperity.

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE -Repor of the President .- The President of the Mary and Agricultural College ( Prof. Regester) has submitted his annual report to the board of trustees, and through their president, the lion. Allen Bowie Davis, it has been laid before the General Assembly. The institution appears to be in a tolerably flourishing condition. There are now 123 students on the roll, with the call and see for yourselves. Allen Bowie Davis, it has been laid before the prospect of large additions at the opening of the next term, February 1st. Of the methods of instruction parsued at the college the presi-

The peculiar feature of this institution is the blending of instruction in the theory and practice of agriculture with the insurant a steenate scheme of agriculture with the insurant systematic structure and insurance in the daily lectures as indicate their bearing upon farm operations, are the presumed that young men' penerally, in the course of acquiring an education, can make themselves thorough practical farmers. But it is believed that our system of regular instruction in agricultural chemistry by test books, lectures and experiments in laboratory, between our agricultural mediculies, increased in the course of acquiring an education, can make to this possible of the present of the second o itions of the skillful practice of garden and orchard culture, has in it enough of the merely recrited to accombilath our ends—to put the student in the way of becoming a thoroughly intormed agriculturit; and these, by showing the benefits of skillful Jahor, awaken and foster a love of rural pursuits. Occasionally, when important out-door work is to be done, to sid the regular farm force, as well as to perfect our students in the knowledge of agriculture, selections of the more experienced of them are usuale, who receive a reasonable compensation, according to the nature of the work to be done, and their ability to perform it. At other times, where the work is of a simple character, all are called out, either in a body or by secand their ability to perform it. At other times, where the work is of a simple character, all are called out, either in a body or by sections. Thus with seeming latter is blended real healthful recreation and at the same time to useful information is acquired for future application. While the aim therefore is to fulfill the leftininate mission of the college, it is equilf—sir purpose that the institution shall not be considered a "work shop" on the other. While teaching the "dignity of its desired to have it widely known that this institution is in fact what its name implies. A Maryland college, which, while it shall offer clinuction at home, will also be attractive to those outside of the State.

It is confidently believed that this college supplies a manifest want of the age, and is also that to a condition of things extensively existing in our own State. So that white soung near, who have both times and means for a thorough collegate course, will find here all the frequisite facilities for securing that end; others (and a nucle larger number than the former) whose circumstances are different, are not required to purpuse stables that have no immediate and direct reference to the vocation towards which they are looking.

Thin hair is thick-ened, falling hair checked, and hald-ness often, though not always, curod by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous, and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted
