The Parting Hour. BY EDWARD POLLOCE

There's something in the "parting hour" Will chill the warmest beart-Yet kindred, comrades, lovers, friends, Are fated all to part; But this I've sgen-and many a pang Has pressed it on my mind-The one who goes is happier Than those he leaves behind.

No matter what the journey be, Adventurous, dangerous, far, To the wild deep or black frontier, To solitude or war-Still something cheers the heart that dates, In all of human kind,

And they who go are happier Than those they leave behind. The bride goes to the bridegroom's home With doubtings and with tears, But does not Hope her rainbow spread Across her cloudy fears? Alas! the mother who remains, What comfort can she find,

But this-the gone is happier

Than one she leaves behind? Have you a friend -- a comrade dear, An old and valued friend? Be sure your term of sweet concourse At length will have an end! And when you part-as part you will-

O take it not unkind, If he who goes is happier Than you be leaves behind! God wills it so-and so it is;

The pilgrims on their way, Though weak and worn, more cheerful are Than all the rest who stay; And when, at last, poor man, subdued, Lies down to death resigned,

May not be still be happier far Than those he leaves behind?

Useful Hints.

EARLY POTATOES .- Get these in as soon as the frost is out of the ground. The earliest planted potatoes generally yield the larges crops. The reason of this is that they need in the first stages of their growth coolness and moisture. Later plantings are also necessary, as the earlier potatoes, if kept too long in the soil often take on a second growth. But in spite of this disadvantage it is well to plant early, and as a precaution, to plough deep and plant deep-six inches deeper than is necessary. The two requisites of coolness and moistur are thus at least partially secured, and if a drought should come, the potato plants are better able to withstand it. But above all the soil must be made light and loose. Too light and too loose it can scarcely be-and must contain those constituents in which the ptato delights-especially an ample supply potash. If this is not in the soil it mus be furnished by wood ashes, or by the potash

Cottan Gatts on Barists. - In the first place, the collar should be kept thoroughly oiled where it comes in contact with the neck. The swelling should be thoroughly washed with warm water and then bathed with a lotion composed of one drachm of tincture of arnica in a half pint of warm water, used every day. If the shoulder is badly bruised, it will be well to rest the animal from work in harness, and apply a wash every day till cured, composed of sal. ammonia, one ounce; vinegar, four ounces, spirits of wine, two ounces; tincture of arnica, two drachms : water, one-half pint, mixed well. Perhaps you might dispense with the collar and use a breast strap instead, if the horse must work.

To CLEAN TIN COVERS .- Mix a little of th finest powdered whiting with the least drop of aweet oil, rub the covers well with it, and wipe them clean; then dust over them some dry whiting in a muslin bag, and rab bright with dry leather. This last is to prevent rust, which the cook must guard against by wiping Popular Clothiers, them dry and putting them by the fire when ther come from the dining-room, for if one hang up damp the inside will rust.

EARLY PEAS .- As soon as the frost is out of and drill in a few more early peas. Make the drills three feet apart and three inches deep Sow the peas thickly along the drills, cover well, and press down the earth about them When the peas are a few inches high, hoe them and support the young vines with sticks.
