Reconcilation.

Reconsilation ! that is the correct expression. Since seren years the war is past, and the sections are s'ill estrange !-- the sectional hate has been increased is fired up by the servants of government for the meanest and vileat party purposes, and the wounds the war give were always opened afresh. The South his dragged along an agonizing existence, under the robber government, and they cry for relief. That relief is offered in the election of Mr. Greeley who has, since the close of the stupendous struggle, been bending the energies of his great intellect to the work of reconciliation. It was for that reason he was met with open arms by the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore, and hailed as their deliveres from the hated thraidom of carpet-bag government. That nomination was a flight of grandeur, the like of which, the world never sawas unexpected as it was astounding to the friends of the administration who had used every art to prevent its accomplishment. It has drawn to its support the best intellects and thousands of the purest men of the countrymen whose political views were as opposite as "Typoles, forgetting the past and looking only to the future, as offering hope for the country have cast prejudice aside, and are moving har moniously together to all the great work of reconcilfation. In what contrast does a spirit such as this present itself to that which would keep these wounds forever open. And yet there are those who would do so. The purchase o the Confederate archives, for the sum of $75,-000, the publication of which was for no other purpose than to arouse the war feeling, now so happliv sulsiding ; but it fell like a wet blanket upon those who were welcoming others to reap the harvest of hate. But for such impertinent intermeddling, these matters would be forgotten, and would be buried deep in the tomb of forgetfulness, if these political barlequin and mountebanks were made to stand saide and give place to better min. It was such as these that the was threw in the surface and who

It was the infamous conduct of these banditpoliticians all over the South, engaged in the congenial task of arraying race against race. and robbing honest men of the little that the gether for the purpose of self-protection, that bas filled the Bestile at Albany with prisoners, who were tried and condemned by men who cared naught for the solemnities of an oath. and who lent a willing ear to either suborsed or "swift" witnesses Think you it was th vin lies lios of the majesty of the law or a desire to retain their places that caused these worse than hellish prosecutions. a canailate for Congress in opposition to the Democratic candidate. This looks like business and is rather a hazardons undertaking in votes should be lost for want of registration a district which gave something over 2,660 majorist in 1870. But we suppose they are counting on heavy gains from those who are epposed to the nomination of Greeley and Brown. In the face of such a majority there free to confess there was some surprise and dissatisfaction at the nomination of Mr. Greeley, but on the second thought, and a calm deliberation of the whole matter this dissatisfaction is fast giving way, and the "true and tried" old Democrats in Mantgomery will not separate from their fellows in this time of trial and probable triumph. There are none read to go over to the enemy, and if the opposition are relying upon aid from that quarter, we think they are calculating without their host Parther It is quite probable there are some good and honest Republicans who have got tired and disquated with the wasteful extravagance of the present administration and their warfage apon the South, may give their sup the man of peace' instead of the 'man and loss as between parties, the balance sheet might foot up a heavier percentage of loss to be, but it is because this are thinking "Dividithe Radicals than they are taking note of. and conquer." The New York Day Book Andrew J.
