Bank Stock. Wanted a few Shares of the Union Bank of Maryland STOCK. Enquire of Warner & Hanna, corner of Gay and Market streets. September 6

New Auction. THE subscribers having entered into Co-partnership under the firm of G. S. Johnston & Co., in the AUCTION and COMMISSION BUSINESS, in all its branches, are now fitting up a large and commodious store for the reception and sale of Dry Goods, at No. 172, Market-street, where their counting room will be kept, and have for the present a Warehouse near the lower end of Smith's dock, for the reception and sale of Wet Goods and other Groceries—where stated sales of such articles will be held, as also occasionally at such other places, as their employers may find convenient.

MEDICINES. JUST RECEIVED AND FOR SALE AT WARNER & HANNA'S BOOK-STORE, Corner of Market and S. G. streets. Velox's Vegetable Syrup.

IT is not from any illiberal motive that the proprietor of this medicine, which has sustained an unrivalled and unimpaired credit for thirty years, exposes it in all obstructions and impurities of the human fluids to the mineral and metallic salts.

To Messrs. J. Swainson & Co. London. GENTLEMEN. When in London, I promised to give you a narrative of the cure performed by your Velox's Vegetable Syrup, on an English Gentleman.

Your humble servant, A. McDONALD, Jeweller. Glasgow, 13th May, 1861.

Galm of Gilead, AND ANTI-IMPETIGINES. September 5

FOREIGN. Correspondence between FRERE and the PRINCE OF PEACE.

From the MONITEUR, No. 184. MADRID, MARCH 10. "FRERE, the English Minister at this place, seems to be much affected by the news which has arrived from Paris. A few days before he fled himself so far, as to assert, in a conversation which he had with the Prince of Peace, that assassination and murder are lawful in the present state of things, to save England from the extraordinary situation in which it is placed.

Note by the editor of the Moniteur. The observation of the Prince of Peace has been verified; and at the moment when England was employing the Court d'Artis as an assassin, one of the individuals of this family perished, as an atonement for the crime under the sword of justice.

OFFICIAL. Copy of the Correspondence between the Prince of Peace and Mr. FRERE, relative to the conversation ascribed to them in the Moniteur, No. 181.

SIR, Your Excellency has ordered to be read the copy of my answer to you by the French Official Gazetteer, concerning the late events in Paris. As I fly myself at my colleagues, and the enlightened persons of the Court, will not stoop to credit me so ridiculous as to do me the honor of opposing to the principles which they know me to possess, I might perhaps have dispensed with not being a calumny which must reflect upon its authors, and should merely have invited Y. E. to estimate the accuracy of their accounts proceeding from the same source as his, of which you are at once the judge and witness.

(Signed) J. H. FRERE. To H. E. the Prince of Peace. Madrid, April 8, 1864.

SIR, I have actually seen, that in the Madrid article, inserted in No. 184 of the Gazette, an account is given of a conversation between us, and I am waiting Sir, for your application, to remove by my answer, the unfavorable opinions you might have formed. But, as in this kind of business the degree of probability entirely depends upon opinion, and our conferences have taken place without either witnesses or hearers, and as it is impossible, therefore, that they should have been transmitted to the Gazetteer with truth or accuracy, I deem this justification you require from me perfectly useless, since it will be indifferent to the Editor of the Gazetteer, whether he publish a contrary statement to-morrow, the value set upon those accounts being relative to the truth they contain.

THE PRINCE OF PEACE. Mr. Frere, Minister of England. Madrid, April 10, 1864.

SIR, I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's Note, which you will see, by the date of this, that I have well reflected, but I determined to renew so unpleasant a subject, only in truth, the longer I weigh the expressions of your Excellency's note, the less I find that they are calculated to remove the unfavorable opinions I might have formed.

(Signed) J. H. FRERE. To H. E. the Prince of Peace. Madrid, April 17, 1864.

SIR, I had appeared to me, that my personal Honor, as well as my sovereign's; in fine, that he value I ought to set upon the good opinion of the Spanish Nation, equally impelled me to take the step I have towards your Excellency, and, though that greatness of soul Y. E. has so just a title to claim, had lessened the importance of these considerations in your eyes, I should still have flattered myself, that you would show some indulgence for the weakness of those who, on being conscious of these distinguished qualities which raise people above common, think, that there are instances in which a man, without being wanting to his own dignity, is called upon to show some respect for public opinion.

PARIS, June 23. A gang of thieves is now (June 23) before the Criminal Tribunal, at Lyons; they were taken in the magazine of a rich merchant there, citizen Pliniez, in the very act of carrying away several bales of silk.

he suddenly became a famous Jacobin, and a staunch patriot; and in 1793, and 1794, he was one of the revolutionary judges, who condemned so many Lyonsese people to death and who confiscated their property. Of these confiscations, he appropriated to himself four millions of livres, 165,000 went to Paris, bought an hotel, kept his mistress, invited all foreign ministers and fashionable people to his balls, routs, assemblies, &c. married a cousin of Robespierre, from whom he was divorced in 1799, to court a young Mademoiselle Beaucharnois, a niece to our empress, but in interval, having met with other rogues, more clever than himself, he was carried to gambling-houses, and plundered of his pillage. Being reduced to the statu quo in which the revolution found him he collected together all discontented Terrorists of Jacobins out of place, and formed a gang of thieves, coiners and forgers, and restored to the patriots places destined for them by nature, and which it had been a blessing for France if they never had quitted. Some of his accomplices have already perished, others occupy the prisons and the galleys; but Dufour himself had hitherto escaped the searches of the police, when a faithless male betrayed her faithless lover. His plan for his last robbery was excellent. He had hired several boats on the river Rhone, on the quay of which Pliniez's magazine is situated. He had posted at twenty steps distance between each ten canoes, in case of alarm, and entered therefore boldly, at one o'clock in the evening of the 19th of May, the magazine with false keys. The hired boats were under the care of 22 other accomplices of whom he ordered six to join him, and had twelve persons with him in the magazine, and assist in packing up the contents. As a certain signal, however, five police agents, and eight gendarmes, concealed in a small closet, rushed forwards, and captured Dufour and those thieves within doors, whilst other police agents & gendarmes seized the remainder of them on the quay and in the boats. He had the impudence, before the tribunal, to claim intimate acquaintance with our emperor and empress, having treated them both, and been treated by them in April 1793. He even pretended to possess the emperor's promise of a place in the Tribunal, but the survivance, or reversion, though signed by Bonaparte, was visibly a forgery, which the rascal will force him to confess. He has acknowledged before the Tribunal, that, besides the four millions he, as a patriot appropriated to himself at Lyons ten years ago, Robespierre had procured him opportunity, by contracts for the army and navy, to gain three millions more, which sums were lost by him within 18 months at the gambling tables at Paris. He is only 34 years of age, and will probably pass the remainder of his days in the galleys, should he not obtain the pardon of the emperor, for which he hopes.

NEW-YORK, September 8. MORE IMPRESSIONS.—The ship independence, captain James Orn, from Portland, on coming into this port, on Tuesday, was boarded about four miles from the Hook by an officer from the Cambrian, who impressed two seamen, John Williams and James Cornish, both Americans. Cornish had shipped on board the ship Merchant, destined for this port, but being accidentally left behind, after having sent his chest of which was all his clothes, money and protection, afterwards engaged with captain Orn, by consent of the owners of the Merchant, who gave an order for his discharge. The Merchant on coming off the Hook changed her destination and proceeded on to Philadelphia. Cornish of course is destitute of both money and clothes, which cannot be obtained without considerable difficulty, and as a native of Kentbeck cannot for a length of time procure the necessary certificates. Williams is said to be a native of this city and formerly resided in Cherry street—his protection was accidentally left behind. Captain Orn having seen before sailing the protections of both these men, reprobated strongly against the conduct of the officer and claimed right of security from being within the jurisdiction of the United States, but this was refused on the ground that British subjects were liable to be taken any where, and these men having no evidence of their citizenship could not claim a protection under it. The officer further added, that the impressment of British subjects even within the jurisdiction, was countenanced by the American Government. In every other respect, he behaved with the utmost civility and politeness.
