fancied he might wait long enough when May arrived for the arrival of his great his creature's obedience, that he offered to lay the Frenchman a wager of two gallons of ruth, that at the time appointed he would come and crawl into the box. This was agreed on, and the second week in May was fixed for the determination of the wager. At that period they both met there again, when the Indian set down his box and called for his great father. The snake heard him not; and the time now being expired, he acknowledged that be lost. However, without seeming to be discouraged, he offered to double the bet, if his greatfather came not within two days more. This was further agreed on; when, behold, on the second day, about I o'clock, the snake arrived, and of his own accord crawled into the box, which was placed ready for him -The French gentieman vouched for the truth of this story, and from the accounts I have often received of the docility of those creatures, I see no reason to doubt [Phil, paper.] his veracity.

By a gentleman who passed thro' this place a few days since, from Fort Wilkinson, we were informed that the running of the lower line was completed; and that the treaty lately held between the United States Commissioners and the Creek Nation, had terminated in the extinguishment of the Indian claim as far as the Oakmuigee R ver.

SOLILOQUY Of the OLD LAUR who sells Apples and Pears on the steps of the Branch Bank. ALAS, how invsterious are the ways of H. aven! - Three score years are the days of my pilgrimage and or these cold steps are my aged himbs reclined to earn a scanty subsistence in the last moments of my life - While sitting in this bleak nituation, and exposed to the inclemency of the seasons, with a little assortment of pears, puts, and apples, how many enter this capacitus building, regardless of the small pittance aliotted me for the solace of my declining years. My whole stock is not 10 dollars value, and from these profits my expences of ent, and maintenance are to be obtained.

Gracious Heaven ! on a quarter day, how many throng the avenu s to this deposit ofriches, to receive their dividends and come out with countenances clated with joy! while I sit almos, disconsolate, mourning over the decay of my precarious proper'y. If an apple rots on may has dor a pear becomes unpalatable from long keeping, my stock experiences a depreciation of excessive magnitude. One man descends from those lotty steps, complaining that his note is not discounted-another, that he is obliged to give one or two per cents per m nih for the maintenance of his credit!-while another group are constantly prowling to and fro, and of entimes are everbered. while exulting on the premiums they have received from the unforturate individuals who have thrown themselves on their mercy. Thank God my hapniness does not depend on riches, for among the whole throng, I can often hear the complaints of wretchedness: -- my basket, and a few bottles, are my only places of deposit; and if, in the course of my daily negociations, my little stock experiences no essential Injury, and a triffing profit arises from my discounts, I retire to my lonely habitation, car my homely meal with satisfaction, and repose myself under the protecling care of Him, who is no respecter of persons. I have no occasion to barricade my property with huge stones from afar, but place my baske's, &c. in my room, and while sleeping, am not terrified with dreams of conflagration, or slarmed by thieves breaking through to

Many of our readers are perhans uracquainted with the degree of refinement to which the sports of the English have attained. Their bull baiting cock fighting, and bexing matches are surpassed by a species of diversion of which we confess we have till now been ignerant-we allude to grinning matches! A London paper of June 18, gives us the particulars of a grinning-match, which had taken place near Budlington, for a quantity of tobacco. There were three competitors for the prize, all of whom were speedi'y seized with the most pain. ful symptonis, in consequence of the most violent confortions, and two of them died in three days, and the other soon siter. The father of the third on going to visit him was so shocked with his appearance, that he took to his bed, and never rose again!!!-

The rigid moralist may affect to frow upon a diversion which gees to de prive his fellow men of life- but a cor resportent thinks, that when under pro per regulations this new way of killing men may be made to produce the happi dit effects in ausawn unpolished country. The woman, who, after the ! death of her busband, carried on the printing business, one night took an opportunity of going into the office where a new edition of the Bible was printing, when taking out the two first letters of] the word Herr in the above-mertioned is n, Nen-Oriems. passage, she substituted Na in their place, thus al cang the sentence from " Und er soll dein Herr seyn." (" Ard he shall be thy Lord") to " Under sell dein Narr seyn," (" and he shall be thy Field) According to report, this piece of mingled levity and folly cost the woman her life, as she was on detection put to desta at Leipsick, and the copies wrought off with this alteration ordered to be bought up by the magistrates and destroyed. Some however were secreted, and are occasionally preduced for sale, when they fetch an engithous price. It is said that one of those copies is among the collection of Bibles at S.u.! gard
