A BRAR FIGHT -A Centleman from Cayuga county, between the Seneca and Cayuga lakes relates, that a Mr. Wavborne, a fernier in Orid township, went out one afternoon through the words in search of his horses, taking with him his rille, with the only load of ammunition he had in the house. On his return home, about an hour before duck he perceived a very large bear crossing the path; on which he instantly fired, and the bear fell, but immediately recovered his legs, made for a deep ravine, a short way a head. Here he tracked him a while by the blood; but night coming on, and expeding to find him dead in the morning, he returned home. A little before day break the next morning, taking a pirchfork and hatchet, and his son, a boy of ten or elevan years of age, with him, he proceeded to the place in quest of the animal. The glen or ravine, into which he had disappeared the evening before, is eighty or ninety feet from the top of the banks to the bottom of the brook below: dewn this precipice a stream of three or four yards in breadth is precipitated in one unbroken sheet, and forming a circular bason or pool, winds away among thick underwood below.

After reconnoitering every probable place of retreat- he at length discovered the bear, who had made his way up the other side of the ravine, as far as the rocks would admit him, and sat under a proj ching cliff, stedfastly eyeing the motions of his enemy.

Wayborne desiring his by to remain where he was, took the pitchfork, and, discending to the bottom, determined to attack him from below.

within six or seven feet, when on the instant of making a stab with the pitchfork, he found himself grappled by Bruin, and both together rolled down towards the pend, at least twenty or twenty five feet, the bear munching his left arm and breas, and hogging him almost to suf focation. By great exertion he forced his right arm partly down his throat, and in that manner endeavored to strangle him, but was once more hurled headlong down through the bushes, a greater distance than before, into the water .-Here, finding the bear gaining on him, he made one desperate effort, and forced his head partly under water, and repeating his exertions, at length weakened the animal so much, that calling to his loy, who stood on the other side, in a state little short of distract on for the fate of his father, he sunk the edge of his hatchet, by repeated blows into his brain.

Wayb ane, though a robust muscular man, was with great difficulty able to crawl home, where he lay for upwards of three weeks with his wounds, his arm being mashed from the shoulder to he elbow into the bone, and his breast severely mangled. The bear weighed upwards of 420 pounds.

BALTIMORE

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1804.

Extract of a letter from Annapolis. to the Editors, dated November 6, 1804. 4 For y eight members attended this day, the house proceeded to the election of a Speaker and Charles Fraizer, of elected and John B Duckett, clerk. Mr. Stansbury declared a re election to the chair, from a conviction that he could render his county more essential service on the floor of the house than in the chair. This is highly honorable to Mr. S. particularly so, as the sincerity of his motives canno. be doubted --- Mr. Fraizer having been brought lo ward and particularly supported by him. As far as relates to strength of parties, the republican interest preponderates a devery one elected as attached to that ;

interest appears to be zealous in its promotion."

NEW HAMPSHIRE -The number of fade: al votes for members of congress given in this state, in 1802 annunted to 6135; the republican t 4104—federal majori, y 2031. The federal votes in the present year amount to 11,076; the republican votes to 10 41!—federal majori. there has been an increase of republican votes since 1802, to the amount of 1366.

We are assured, in a letter from a frierd in Massachuse's that the republicans of that state had the strongest grounds for anticipating surcess at their election on the 5th inst. The electoral and congress tickets were generally approved a they were particularly sanguine in the expectation of returning a majority of republican representatives to the ninth congress.

Lost Children -- A correspondent proposes, as a practicable means of obviating the distressing sensations occasioned by children straying from their homes in this city, the following regulation :-

1st. Embroidering or stamping on a piece of linen, the name and residence of the parent to which the child belong.

2d. Sewing this piece of linen on the inside-of its frock, where p. rsons finding the child might perceive it, and thus be enabled immediately to couduct it to the distressed parents.

By the "Western Telegraphe," we observe that WM. Hoge (of Pennsylvania) has resigned his seat in the house of representatives of the United States. Mr. H. was one among the republican members who, last session opposed the amendment to the constitution, respect ing the election of president and vicepresident.

As the great mass of the people of Pennsylvania are highly in favor of the discriminating principle, his constituent. thought proper to leave him out of the Ninth (Next) Congress. We must declare that no one can possibly be more sensible of the true source of all laginimate power, in republican governments, than Mr. Hoge-The people, having deter mined no longer to coeffide in him, are not to be served for the trans for which he was, by them, elected. No person can read the following w thout being c mvinced it proceeded from a pure spirit of patriotism.

From the WESTERN TELEGRAPHE.

To the Citizens of Washington County. I HAVE Iways thought it a correct political maxim. 'na every miliv dual in socie y was bound to serve the community in word: he was placed, when freely se ecl-d for that purpose by his fellowcitiz ns. I have also thought it disgrace. ful to procure an election by intrigue mean artific, or by any other means. than the voluntary and unsolicit d The bear kept his position until he got | suffrages of the people. And, in my opinion, it would be equally dishonorable to continue in a sy place of public trust, after that confidence was wit drawn, which alone conferred the right to it. Under the existent circumstances, therei re, I have deemed i. incumbent on me to resign my seat in the Eighth Congress of the United States, which resignation I have forwarded by this day's mail.

With my best wishes for your prosperity, I remain, respectfully, your bedient servant.

W. HOGE.

His Lord. ship, as the cant is, was afterward- oft told it by one who was upon frierdly terms of intercourse with him, to which he gravely replied-we live, my good sir, in a bad world, and if the man was innocent, he is well out of it; if guilty, the dog met with his reward !

A recent " Sketch of the British empire in Europe," furnishes some useful observations.

The inhabitants of Blitain, in the southern part of the kingdom, enjoy the light of the sun at the winter solstice for eight hours, and at the summer, sixteen; on the borders of Scot. land, the shortest day is six hours and a half, and the long-st s ve. ten and a half; but in the northernmost of the Shetland reles the shortest day is only four hours and three queters. while the longe-t extends to nineteen and a quarter; Indeed here the inhabitant; see to rend at midnight.

A table of the main annual and monthly temper tures, which the atmo-phere, in the different latitudes of the count y, has a t indency to observe. gives the following result; from which it will be seen that the climate is in general milder than could have been expected in so northernly a latitude, owing to insular situation, high state of cultivation, & perhaps to other causes.
