

And also from page 61, as follows:
 "It is to be observed that Mr. Basset who had been summoned on the jury, seemed to have considerable scruples at serving and stated that he had expressed his opinion as to the 'Prospect Before Us.' Judge Chase however declared Mr. Basset a good juror, and he was sworn and acted as a juror."

Mr. J. Randolph thanked his friend from Kentucky for every suggestion tending to improve the report of the committee, confident that his motives were highly commendable. The report has been referred by the House to a committee of the whole for the purpose of obtaining, by a full, fair and free discussion, two objects; first, to determine whether the charges exhibited are such as the House are willing to prefer against the person impeached, and in order, if they be found incorrect, to make them as perfect as possible. On both these points I invite discussion in the name of the select committee, who brought in this report. At the same time I wish to suggest to my friend (Mr. Boyle) the propriety of re-examining his idea, and ascertaining whether the eighth juror alluded to in the account of Callender's trial is the juror mentioned in the testimony of Mr. Hay, and of Mr. Nichols. These gentlemen mention the juror by name. Mr. Robinson's account of the trial mentions him by number. Now if it should appear that the eighth juror was not Mr. Basset, must not the article fall to the ground if the proposed alteration should take place. I think it one of the strongest circumstances in this article that a juror was compelled to serve after stating that he had made up his mind as to the criminal offence on the question he was about being sworn well and truly to try. The committee will perceive a considerable variation between the testimony in page 33 and 36. In the first the writer introduces "with a periphrasis it is not improper here to observe," that the eighth juror answered when the previous question was put to him, that though he had never read the indictment, yet he had formed an opinion that such a book as "The Prospect Before Us" came within the federal law. This I believe is the amount of what is said in that page, and it appears from this to be an incidental circumstance only; whereas if you turn to page 36 it is reiterated with the clearest precision, that he was unwilling to serve because he had made up his mind on the book called the Prospect. It does not appear to be drawn from him by the previous question, but it does appear fully and unequivocally to be of his own mere motion, a conscientious scruple to try what he had already past judgment upon. In my opinion the report is better as it stands than it would be with the alteration, and I submit to my friend from Kentucky (Mr. Boyle) whether it would not be better to let the article stand, rather than fail before the senate, if it should turn out the 8th juror and Mr. Basset are different persons.

Mr. Boyle had heard no objection but which might be obviated by another amendment, that was to strike out the name of John Basset, and then it would apply to the juror who had the unhappy expression in that case the House might rely in sustaining their impeachment before the senate upon the evidence as well of page 133 as on that of 36. He moved to strike out "John Basset."

Mr. Nichols did not think it necessary that the words proposed to be stricken out should be struck out. He thought that under the words contained in this article as it stood it would be perfectly regular and proper even on a trial proceeding before the senate to give in evidence the testimony alluded to in page 133. And he had no doubt but the senate would admit all evidence of this kind to have its proper weight because it seems to be universally admitted and has been long understood, that in proceedings by way of impeachment that technical precision is not required which is required by our courts of law on indictment. If however gentlemen are embarrassed, about having this testimony directly pointed, this may be easily come at they can add it to the article as another count is added to a bill of indictment. This mode is very well known, and may be adopted by those who think it necessary; for his part he did not think it necessary.

Mr. Boyle withdrew his motion for the present. The question was now taken on the second article and carried, eighty members rising in the affirmative.

STATE OF MARYLAND.
 CITY OF BALTIMORE.
 By THOROWGOOD SMITH, Mayor of the city of Baltimore.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it has been represented to me by the Commissioners of Health, that they have received information of the prevalence of a malignant or contagious disease in the cities of Malaga, C. d. A. Anca, Al-ezira and Gibraltar, at the date of the latest advices from thence, and there is reason to apprehend that the said disease may be introduced into this place, unless the in-commerce with said cities be at this time restrained—

I have therefore, in pursuance of the advice of the said Commissioners of Health, issued this proclamation, hereby enjoining, and requiring all pilots, officers and others having charge of vessels bound to the port of Baltimore, from either of the ports or cities aforesaid to bring such vessels to anchor opposite to the city in order that they undergo an examination and such purification as may be found necessary.

This proclamation to remain in force until publicly revoked, of which all persons concerned are to take notice and govern themselves accordingly, under the penalty of three hundred dollars.

Given under my hand and the corporate seal of the city of Baltimore, this 8th day of December, 1844.

THOROWGOOD SMITH,
 Mayor of the city of Baltimore.

RICHMOND, December 6.
 All the Electors of this state, appointed by the people for choosing a president and vice president of the United States, convened at the capital yesterday at ten o'clock and gave an unanimous vote for THOMAS JEFFERSON, of Virginia, as president, and GEORGE CLINTON, of New York, as vice president.

William B. Giles and Andrew Moore esquires, were appointed by a joint ballot of both houses of the legislature, members of the senate of the United States, for this state.

The Rev. Mr. Wough, of Car line, was appointed complain to the house of Delegates.

NOTICE
 To the Owners and Printers of Tobacco, throughout the State of Maryland, Virginia and elsewhere.
 UNDER a late law of the General Assembly of Maryland a large spacious and commodious Fire-proof Warehouse, built on the end of the centre Market space and Frederick-street dock, is now ready for the reception, packing and inspection of Tobacco. It is presumed that the great and many advantages attached to this Warehouse, both from its central situation in the city of Baltimore, and being more than 300 yards from the Custom House of the United States—the little danger from fire, and its easy and immediate accessibility by water, without any charge for wharfage, will deserve and claim the attention of all persons interested. It is very convenient and near to the merchants who principally buy and deal in Tobacco—always to be approached by the large-trait, bay and coast, with sufficient navigation for all vessels employed in the exportation of this article, not drawing more than twelve feet water. Its exemption from risk by fire, and from wharfage, are also considerations offering peculiar advantages. The subscriber promises always to use the utmost despatch, care and attention for the interest of those who may please to consign their tobacco to his charge.
 JOSIAS STEVENSON,
 City of Baltimore, Inspector.

To a Generous and Enlightened Public.
 Hopkins's superior Razor-Strop AND RAZOR PASTE.
 THE experience of years, indefatigable attention and unrearied application, having enabled Hopkins to offer a generous public the fruits of his industry, which, perhaps, stands unrivalled by any human invention for the last five hundred years, or at least, since civilization pointed at the savage appearance of bearded man—and brought forward that era when the Razor-Strop and Paste became indispensably necessary in polished society. It is well understood, that the old adage "Experientia Docet," is the best criterion to prove the excellence of this strop—Hopkins is not accustomed to the puffing competition of European charlatans, neither does he claim any merit to himself from the Brillancy of Invention, or the Thousands acquired by his Grand Mother, or those who personally know him, know too well he is not of that cast of character, to those who he is only professionally known, he respectfully appeals to their generous bosoms for merited claim.
 Be-tim-pore—On a Kiss under the Mistletoe.
 Once under the Mistletoe a fair maiden was led, And tho' she cried no, yet she held up her head, The kiss was obtain'd, yet a grumbling was heard For Tom rubb'd her cheek, with his pretty beard, How easy, dear Tom, her rage you might stop, By the use of Hopkins's wonderful Strop.
 The superior Stropps for Razors, Penknives, &c. with Paste, are sold wholesale and retail by J. Hopkins & Co. 63, South Third street, opposite the United States Bank, Philadelphia; and on the same terms by his sole agents for Baltimore,
