No situation in life, no uprightness of heart, no prudence or circumspection of conduct, should tempt a man to conclude, that he may not at some time or other be deeply interested in these researches. The infirmities of the best among us, the vices and ungevernable passions of others, the instability of all human affairs and the umberless unforeseen events, which the com pass of a day may bring about, will teach us, upon a moment's reflection, that to know with precision what the laws of our country have to bidden, and the deplorable consequences to which a wilful disobedience may expose us, is a matter f universal concern.
