

Married last evening, by the Rev. Mr. Richards, Mr. THOMAS BARNES to Miss FRANCES MILANE, eldest daughter of Mr. Adam M. Lane, all of this city.

Died, in Scott county, (Ky.) on Thursday the 1st inst. of the Hydrophobia, Mr. JONES, having been bit on the end of the finger, by a mad dog, in the spring.

SENATORIAL ELECTION.

The Legislature of South Carolina have elected for six years from next March General THOMAS SUMTER, whose politics have never varied: and JOHN CAILLAND, who, a respectable correspondent informs us, is a decided republican in the room of Pierce Butler, resigned.

The citizens of Philadelphia express much uneasiness from the apprehensions that a fire may break out at this particular juncture, as their water works have to cease supplying them with water for a few days, to undergo some necessary repairs—a serious inconvenience attending that mode of supply.

In our last paper we stated the arrival of Mr. MERRY in this city. This was an error which arose from the following circumstance. On Saturday a servant delivered an anonymous note, stating that Mr. Merry had returned to the city, and requesting that his paper might, instead of being forwarded to Philadelphia, be left at his house in Washington.

PROGRESS OF FEDERALISM!

In NEW-HAMPSHIRE, in August last, the Federal Congressional ticket had a majority of 893. In November just past the Republican Electoral ticket had a majority of 702.

In MASSACHUSETTS, last spring the Feds had a majority of 5,441—This fall, the Republicans had a majority of 4,115.

In the Province of MAINE, in the spring of 1853, the Feds had a majority of 4,881—Last spring the Republicans had a majority of 60,000 and this fall the Republicans had 2,300 majority.

In the city of NEW-YORK, at the late election for charter officers, the republicans carried their candidates in seven of the nine wards—and the common council of that city is now, for the first time since the revolution, republican.

QUFFY, for the Feds.—At the above rate, how long will it be before the Sun of federalism rises in the east!

Trenton True American.

The result of the Electoral Election in Massachusetts fulfils one verse of a song written for and published in our paper immediately after the New Hampshire and Massachusetts State Elections:

"Our sister States tremble too To victory a vances; The contest she has just pass'd thro' Our highest hopes enhances.

Let songs of joy and mirth resound Throughout our happy Union; Our elder Sister will be found With us in full communion."

And the result of this election opens a fairer prospect for the fulfilment of another verse of the said song:—

"The STATES will soon AS ONE unite, In Governmental measures, And peaceful, prosperous, wise and free, Enjoy LIFE'S PUREST PLEASURES.

Let songs of general joy resound, Throughout our happy Union; Soon shall our sev'teen states be found In Brotherly Communication."

To these predictions we most sincerely and heartily say AMEN.—We want nothing but Union and Harmony among ourselves, to be the happiest nation upon which the sun has ever shone.

Elegant Philosophical Banquet, AT DR. LETTSOM'S VILLA.

[From Dr. HAWES, London, to Dr. FOTHERGILL Philadelphia.]

Wednesday July 25th 1804.

"A rural treat was this evening given by Dr. Lettsom, at Grove Hill, Clumberwell, which well deserves recording. About 8 o'clock a suite of seven rooms was opened for the reception of a numerous assemblage of visitors; who, for about six hours, without the aid either of music, singing, or cards, were very highly delighted. In this happy group, were many of the first characters in law, physic and divinity; men of the first eminence of various descriptions, from the City; distinguished philosophers, and great philanthropists; above a 1-an assemblage of females, particularly remarkable for genuine beauty and unaffected elegance of dress. The uncommonly curious variety of the Dr. valuable Museum; the splendid collection of books in Natural History, and other expensive works of taste and science; the well-stored conservatory of native and exotic plants; all thrown open for the gratification of his friends, left not a moment for ennui. About 11 o'clock was thrown open a room which reflected the highest credit on the elegant taste of its designer, and included all the charms of the much famed Elysium. It was 72 feet long and 30 wide; and was erected in the garden purposely for this entertainment. The floor was entirely covered with carpeting; and the ceiling was secluded from the view by a judicious arrangement of houghs freshly separated from their parent trees and shrubs, and an ingenious sprinkling of variegated lamps. The full grown magnificent orange trees had the appearance of supporters to the roof; and the tables were filled with every thing desirable to the sight or the palate—Crawberries still growing on the living plants—iced creams of every sort and flavour—rich jellies—confectionary of the most ingenious devices, many of the articles including well adapted mottos:—To other more substantial dishes of ham, veal, beef, &c. &c. were added, such an abundance of every delicacy as left nothing either to be wished or desired. At the entrance of the room, was a figure of Minerva holding a banner of white silk fringed with gold on which was neatly printed this address:—

"AD AMICOS
From East to West, from South to North,
We've call'd our Friends of matchless worth;
And hither welcome are ye come,
Without the aid of Cards or Drum;
With mild Philosophy we'll please ye,
And try by Magic to deceive ye:
Each of you source of antique lore—
I'll lay before you to explore—
And nature's gifts of various kind,
To gratify th' inquiring mind.
Such our endeavours are to show,
How much our Friends like you, we owe;
For as the Minerva incessant wear
The Body cannot fail to share,
Ere long we pray its strength recruit,
Nor spare our Cakes, our Wine, or Fruit."

On a temple particularly dedicated to the beauties of the Vernal season:
"Here void of Art, serene and bestow
The ripening produce of the fruitful year,
Behold the swelling fruit, the budding Rose,
The freshest hue, of vernal bloom appear."

On another temple emblematic of the natural effects of Winter:
"Let not my Icicle Roof, or snow-drifted floor,
The near approach of my good friends forbid;
But rather invite them to come to my door
And see fought there be in my privacy hid,
Though my Winter looks appear so green & cold,
And the ice a ceiling which here I afford;
Yet judge of their flavour, nor your candor withhold,
But say to your tastes, which best does accord:
Whether Strawberry, Raspberry, Cherry or Pine,
When with pure country cream their juices combine."

By two in the morning the immense number of carriages had cleared off and the happy Family were left to the contemplation of the rational pleasure they had afforded to more than 800 guests.

From reading the above account, I am induced to imagine that the description of a rural Festival so unique in its kind, so splendid in its decorations and exhibiting so much classical taste and ingenuity, may prove entertaining to our literary and convivial friends not left on this than on the other side of the Atlantic.

Philadelphia, Dec. 4th, 1804.
To Mr. PALM,
Museum Philadelphia.

A private letter from Paris says, General Angereau has lately been in that capital with O'connor and Martin, noted Irish Revolutionists; and after many conferences with the war Minister, has departed for Brett. It was conjectured he had received his final instructions and was to proceed in Gantheaume's fleet on a secret expedition.

Dutch papers mention that Malta is to be given to Russia

His amendment.—The legislature of N. Hampshire have postponed the consideration of the resolutions of Massachusetts recommending an alteration of that part of the constitution relating to representation in congress—this must be considered a virtual rejection on the part of this state, as both houses in their answers to Mr. Gilman's speech have expressed their disapprobation of the proposition; the sentiments of the house of representatives delivered notice, and are as follows: on the question of agreeing to such answer to the government's speech, it was decided in the affirmative by a majority of eight votes, the replies reflected much honor on the legislature.

desirable—the revenue arising from a prosperous commerce, and the wise and prudent administration of our national government having (except in one instance) rendered direct taxes unnecessary. Our own observation, as well as the history of all nations, must convince us that we cannot reasonably expect an uninterrupted continuance of our present state of peace, and unexemplified prosperity. The ambition, avarice or jealousy of other nations, will inflict upon us the scourge of war, which would to augment our unavoidable expenses, and lesson or destroy our other sources of revenue, as to render direct taxes indispensably necessary, in which event the proposed alteration, should it take place, would be severely felt by a state so entirely agricultural as New Hampshire.

We sincerely regret the existence of slavery, in our own, or in any other country; but rejoice that our sister states, with only one exception, have prohibited the importation of slaves; and trust that our national legislature, as soon as our constitution permits, will put an end to that inhuman traffic.

Captain Aspuru, who arrived at New-York on Sunday last, in 21 days from the Havana informs that a Spanish frigate and several merchantmen failed from that port in company, for Cadiz, having on board one million and a half of dollars; of which 600,000 made a part of the cargo of the ship Cleopatra, from La Vera Cruz. A few days previous to the sailing of captain A. a British dispatch brig arrived off the Havana, and made signal to a British frigate in the harbor to get immediately under weigh and put to sea which was instantly complied with. She, however, returned the next day and took under convoy all the British vessels then in the harbor. On her return from the dispatch brig to port, she spoke the above mentioned ship Cleopatra and permitted her to pass unmolested, but it is probable with the intention of pursuing her at sea.

To a Generous and Enlightened Public
Hopkins's superior Razor-strop
AND RAZOR-PASTE.
THE experience of years, and fatigable attention and un-earliest application, having enabled Hopkins to offer a generous public the fruits of his industry, which, perhaps, stands unrivalled by any human invention for the last five hundred years, or at least, since civilization pointed at the savage appearance of bearded men—and brought forward that era when the Razor-strop, (as it became indispensably necessary in polished society. It is well understood, that the largest Experience Society, is the best criterion to prove the existence of this superior, Hopkins is not accustomed to the trifling compliments of European Calatras, neither does he claim any merit to himself from the B-illancy of Invention, or the Thousands acquired by his Grand Mother, those who personally know him, know too well, that he is not of that cast of character, to those who he is only professionally known, he respectfully appeals to their generous bosoms for merited claim.

Example.—On a Kiss under the Albatross. Once under the Mistle, a fair maiden was led. And that the cried no, yet she held up her head. The kiss was blind'd yet, a grumbling was heard For Tom rubb'd her cheek, with his dirty beard. How easy, dear Tom, her rage you might stop. By the use of Hopkins's sensitive Strop.
The superior Strops for Razors Peckanives, &c. with Paste, are sold wholesale and retail by J. Hopkins & Co. 65, South Third street opposite the United States Bank, Philadelphia, and on the same terms by his sole agents for Baltimore, WARRNER & HANNA, Land for sale.

A PART of that very valuable tract of LAND, formerly the property, and residence of John Mercer Perce, deceased, situated in Baltimore county, in Back River neck, and about 14 miles from the city, containing 240 acres of strong fertile land, a great part of which is in a high state of cultivation and a very excellent Timothy meadow, and about 20 acres more may be added at a very small charge. The improvements are of world, lately erected, and such as would suit for farm houses. The part in wood, which is at least equal to the support of the place, abounds in lofty white oaks, interspersed with hickory. This property will be sold for cash, and part for credit, or barter for approved property in the city of Baltimore. It is presumed a purchaser will view the premises, therefore it is unnecessary to give any further description of them. Particulars to be treated for the sale thereof, or of more information to purchasers, apply to
