

The legislature of North Carolina have incorporated a bank at the town of Wilmington, whose capital is limited to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

The legislature of the state of Virginia have concurred in the report of their committee, that it is inexpedient for that state to agree to the amendment to the constitution of the United States proposed by the legislature of Massachusetts.

We recommend all impartial and untrammeled editors to copy from us the note of W. H. HEATH, Esq. annexed to the following observations from the Aurora. While we feel our duty to do full justice to Judge Chase, his friends may rest assured that every charge brought against him for extra judicial conduct, coming from a source so respectable as the one above alluded to, shall be laid open for public inspection.

A discussion, in the Richmond Enquirer, an excellently well conducted paper, has brought another fact to light, of no small weight. It seems that Mr. Chase went so much further in his extra-judicial duty, than we had conjectured, as to aid in the formation of the jury, which was to try Callender's case. Mr. D. M. Randolph, late marshal of Virginia, having read in the Enquirer a statement to the effect that he had obeyed the desires of Mr. Chase, relating to the jury, has published a denial, in which he states, that the rumor of his having been so obedient to the extra judicial manumans of the judge, is unfounded and untrue. The editor of the Enquirer, to substantiate the fact of Mr. Chase's interference, has published the following note: It is sufficient to premise, that Mr. Heath, the deponent, is one of the most respectable men in Virginia, and a member of the executive council.

In the May session of the Federal Circuit Court for the middle district of Virginia, in 1830, held at the capitol in the city of Richmond, when Judge Chase presided—I visited the judge at his chambers, in the house of a Mr. Crouch, on the subject of an injunction, in a Mr. Gordon vs. Mr. Smith of Baltimore; and during a conversation with the judge on this subject, Mr. David M. Randolph the Marshal of Virginia at that time, stepped in, with a paper in his hand. The judge instantly accosted him, by asking what it was he had in his hand—Mr. Randolph replied it was the panel of the petit jurors summoned for the trial of James T. Callender.—The judge then emphatically said "have you any of those people or creatures called Democrats on that list or panel?" Mr. R. hesitated for a moment, and then replied: that he did not know he had not made the discrimination, or was to that extent. "Then," said the judge, "if you have, and if you have, strike me out of the list." To this the subscriber will depart.

JAMES CHALMERS.

TO DRAM-DRINKERS AND DRAM-SELLERS.

The following curious anecdote was copied from a Bahama Gazette, and is recommended to the notice of many. Whereas the subscriber, through the pernicious habit of drinking, for many years, has greatly hurt himself in person, and in person, and rendered himself indebted to all his acquaintance. And there is no possibility of his getting out from the said practice, but through the possibility to get liquor; he therefore begs and earnestly prays, that in future no person will sell him, either for money or trust, any sort of spiritous liquors, as he will not in future pay for it—but will present any such one for an action of damages against the temporal and eternal interests of the public's humane, serious, sober servant.

JAMES CHALMERS.

Last week was committed to the goal of Hackenlack, a black woman named Dunah, for setting fire to the barn of her master, Mr. John Bertolf, of Pumpkin. The circumstances of the case, as appears by the confession of the wench on examination before Abraham Wrenn, Esq. are as follows, viz: "That she had rofe very early on the morning of the 7th December, and took a coal of fire from her master's kitchen before the family were up, with which she proceeded to the barn and played it among some corn stalks. She then retired to some distance, and when the barn was completely on flames, she alarmed the family by the cry of fire." The barn and its contents, consisting of hay, grain, four horses and eight sheep, were sorry to add, were completely destroyed, all efforts to preserve them proving ineffectual. On her examination she appeared neither concerned nor difinayed, nor displayed any symptoms of remorse for perpetrating the horrid act.—Newark paper.

During the last week, (says a Newark paper of January 1,) there was exhibited in this town, two wolves that had been killed at the Two Bridges, within 14 miles of Newark. They had committed some ravages among the sheep in that neighborhood, and their haunt having been discovered, a few of the neighbors assembled, and were so fortunate as to kill them both in the course of a few hours. Since these were destroyed 5 more have been seen in the same neighborhood, a circumstance unknown in these parts for several years past.

The following statistical view of France is given in the journal de Paris: "France, situated in a temperate zone, between the 40th and 51st degree of northern latitude contains from north to south two hundred and forty leagues, and two hundred and twenty from east to west. Its superficies consists of 39,391,630 inhabitants, equal to 1000 individuals upon each league. It is divided into 108 departments, 193 prefectures, 417 districts, and 4746 communes. Its military state contains 7 divisions, commanded by 30 generals of division. Its ecclesiastical establishment consists of 11 archbishops, 51 bishops, 400 curates, 1830 under-curates, and 80 consistorial or protestant churches. The war establishment of the army consists of 534,477 men, viz. of the infantry of the line 341,411, light infantry 120,139, cavalry of the line 14,120, light cavalry 68,984, artillerie on foot 10,655, artillerie on horseback 3,412, pioneers, sappers, engineers, 5673; in the whole, 551,477. The yearly consumption alone gives a mass of near a million of soldiers. Mr. Daru has observed, in a work lately published upon the re-arming of the army, that France, when in danger, can choose her defenders among six millions of men able to carry arms. Her six millions power is far from what it was under Louis XVI and what it will be one day under Bonaparte. The clear revenue of France, during the year XI, was 588,500,000 livres. Her public debts amount to 1,367,000,000 livres, for which 63 millions interest is paid."

Died in London, on the 6th of October, Mr. THOMAS WHITTINGTON, of Hillingdon, at the very advanced age of 104. He retained all his faculties as well to the very last hour, as ever held a more other kind of his life, and could walk a distance of eight or ten miles with perfect ease. His long life was rendered remarkable by his very constant attachment to drinking; but he never had any other liquor than gin, of which he daily drank two or three glasses, till within a fortnight of his death. He was born in the reign of King William and had a most perfect recollection of the person of Queen Anne, of whom he often spoke. In the rebellion of 1715, he was employed in conveying troops and baggage from Uxbridge to London. His remains were interred a few days afterwards in Hillingdon church yard, near his father's, who died 40 years ago, exactly at the same age.

RAN away from the subscriber on the 23d of February last a Negro lad named JIM, 19 years of age, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches high, square built, black brown complexion, a small scar under one of his eyes and had one on each cheek, the white of his eyes are mixed with a yellowish red, and a good countenance; he has a hurt in one of his legs which is not perceivable unless he walks buck. His dress when he went away was a blue baize outside jacket lined with green, longer than common—a blue inside ditto half worn. a grey fearnought pair of breeches, a coarse shirt, white yarn stockings and two pair of shoes. He is an artful villain and will change both name and dress, and will endeavor (through the means of his father who lives on Fell's Point) to pass for a free man and no doubt will enter on board some vessel as such. This is the 3th time he has run off—He ran away the 3d of January 1831, and was caught in York county, Pennsylvania, and lodged in Little York jail. To a Generous and Enlightened Public.
Hopkins's superior Razor-Strop
AND RAZOR PASTE.
THE experience of years, indefatigable attention and unwearied application, having enabled Hopkins to offer a generous public the fruits of his industry, which, perhaps, stands unrivalled by any human invention for the last five hundred years, or at least, since civilization pointed at the savage appearance of bearded man—and brought forward that era when the Razor-Strop and Paste became indispensably necessary in polished society. It is well understood, that the old adage "Experientia docet," is the best criterion to prove the excellence of this strop... Hopkins is not accustomed to the buffing competition of European charlatans; neither does he claim any merit to himself from the Brilliance of Invention, or the Thousands acquired by his Grand Moter; these who personally know him, know too well he is not of that cast of character, to those who he is only professionally known, he respectfully appeals to their generous bias for merited claim.

To the Voters of the city and county of Batimore.
HAVING been encouraged by many of my friends in the city and county to offer myself as a candidate to be put in nomination for the office of SHERIFF, at the ensuing election, I hope it will not be deemed improper thus early to signify my intention, and to solicit the patronage of my friends generally, and the voters of the city and county at large.

Those who have not a personal knowledge of me, will, on enquiry, find that I have been bred to business, and have been conversant in mercantile transactions from early life—Should my fellow-citizens think proper, at the expiration of the time of the present sheriff, to bestow on me the office, I trust my conduct therein will be such as will give satisfaction, if a diligent attention and a faithful discharge of the duties thereof, are capable of doing the same.
