On the evening of the cold Friday, so fresh in the memory of every one, a Mr. John Johnson who combanded a floop belonging to Norwalk, was beating up to the harbor of that place, when he dropped his mitt in overboard. The boat lying along side of his floop he jumped into it to recover his mixen; but the boat got loofe from the floor, and Mr. J. hafin not having any oar to direct it, it disfied to a considerable diltance, mar Whire's Island, though not near enough to enable him to get on flipe. By this time the tide had fallen, and the him was aground, so that his people could afford him no aillidance. Thus, beiten about by the ice, which fluted down with the tide, he lay till morning when he was taken off, and carried to his house in Norwalk. His limbs and boly we e fo much trozen, that the fleth dro med from his bones. He lived rearly three weeks in the greatest agony when he expired, and left a wife and leveral children to lament his lofs.

Particulars of the loss of the brig William, of New Haven, Joseph Thompson, master from St. Criix, for New York. The brig Williamila ed from St. Cio.x on the 19th January not ingremarkable occurring from that time to the first day of February, on which the made the Capes of Virginia. At 11 o'clock, in the night of the first init. whilst inning to the N. N. E. at the rate of 7 knots, the was Aruck by a large brig. name unknown, on the flarboard bow. with fuch violence as to stave in the whole thereof, from the flein to the fore chains, and rip up the fore part of the main deck. In five minutes the water was above the deck, and the brig fettling down with great velocity, the captain and all hands having ran uson deck at the moment the concustion was felt, saw nothing but the most i am neat dangers furroun ing them. and the only refuse was to the long boat is ip edily as possible—not even a moment could be spared to procure a bicuit or a litte water-without any one and clothing, fave what they had on or any provision whatever Every perion on coard. (13 in number) among who n were Henry Morris Liste, Eiguire, of Milton, in the vicinity of Boston, and forwant, and captain Nathaniel F Chrke, of Mufrd Connecticut, patfengers, gor men the long boat, and in a very cold and housering night, were compelled to trust the delves to the raging ocean. After being in the boat about three hours, a fail ran close to the boat, but all the rendeavorato render their cries audible were fruitles. The dawn of day presented nothing but an extreme rough scene and clouded prospers; at noon some of the men, chilled with cold & exhausted by labor, abandon d the ours, declaring they might as well die at once, as protract an existence which could last only a few moments meet. The aght, however, of a fail, be ring touch, animated their delponding foreits, and impelled them to exertions. At 5 o'clock, P. M. the men on board of her dicovered them; and thouly after took them on board in a situation which campt be dedescribed .- The vessel proved to be the Sal y, of Pairfield, Coune Ricut, Captaill Burr Thorp. to whom the pattengers and crew not only are indebted for the profervation of their lives but we are authorifed to fay feel the tenderest ensible lity for his and his mate, Ezra Morehouse's great attention and humanity.
