The Farmer.

HAVING suffered greatly by insects destroying the plants in my garden, and particularly cucumbers, and having allo learned a remedy for the evil, you are requested to publish the following, for the benefit of the public:

Last year I was more unfortunate than plants, three successive crops having been wholly cut off. But towards the end of June, having heard that Spirits of Turpentine would preserve them, I planted sion of alarms must be submitted to. feed the fourth time, and as foon as the plants had begun to get forward, I procured the spirit and mixed it with about the same quantity of water, with which I lightly touched the ground round the plants; & the confequence was that neither bug nor worms molested the vines, and my or plof cucumbers was as good as any I ever had

Our correspondent subjoins, "the above communication bes made a very serious impression. It is now supposed that part of the Spanish squadron is sent to re-inforce the fleets in the West Indies, while the Fr nch fleet is proceeding along the coast to raise the blockade of the ports." Till some decisive intelligence is received, common in the lofs of my cucumber it is now evident that little dependence can be placed on any information which has hitherto been received, and that till positive assurances are obtained of the views of the enemy's squadrons, a constant succes-

DE LALANDE. * An astronomer of much celebrity.

On Saturday last the British Packer, laying in the harbor of New York, was thruck by lightning, which thivered her main top mall.

Buffon, the celebrated Naturalift, was in the habit of rifing with the Sun, but it was with great difficulty he conquered his na ural indolence. He thus elates the manner in which he accomplished it: 44 In my youth I was extremely fond of fleep, and that fondness robbed me of much time. My poor Joseph (a domestic who ferved him fixty five years) was of the highest utility to me in overcoming it. I promised him a crown for every time he thould make me get up at 6 o'clock. He failed not next day to rouse and torment me-I abused him. He came the day following, and I threstened him. "Friend Joseph," faid I to him at moon, " you have gained nothing, and I have lost my time. You don't know how to manage the marter. Think only on my promit, and never leed my threatenings." The day following he accomplained his point. I begged, entreated then abused, and would Lave turned i.im off. He raifed me by absolute force; and had his reward every day for my ill humor in the moment of waking-my thanks and a crown an hour after. I owe to poor Joseph at least ten or twelve volumes of my were."
