Zeration.—Professor Robertson, now at Petersburg, proposes in the second volume of the Archæologia Nova to make a balloon which shall be 15 feet in diameter, shall bear 74,000 lbs. and in which fifty persons, provided with provisions and other necessaries may embark for several months, and thus be enabled to make physical and astronomical experiments, at every height of the atmosphere, in all seasons, in all weathers, and upon every point of the earth, that may be judged suitable.

GALVANISM.—Doctor Albini, now in London, lately exhibited at the house of Mr. Hunter, some curious experiments on the body of a dog newly killed, by which the company then present were exceedingly astonished by the powers of Galvanism. The head of the animal was cut off. The head and body were put beside each other on a table, previously rubbed with a solution of ammonia. Two wires, communicating with the Galvane through, were then applied, the one in the ear, the other at the anus of the dead animal.—No sooner had these applications been made than both head and body were thrown into the most animated muscular motions. The body started up with a movement by which it puffed away the side of the table. The head equally moved; its lips and teeth grinding violently. A curiosity has been expressed to have these experiments tried on a criminal newly executed. Dr. Albini communicated his discoveries in an ingenious paper, to the Royal Society.

HISTORY OF JERUSALEM.
According to Manetho, an Egyptian Historian, Jerusalem was founded by the shepherds, who invaded Egypt in an unknown period of antiquity. According to Josephus, it was the capital of Melchizedek's kingdom, and built in honor of that prince, by twelve neighboring kings. We know nothing of it with certainty, however, till the time of King Dav d, who took it from the Jebusites and made it the capital of his kingdom. It was first taken in the days of Jehoash, by Hazael, king of Assyria, who slew all the nobility, but did not destroy their city.
It was afterwards taken by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, who destroyed it and carried away the inhabitants. Seventy years afterwards permission was granted by Cyrus, king of Persia, to the Jews to rebuild their city, which was done; and it continued the capital of Judea till the time of Vespasian, emperor of Rome, by whose son Titus it was totally destroyed.

It was, however rebuilt, by Adrian, and seemed likely to recover its former grandeur; but it flourished for a short time only. When the empress Helena, mother of Constantine the great, came to visit it, she found it in a most forlorn and ruinous situation.

Having formed a design of restoring it to its ancient splendor, she carried, with a great deal of cost and labor, all the rubbish which had been thrown upon those places where our Saviour had suffered, been buried, &c. to be removed.
In doing this, they found the cross on which he died, as well as those of the two malefactors who suffered with him. She then caused a magnificent church to be built which enclosed as many relics of our Saviour's sufferings as could conveniently be done.

This church, which stands on Mount Calvary, is still in good repair, being supported by the donations of pilgrims who are resorting to it. Here is to be seen our Saviour's sepulchre, in the form of a solid rock; and the very stone in the rock in which it is laid the blood of the cross was fixed, with many other relics.

On Mount Moria stood an celebrated temple of Solomon, which was seven years in building, and employed more than 160,000 men. The number of stonemasons on one side was at least 9000, and of the stones employed about 3,000,000, according to Josephus, 40 cubits high, 12 thick, and 8 high, all of polished marble, and so well joined as to appear as one solid rock.

After the demolition of this temple, it is said that the emperor Julian attempted to rebuild it in order to rally our nation to profane, namely, that it should be totally destroyed without any attempt to be made upon another. In this, however, he was defeated by earthquake, fire, lightning, &c. which destroyed his materials, and killed many of his workmen.

At present, Jerusalem is but a poor, sparsely inhabited town, about three miles in circumference, surrounded with a wall, and on all files except the north, walls, towers, and sentinels.

Amongst the papers which Sir William Jones was found to possess, was a prayer, composed by him on the first day of the year 1783, about 15 months before his embarkation for India, more than 12 years before his death.

A PRAYER.
Eternal and incomprehensible God, who, by the boundless power before thee began, created'st innumerable worlds for thy glory, and innumerable orders of beings for thy happiness, which thy infinite goodness prompted thee to desire, and thy infinite wisdom enabled thee to know! we, thy creatures, vanish into nothing before thy supreme majesty; we hourly feel our weakness; we daily bewail our vices; we continually acknowledge our folly; we only we adore with awed veneration; thee we thank with the most fervent zeal; thee we praise with astonishment and rapture; to thy power we humbly submit; of thy goodness we devoutly implore protection; in thy wisdom we firmly and cheerfully rely. We do but open our eyes, and instantly we perceive thy divine existence; we do but exert our reason, and in a moment we discover thy divine attributes; but our eyes could not behold thy splendor, nor could our minds comprehend thy divine essence; we see thee only through thy stupendous and all perfect works; we know thee by that ray of light, which it hath pleased thee to reveal. Nevertheless, if creatures too ignorant to conceive, and too depraved to pursue the means of their own happiness, may, without presumption express their wants to their Creator, let us humbly supplicate thee to remove from us that evil, which thou hast permitted for a time to exist, that the ultimatum of all may be complete, and to secure us from that vice, which thou sufferest to spread around us, that the triumph of virtue may be more conspicuous. Irradiate our minds with all us ful truth; insinuate into our hearts a spirit of general benevolence; give understanding to the foolish; grace to the proud; temperance to the dissolute; fortitude to the feeble hearted; hope to the desponding; faith to the unbelieving; diligence to the slothful; patience to those who are in pain; and thy celestial aid to those who are in danger; comfort the afflicted; relieve the distressed; apply the balm of salutary food, and the thirsty with a plentiful stream. Impute not our debts to indifference, nor our slowness of belief to hardness of heart; but be indulgent to our imperfect nature, and supply our imperfections by thy heavenly favor. "Suffer not, we anxiously pray, suffer not oppression to prevail over innocence, nor the might of the avenger, over the weakness of the just." Whenever we address thee in our retirement from the vanities of the world, if our prayers are foolish, pity us; if presumptuous, pardon us; if acceptable to thee grant them, all powerful GOD, grant them, and, as with our living voice, and with our dying lips, we will express our submission to thy decrees, adore thy providence, and bless thy dispensations, so, in all future states, to which we reverently hope thy goodness will raise us, grant that we may continue praising, admiring, venerating, worshiping, these more and more, through eternity without number, and ages without end.

EPICURAM.
"IF Nature never sets a part in us,
"Who (said an Atheist) shall it be to us,
"Why in the glow-worm does her power pre-
"Such a wish lustre, for so little use."
A plain blunt fellow, who, by chance, stood by,
Heard what he said, and made him this reply:
"Nature (saith he) explains her own design;
"She meant to furnish all pride like things,
"When'er an insect tail such like she spread,
"And left such business in a cockcomb's head."

ANECDOTE OF MILTON.
It is well known, that in the bloom of youth, and when he pursued his studies at Cambridge, this Poet was extremely beautiful. Wandering one day during the summer, far beyond the precincts of the University, into the country, he became so heated and fatigued, that, reclining himself at the foot of a tree to rest, he fell asleep. Before he awoke, two soldiers, who were foreigners, passed by in a carriage. Agreeably astonished at the loveliness of his appearance, they alighted, and having admired him (as they thought) unperceived for some time, the youngest, who was very handsome, drew a pistol from his pocket, and having written for a few moments on a piece of paper, put it with her trembling hand into his own. Immediately afterwards, they proceeded on their journey. Some of his acquaintances, who were in search of him had observed this silent adventure, but at too great a distance to discover that the highly favored party in it was our illustrious bard. Approaching nearer, they saw their friend, to whom being awakened, they mentioned what had happened. Milton opened the paper, and with surprise read the verses from Guarini, of which, the following is a translation:
"Ye eyes! Ye human stars! Ye authors of my loveliest charms! If that, when I sleep, ye wound me, what must have proved the consequence had ye been open?"

Eager from this event to find out the authors, Milton travelled, but in vain, through every part of Italy. His poetic talents became incessantly more and more heated by the idea of which he had heard of his own admirer, and it is in consequence, to reach to his own times, the most famous, and the latest poetry, were felt to be inferior to his for several of the most distinguished and charming compositions of the Pasquillo Lati.

VENERIAL COMPLAINTS.

AS Dr. WARNER'S practice has been very extensive both in public and private, daily experience convinces him of the propriety of his method of removing the venereal disease, in preference to any medicine vended or known in Baltimore. He has removed the most desperate cases with ease and dispatch, after the failure of some of the ablest physicians both in Europe and America. Complaints of the urinary passages and debility thereof, from various causes and accidents, removed in the shortest possible space of time.
—As there are persons from various causes cannot personally apply, it may be necessary to inform them, they may be relieved free of description of their complaint.
Dr. W. warrants a cure in all cases. Masters of vessels and travellers may have their medicine so prepared that a safe, effectual and expeditious cure may be effected, without the least restriction in diet or dress.
N. B. Dr. Warner has removed from Cumberland Row to Conway street, next door to the corner of Hanover street, opposite the Rev. Mr. Otterbach's, near the Dutch church.
