FOR THE AMERICAN.

Messrs. Editors,

JULY the fourth, at about two from Gonaives—coffee—J. Calwell. o'clock, P. M. there arose a dark cloud to the south east, and indicated a severe thunder-gust; it however approached no nearer than about half way between Canton, the seat of colonel O'Donnel, and Fell's Point, where there was a charming shower of rain, which lasted about twenty minutes, accompanied by some little thunder. During the rain, there was a

I am at a loss to give any philosophical reason, why the rain did not reach the Point, but stopt so little short of it, and last so long, with the wind blowing a gale immediately from where it was raining. It is, in my opinion, a phenomenon not to be accounted for easily. I have frequently seen the rain fall at different places around me at the same time, and where I was not a drop fell; but I always observed at such times, that at the point from which we received the wind we had a clear horizon, which was hot the case in this instance. The opinion of philosophical gentlemen, as to the cause of this uncommon occurrence would no doubt be gratifying to many of your readers, and particularly to the CURIOUS.

Extract from Rathbone, Hughes and Duncan's Liverpool Price Current, for May 25.

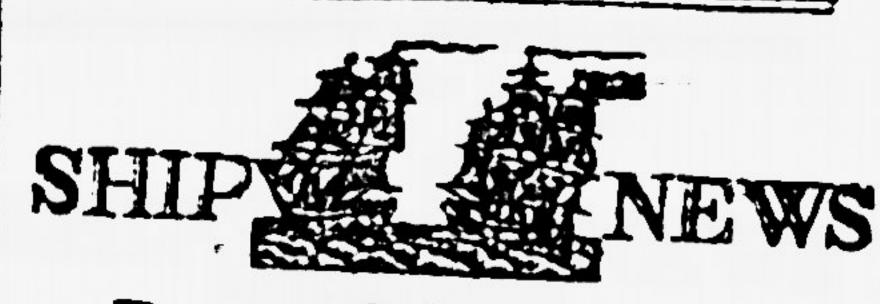

"The importations of cotton into this port since the commencement of this year have been greater than usual, but into other ports considerably less, and from the best calculation we can form, we are of opinion, that the importations in the kingdom have been about the usual supply. The stock in this market is now about 60,000 bags. The demand for the manufactured article continues very limited, and the purchasers have succeeded in reducing the prices.considerable under the quotations of our last Price Current, since the date of which, until within the last ten days, few sales have been made, but during the present week, the demand for the raw material has considerably increased, and about 3000 or 4000 bags in all have been sold; they chiefly consist of Uplands; the prices at which the holders made the first sales of this description, New-York, which vessel having been were at from 16d to 16 1-2d per lb. but some advance is now asked, and one Jago on the 8th of June. Left, not prizes, parcel of a fine quality, has been sold at ship John Langdon, of Baltimore, loading: 18c' per lb. the present current price for | ship Fanny, Kitchen, of Philadelphia, do. such as is of a good quality is from 17 brig Hero, Muirhead; and schr. Franklin, to 17 1-2d per lb. but most of the principal holders will not sell at these prices, in the expectation that there will be a greater demand for the manufactured article, and if this takes place, the prices of the raw materials will advance.

"The quantity arrived from New Orleans is as yet but small: but supplies Taylor was boarded by the French privaare expected soon, the quality of that which is come to market, is not, upon the whole, equal to that of the last year's, the prices at which this description has been sold this week, are from 30 to 21 1-2d per lb. the observations respecting Uplands apply to New Orleans.

"The demand for Sea-Island and ca. Bourbon is completely suspended, unless at prices from 4d to 6d per lb. under the quotations in our last Price Current, and some of the holders, being under the the necessity of disposing of their stocks, at from 6d to 9d per lb: under what has been giren for similar qualities.

that cotton has been at its lowest price for some time to come, and that prices will advance in proportion as the demand. for the manufactured article increases."

E. side where there was an opening out to sea. On the morning of the 26th, the weathe. became stormy, and the wind which was about W.S. W. blew at times in violent gusts, in one of which, at about eight o'clock on the morning of the 17th, at the spinning wheel and chair. she parted one of her caules; from that time till 8 o'clock in the following evening she remained riding by her best bow-, er, when from a change of the wind round to S. S. W. which increased the swell where the ship was riding, and the circumstances of the frequent flashes of lightning in the S. E. and the danger in a rocky anchorage of having the cable chaffed off before morning, it was concluded by the officers and seamen on board, that the safety of themselves and the ship required that she should be run out to sea immediately. Accordingly the cable was cut, and as it would be unsafe to return to the Island without cables and anchors, it was resolved to proceed direct for New-York. - Captain: Lasher was on shore during the gale, and could not get on board the ship, of course he was left there, as was about two hundred tons pepper, which was part of the cargo that had been taken out to lighten her, and which there was no opportunity to take on board bebefore the gale came on.-Edward Perreck, who was first officer during the former part of the voyage, now has the com-
