MYER'S CITY TAVERN:

HE subscriber respectfully acquaints his friends and the public in general, that he has removed from his old tavern stand, to the adjoining bouses on the Pennsylvania Avenue, lately occupied by Mrs. Wilson as a boarding house, and Mr. Woodward's taven, in which he is now opening a complete hotel. The stand is probably not excelled by any in the city, either. for the accommodation of travellers or boarders-t-being at a convenient and almost equal distance from the capitol, the president's house, and public offices; near the theatre, Messrs. Ways' printing-office, and centre market; opposite the office of the National Intelligencer and adjoining Mr. Duane's book-store.-These houses contain twenty-six lodging rooms, with fire places, exclusive of dining, bar, assembly and coffee rooms, servants apartments, &c. The celebrated ridge-spring, is conveyed in pipes to the yard of this hetel, where it supplies the whole neighbourhood with flowing, cool water, to which the general health of this part of the city has in a general measure been attributed. The stabling of the hotel now erected is considerable; more however will be completed before the meeting of congress. I now beg leave to inform my friends with confidence, that my prices shall be as heretofore, corresponding with Pennsylvania tavern rates; and in proportion as my elbow-room has increased, my disposition to please shall be enlarged: I therefore respectfully hope the continuance of a share of the public patronage.

DISTRICT OF MARYLAND-TO WILL DE it Remembered, That on the eleventh day of February, in the twenty-ninth year of the independence of the United States of America, John D. Colvin, of the said district, hath deposited in this office the title of a book, the right whereof he claims as author, in the following words, to wit:

A Magistrate's Guide, AND CITIZEN'S COUNSELLOR;

A Digested Abstract of those Laws of the state of Maryland most necessary to be known, and most useful in common transactions of life.

Interspersed with a variety of Practical Forms & Precedents, For the use of Justices of the Peace and others,

BY JOHN B.COLVIN.

In conformity to the & of the Congress of the United States, entitled, " An act for the encouragement of learning, by fecuring the copies of Maps, Charts and Books, to the authors or proprietors of fuch copies, during the times therein mentioned."

PHILIP MOCRE, Cik. D.C.

To the Citizens of Maryland.

THE above work has been for some time past in th press, and is in considerable forwardness, and will be published with ali possible expedition.

It is a maxim which has been long eftabilithed, that " ignorance of the law exenseth no man;" and the reason of it is obvious: For if ignorance of the law were admitted as a just plea, laws would be without force, and consequently useiels. As it is out of the power of our government to promulgate its laws in fuch a way as to communicate them to every individual of the community, it is necessary for every man to furnish himself with the means of information to a degree sufficient to enable him to discharge the duties of his station as a citizen of a free state. This is what he owes to his country. To himself he owes more. It is every man's interest to be acquainted with the laws of his own government sufficiently to enable him to avoid the shoals and quicksands of legal controversy, on which ignorance of the law might throw him, and occasion his happiness likewise. It is not only merits of the bookevery man's interest, but it is every man's duty to his family to endes or to under- SIR, stand enough of the acts of assembly and of the forms and proceedings in the administration of justice, to enable him to preserve his estate in a legal way, transact in a proper manner the business of life according to rule, to be able to recover his debts; and he ought to know the relative duties of one citizen to another.

The above work is an attempt to convey principles which are in force in Maryland. Matters that relate to accounts, and the evidence of debts, to administration of the cstates of deceased persons, apprentices, articles of agreement, assignments, attachments, arrests, bonds, bails, bills, bastardy, conveyancing, conflables, contracts, dowers, deeds, distress, executions, escape, evidence, felony, forgery, gaming, goal, goaler, guardians, homicide indictment, information, judgment, jurors, (and their duties,) justices of the peace, larceny, lewdness, libel, misdemeanor, nuisance, oaths, pardon, perjury, poligamy, the poor, presentment, prison-breaking, rape, recognizance, rescue, riot, robbery, search-warrants, sheriff, (his duties). flander, surety for the peace, slaves, treafon, vagrants, warrants, wills, and a variety of other things, which it would be extremely tedious to describe at large, will be contained in this work. Besides laying down the law under each head; forms and precedents will be introduced for the information of magistrates and others. These will confist of precepts used by justices of the peace in the discharge of the duties of their station, and copies of all manner of inftfuments of writing used in bargaining, selling, and conveying every species of property, agreeably to the laws of Mary- i at this office, and by the different buokland. Under the bead of accounts particular egre has been taken to arrange all the evidence of debts, the manner and form of proof; and under the head of administration, the compiler has been careful to insert every thing that can be serviceable to executors and administrators. A very correct copy of a will is laid down, and the number of witnesses and manner of proving it explained, with respect to real and personal property. Marking and bounding land has occupied much attention, and the law and method of proceeding, together with the returns of commissioners are correctly stated. In short, whatever can he of service to the magistrate or to the citizen, has been carefully considered, and inserted in the book. To justices of the peace the work will be extremely valuable, and to the people at large of great benefit.

It has often been contended that in a free government every citizen has a right to participate equally in the offices of the state. To this proposition I have always assented; but at the same time I have uniformly thought there was another right not altogether unimportant; which is, that the community have a right to expect that every citizen should be qualified for the There which he fills. These two rights should go hand in hand. There is no office in the gift of our state executive of more importance or which may be more easily abused than that of a justice of the peace; and it not only requires a man of strong and good sense to fill it properly, but one somewhat acquainted with the fundamental principles of law in general, and with our local laws in particular: A knowledge of the latter in some degree, is, in tact, indispensably requisite: But as justices of the peace are generally and very properly appointed from among the honest and independent part of the citizens of the several counties, whose thoughts have been turned to other pursuits in common, but who, nevertheless, have sound understandings, it is not to be expected that they can at once dive into the hage quarto volumes of Kilty's compilation and drag thence the pith and marrow of the atts of affembly, and at the same time learn the form and manner of iffuing innumerable precepts required by their official duty. Hence the great necessity for a work embracing all these particulars in a smail compass, so as to form a complete Guide and Counsellor.

The duties of jurars have been stated with precision; and as every man is liable to serve the public in that capacity, that topic alone will render the book of general

Although I have thus copiously dwelt upon the advantages and merits of this work, I by no means conceive that it will be free from some sew impersections : not do I arrogate to myself the sole merit of collecting the firms and precedents tughther. I am by no means desirous to factifice truth in this particular to my vanity, I have had very able assistance from a sew weil insormed friends, whose difinterested services have been of incalculable use to me; and without which, indeed, I should have found myfelf at a great lofs for those numerous practical forms which the work will contain, amounting in the whole to more than two hundred. It would take an individual years, perhaps, to gather fo large a collection, and they might at last be incorrect: Whereas the above book will furnish the whole at once, and in a proper form.

The following letter from judge Duvill, (to whom the first eighty pages of the work had been submitted alter coming the wreck of his fortune, and, perhaps, of | from the press) will convey some idea of the " Washington, Desember 27, 1804.

I have received your letter inclosing eighty pages of a work prepared by you, in which you have begun a digest of those parts of the laws of Maryland which more frequently occur in the common transactiions of life, and which are therefore deemed the most useful.

I have perused it and have no hesitation in pronouncing the utility of such a work. to the people of Maryland in as concise a. The law appears to be carefully abstracted, manner as possible, correct knowledge of | and the forms well chosen. It will be the provisions of those acts of assembly found useful to magistrates and to the which are most necessary to be known and | people in general, and merits their patronunderstood by the citizens of the state at | age. It is adapted more particularly to large, together with some common law ! the information of those who have not the means of purchasing, and the leisure to examine our laws at large. In a free government, the laws cannot be too extenfively circulated; and he who adds to the diffusion of a knowledge of them, contributes to increase the comforts and happiness of society, and deserves their enculgement and support.

I am, with respect and esteem. Your obedient servants
