Columbian Inn—continued. ISAAC CAUSTEN. Respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has leased for a term of years, commencing the 11th day of December next, that extensive well known house, the Columbian Inn, one door above the corner of Howard in Baltimore-street. To those acquainted with the superior convenience and situation of this valuable property, nothing need be said. To strangers it may be necessary to observe, that it is situated in the most pleasant and healthy part of the city, and surrounded with respectable mercantile houses, therefore obvious to the convenience of country merchants, travellers &c. To this extensive establishment, I. Causten, solicits the patronage of his friends and a generous public, and begs leave to assure them every thing on his part shall be exerted to merit and secure their approbation. November 27

For Sale, ONE fifth part of an undivided LOT of Land, situated and lying on the corner of Hanover and Barre-streets, viz. 172 feet on Hanover and 132 feet on Barre-street. This lot is a desirable situation, and commands a complete view of the city, and also of the shipping below the Bodkin; and is subject to a ground rent of the small sum of 40c. per annum. Also, A LOT in Frederick-street, situated and lying in Frederick-street, 32 feet front and running 166 feet back; and also, a LOT situated and lying in Old-town, running 150 feet on the old mill road, and 75 feet deep, in fee simple.—All or either of which will be sold on a long credit, or bartered for dry goods, as may be agreed on. Indisputable titles will be given. For terms apply to the subscriber, who can be seen at Mr Frederick Prill's, Gay-street. PETER DALEY. September 25

For Sale, A TRACT OF LAND in Baltimore county, containing about six hundred acres; 4 hundred of which are sowed to be in wood. On this tract there is a handsome piece of meadow, and a young thriving apple orchard. This land is about 26 miles from the city of Baltimore, and not far from Colonel O'Donnell's country residence, purchased of Mr. William Buchanan.

ALSO, A TRACT OF LAND containing about 300 acres, about 14 miles from the city of Baltimore, west of Randall's town. On this last mentioned tract there is a stone dwelling HOUSE, just finished, with convenient cellars, two rooms and a passage on the first floor three rooms and a passage on the second floor, and a garret; a new stone stable, corn house and coach house; an overseer's house with two rooms, lately repaired at the expense of two hundred dollars; kitchen and other out houses, an excellent apple orchard, with other good fruit trees, and good garden. On both places there is water, not exceeded in the county; and good clover lots. No place can exceed them in respect of health. There is a proportionate part of woodland on the last place. I will permit the purchasers to send the ensuing fall, or I would send for them. The dwelling house on the last mentioned farm might be immediately taken possession of by the purchaser. Presuming that no person will purchase without viewing the premises, I do not go into detail. Both of the above places are convenient to mills: there is a mill not more than a quarter of a mile from the last mentioned place; a good neighbourhood, and the Episcopal and Presbyterian churches within five miles. An indisputable title will be given on the payment of the purchase money. JOHN SCOTT, St. Paul's Lane, Baltimore

(From our Correspondent.) FOREIGN NEWS. From French papers, received at the office of the New-York Commercial Advertiser. PARIS, August 3.

By the last English papers, it appears that the disquietudes renewed at London upon the destination of the combined fleets were not yet calmed; neither were the people more at ease as to the co-operation of the continental powers, with which the ministry flattered themselves. In France, this incertitude has not influenced the price of stocks. Hence it may be concluded that either people do not believe a war will take place on the continent, or that they are in no dread of its results. The suspension of the diplomatic relations between France and Russia, may have given rise to incertitudes; but there is yet no plausible reason for doubting of the pacific disposition of Austria; and until such reason appears, professed politicians may, we conceive, adjourn their conjectures. Exaggerated pretensions, self-love, hurt or irritated by foreign provocations, may for a moment delude sovereigns like other men; but in the end they always yield to an evident interest. It may then appear doubtful that Russia should again consent to sacrifice a fine army in a war from which she can reap no benefit, unless, indeed, calculating the losses, she foresees they will diminish the power of Austria, she may always consider as a neighbor with whom she must soon have to discuss more serious interests. But, supposing Russia to have hostile views, does it follow that Austria must share them? This is a question no way difficult to solve. A coalition between Russia and Austria against France, must be considered by every man who reflects upon the respective position of the three nations, as the most absurd and impolitic scheme that could be imagined.—A league is natural between two nations, when they have a common interest to guide them, and equal benefits to expect. Here every thing being separate, every thing unequal, there are essential seeds of dissolution. Let Russia again send an army into Germany or Italy! the war would necessarily be carried on upon the territory of the emperor of Austria, his people alone would bear the load of it. Should it turn out to be successful, jealousy must soon divide the chiefs of the two armies. The Russians would complain of making conquests for others; hence the distrust and discord of which the coalition of last war felt the fatal effects. If, on the contrary, the war should happen to be unsuccessful, the Austrians would not fail to grow tired of harboring incommensurable and useless guests, and the coalition would the more speedily be dissolved. But, it will be said, Austria might give indemnities to Russia, towards the north and east. A sad policy, indeed, to give up empires to obtain a few petty provinces! That there has long subsisted in the Russian cabinet a system to subdue successively the small independent nations, situate between Russia and the Persian and Turkish dominions, events have sufficiently proved.—That that cabinet has even formed more serious designs with regard to the Ottoman Porte, cannot at this day be doubted.—In this state of things, is it more important for Austria to retain France at the foot of the Alps, than to stop Russia at the northern extremity of the Black Sea? It may be recollected, that when the Ottoman empire was in its full splendor, Austria, forgetting all her quarrels with France, thought only of supporting the barrier which she opposed to the progress of the Mussulmans.—However, at that period she was menaced only upon one point; she had only Hungary to defend; Poland was a powerful ally; all the christian powers afforded her assistance.—At the present day Russia shows herself more powerful and more dangerous; she is able to attack on every point. Were it true that she meditated the usurpation of the Ottoman empire, what indemnity could secure the emperor of Austria? Throughout the whole of that vast monarchy there is only Servia, the Morea with Constantinople and the exclusive possession of the Dardanelles, that could afford him an equivalent. But can any body doubt that Servia, the theatre of the present seditions and anarchy, is on the point of imploring the protection of Russia? who but knows that the sovereignty of the Seven Islands seems already to necessitate that of the Morea; and has not Constantinople been looked upon for this century past as a palace destined at some future day for the residence of the Russian emperors? Thus, in the supposition of their aggrandizement, we can see no reasonable compensation for Austria. It is her manifest interest then to guard against this extension with more precaution than she formerly took against that of the Ottoman power, to side with the causes of the South rather than with that of the North. In this all the continental nations have the same wish to form, viz. that the energy of the French Government may communicate itself to the others; that Persia, and above all the Ottoman Porte, may assume civil and military manners more adapted to the defence of their liberty; that these Powers, once independent, may form with those of Europe a family, in which the equilibrium of the political fortunes may henceforth not permit any of those revolutions which re-plunge nations into barbarism, and destroy for several centuries the benefits of civilization. Advices from Corfu state that a Russian General there commands eight battalions of Albanese and Maniots, all determined enemies of the Mussulman name. These levies have excited great displeasure amongst the Turks of the Morea, and particularly of Ali-Pacha. The Seraglio also is highly discontented with the mode of conduct adopted by Russia, but what can it do, weak as it is? Be silent, and thus perhaps receive the blow a little later.—Moniteur. By an imperial decree, the members of the Legion of Honor are to be augmented by 2000. The Grand Chancellor of the Legion is to present, before the 1st of Vendemiaire next, the nomination of his Majesty the Emperor and King, the 2000 new Legionaries, who, for this time, are to be chosen from among the officers and soldiers who have distinguished themselves in the war, and who have received at least one wound. NASSAU, September 8.

Court of Vice-Admiralty. Brig Unanimis, Grant, master, schooner Olive-Branch, Smith, master, schooner Mary, Robertson, master, captured by the privateer ship of war, Alexandrine, M'Kee, commander, in the port of Nevisas, Cuba, and sent into this port for adjudication. The master of the brig Unanimis, and schooner Olive-Branch, after having been examined upon the standing interrogatories, abandoned their ships and departed from these islands; the court of admiralty, therefore, not finding sufficient grounds for condemnation in the allegation of Mr. Keer, the counsel for the captors, could not decree restitution for want of claim; but by interlocutory decree, directed the vessels to be sold and the proceeds lodged in the registry of the admiralty, to abide the further order of the court, and time granted for the interposing of a claim in behalf of the true and lawful proprietors. The master of the Mary, interposed a claim to his ship, the cargo having by the crew of the privateer been taken from the king of Spain's stores, at Nevisas, and shipped in her. The court in this cause decreed, restitution of the ship to the claimant, and directed 1027 dollars to be paid to the master, by the captors, for freight and demurrage.

Electioneering.—"A Voter," and "A Plain Democrat" shall both appear tomorrow. "A Countryman" shall receive early attention.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE. YESTERDAY being the commencement of Canton Races, the first day's purse of 300 dollars, was won by general Ridgely's bay mare Lavinia, who started alone. This day will be run for over said course, the second day's purse of one hundred dollars, free for all ages, by C. C. Ridgely, of Hampton's, brown horse Poladore, Mr. Green's bay horse Anti-Democrat, and two others, two mile heats, agreeably to the rules of the Baltimore Jockey Club.

Mr. Pechin, IT is with peculiar satisfaction I have observed Mr. John Stephen put in nomination as a fit person to represent us in our next general assembly. The well known capability of this gentleman, will render any panegyric of mine superfluous. His attachment to the cause of republicanism, and his economical observance of the rights of his fellow-citizens, ought to make every individual anxious for his re-election. A FRIEND TO MERIT.

FOR THE AMERICAN. Mr. Pechin, THE importance of electing Delegates to our State Legislature, cannot be too highly estimated: permit me, therefore, through the medium of your useful paper, to call the attention of my fellow-citizens, to a subject which, lately, appears to have been, perhaps, not even considered in a secondary point of view. The jarring interests of the Banks and their Charters, seem to occupy the place of the more important principles of general politics. The time has been, when, if a candidate for the Assembly were proposed, the questions first asked would be, Is he a Republican? Is he a friend to the constitution and the Jeffersonian administration? But now, with us at least, it would seem that the enquiry of primary importance is, Is he or is he not subject to Bank influence? For my own part, it is my wish that all such distinctions should be left out of the question, or if they must weigh, that it be but in a secondary degree. Let us choose such men as are favorable to the people's rights, and Democratic Republicanism; and not those who would deprive the poor and laborious of the most important of all rights, that of suffrage. I have heard of several nominations—one in particular, I
