A SHORT CATECHISM.
Q. What was the value of imports to the United States in the year 1864?
A. Eighty million of dollars.
Q. What was the value of exports from the United States in the year 1864?
A. Seventy-seven million, six hundred, ninety nine thousand, and seventy-four dollars.
Q. How much did the imports exceed the exports in the United States the last year?
A. Two million, three hundred thousand, nine hundred and twenty six dollars.
Q. When a nation's imports exceed its exports, how is the balance paid?
A. The excess is payable in cash; and in such case the balance of trade is unfavorable to the nation; upon the whole is carried out of the country than it is brought in.

Q. What is the import of a nation generally, excepted sports, what will be the result?
A. That it will be a source of wealth, and will improve the nation's condition. As a nation's imports exceed its exports, it is a source of wealth, and will improve the nation's condition. As a nation's imports exceed its exports, it is a source of wealth, and will improve the nation's condition.
