From the SALEM REGISTER.
Treaty with Tripoli and "The Mediterranean Fund."—This fund arises from the two and an half per cent. duty on goods previously paying an ad-valorem duty and took effect in July, 1804. It was to continue during the war with the Barbary powers, and three months notice was to be given by the President's proclamation, that peace was concluded. The duty will then cease unless continued by congress, (which will be then in session.) Perhaps however, it may be found for the interest of the country to reduce the duty on Salt, and some other necessaries of life, in lieu of the 2 1-2 per cent. on manufactured goods, and so by an exchange of duty, equalize the tax on the citizens more than the present proportion on some articles is found to have done.
If hostilities should unfortunately break out with Tunis, one of the Barbary states, the duty alluded to will be still in force, and the President will not in all probability issue the proclamation, giving notice of its cessation. A doubt also may arise, whether the Senate will ratify the Treaty with Tripoli, in all its provisions.
(For we are not in reality at peace with that piratical state, until the treaty receives the constitutional sanction of the Senate, and with respect to its money and commercial stipulations, until the assent of congress, generally, including the House of Representatives, is also obtained;) and should the treaty be rejected, which is not probable—things will remain where they are. The prisners are released, and the 60,000 dollars ransom no doubt is already paid. Here is a bargain already concluded, and it appears that we need not agree to it by a formal act of government, if it is not approved. We shall then avoid the censure of giving a national sanction to an instrument which stipulates the payment of money for the liberation of American citizens from slavery. We only throw out these hints for the knowing federal editors to comment upon if they please—by no means wishing to be understood as condemning the treaty with Tripoli; for as we know not its provisions, it would be the height of folly to give any decided opinion on the subject. But we cannot refuse to rejoice at the emancipation of our countrymen from barbarian chains, and most sincerely do we offer our congratulations on their safe and happy return to their families and friends, and more to breathe American air, and taste the blessings of freedom.

BOULOGNE, July 13.
The following is the speech of His Imperial and Royal Majesty, Napoleon I. to the General and Elders of the republic of Lucca, when they presented to him the constitutional Decree, which treat his Imperial and Royal Majesty to bestow on the state of Lucca a new political constitution, and to entrust the government thereof to a Prince of his family, and to his male successor in perpetuity, to the exclusion of females:
"M. GOSTALONNIER, General Deputee of the Elders and People of Lucca, "My Minister at your Republic has informed me of the step you are taking. He has acquainted me with all the sincerity of it. The Republic of Lucca, without force and without armies, found its guarantee, during past ages, in the general law of the empire on which it was dependent. I at this day consider as a charge attached to my crown, the obligation of conciliating the several parties which may divide the interior of your country.
"The Republics of Florence, of Pisa, of Sienna, of Bologna, and all other small Republics which, in the 14th century, divided Italy, which experience from thence the same inconveniences: All have been agitated by popular faction and by that of the nobles. It is only then from the conciliation of these different interests that tranquility and good order can proceed. The constitution you have had for these three years, is weak; I was apprehensive that it could not attain its object. If I have never answered the complaints which have been often addressed to me by the different classes of your citizens, it is that I felt that there are inconveniences which have their origin in the nature of things, and for which there is no remedy but when the different classes of the State enlightened, are all united in one & the same thought, that of affording a guarantee in the establishment of a strong & constitutional government. I shall now accomplish your wishes—I shall confide the government of your people to a person who is dear to me by the ties of blood—I shall lay upon him the obligation of constantly respecting your constitutions. He will be only animated with the desire of fulfilling this first duty of a Prince, the impartial distribution of justice.
He will equally protect all the citizens, who, if they be unequal by fortune, will, however, all be equal in his eyes. He will acknowledge no other difference between them than that proceeding from their merit, their services, and their virtue.
"On your side, the people of Lucca will be sensible of all the confidence I place in them, and will have for their new Prince sentiments that children owe to their father, citizens to their Supreme Magistrate, and subjects to their Prince.—In the general movements of affairs, it will be for me a grateful and consolatory sentiment to know that the people of Lucca are happy, contented and without any apprehension upon their future destinies; I shall continue to be for your country a protector who will never be indifferent to its fate."

SALEM, October 3.
THE HOSTILE FLEETS.
On the 5th of August dispatches arrived in England from admiral Calder, stating that the combined fleet had got into Ferrol, and made up a force of 37 sail of the line. By captain Williams, from Gibraltar, we were informed of their arrival at Cadiz just before his sailing; but their amount, with those in Cadiz, was reported to be only 35 sail. Mr. Burnett, a gentleman belonging to New York, who arrived here on Saturday, in the Mary, from St. Lucar informed us that he was in Cadiz a few days before the sailing of the Mary; that there were then 6 ships of the line there, among which were the Triumphant of 144 guns, a 50, an 80, and 74's; and that while at St. Lu-car the combined fleet arrived at Cadiz, stated to be only 25 sail. The English squadron before Cadiz, of 7 sail, withdrew on their approach, and were supposed to have gone to join some other squadron of the British. In addition to this, the Cartagena squadron of 8 sail of the line was coming down when captain Williams left Gibraltar, and was supposed would have a favourable wind to pass the Gut.

The British had then at Gibraltar only 4 sail of the line under sir Richard Bickerton.
We have now an account by a Marblehead vessel, that on or about the 25th of August, there had been an engagement with the combined fleet and the British, in which 12 sail of the line of the former, were taken, and one sunk. No name of the English commander, nor other particulars, are mentioned.
It is however not improbable that when the Cartagena squadron arrived off Cadiz, the whole French and Spanish force might have confidence to go into the bay of Biscay, with a design to raise the blockade of Brest. In such an attempt they would be liable to be encountered by an English fleet, which might be supported by that time to be proceeding towards Cadiz to look after them. If such a meeting should have taken place, the conflict might have been as stated.

COMMERCIAL DAILY ADVERTISER.
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1805

John Muir and Arthur Shaff, esquires, are elected Delegates to represent the City of Annapolis in the ensuing General Assembly.

Lloyd Dorsey and Joshua Clarke Higgins, ander Conner, and Henry A. Callis, esquires, for Prince-George's county.

Monday last was the day of Election throughout the State of Maryland, for Delegates to the General Assembly. In Frederick County there was no opposition of any kind to republicanism. The following are the number of votes given for each of the candidates:—

[Frederick-town Advocate.]

Extract of a letter from Captain S. Chamberlain, late master of the Brig Molly, dated Laguarda, September 10, 1805.
"It is with regret I inform you of the loss of the Molly. On the 31st of August we parted our bows cable and drove ashore. I had on board 240 bags of Cocoa, which were all saved; the remainder of her cargo was to have gone on board next day. The cargo must now be shipped to any parts of the continent in different bottoms; as this article is perishable in this country. This much for the government of yourself and other shippers, with respect to their insurance, &c.

Big Acorn, Folger, arrived from Nantz, announces no tidings of moment.
The Emperor Napoleon had returned to Paris, from the camp of the coast. It was reported that the camp was breaking up, and the troops filing off towards Germany. And that there had been an action in Brest outer-harbor, between four or five British ships which had attacked an equal number of French ships at anchor—the result not known—and that Antwerp was declared in a state of blockade.

It is certain that our government is determined to add six 74's to our infant navy; the building of one of them, we are confidently informed, is immediately to take place at the Navy, Gosport.
[Norfolk Herald.]
About half past nine last night the town was alarmed by the cry of Fire, which was discovered to be in the jail.
It appeared that a quantity of oakum lodged in a closet adjoining the debtors apartment was on fire, but whether from accident or design we do not understand.
It was happily extinguished without any damage. An article of so combustible a nature as oakum, we think, should not be kept in the jail. Among the duties of the magistrates, that of visiting the jails often, is an important one, as well with the view to the safety and security of the place, as to the alleviation of the condition of those who may be confined.
[Norfolk Ledger.]

MAMMOTH PEAR.
Upon an accurate admeasurement of a pear, which was growing in Ipswich, on the 10th inst. it was found to be 17 inches in circumference lengthwise, 14 crosswise and 7 long. There was another on the same tree of nearly the same dimensions. The rest were of an uncommon size.
What makes it still more remarkable, these pears were growing on boughs, which were grafted four years ago in a small apple tree stock.

turday evening, Mr. WILLIAM LOVELL, to
