FROM FRANCE. The ship Morning-Star, captain Hopkins, arrived at this port yesterday, in 34 days from France; and that the military establishment was to be augmented with 60,000 conscripts. of Denmark is calculated on. The Swedish with all possible expedition. Minister has contradicted the report of the sale of Pomerania to Russia. Bonaparte was on the coast at the date of the last papers. The French Gazettes are full of accounts of the celebration of his birth-day, throughout France, Italy and Holland.

BORDERS OF THE MAINE, AUG. 24. It is said that the Emperor, Napoleon, has sent an important declaration to a certain great Court, in answer to the late note of M. Novosiltzoff, in which his Majesty says, that he accepts, with pleasure, the mediation of that Court to adjust the differences subsisting between him and other powers. Without giving credit to all the reports, it may at least be concluded, from the advanced period of the season, notime that peace has numerous partisans on the continent, who circulate their stories in opposition to the warlike rumours of England.

In one of the public prints has appeared the note which the Prussian Minister, Hardenberg, addressed to the French Minister at Berlin, Laforet, accompanied with the well known declaration of Novosiltzoff The note, dated at Berlin, July 11, is in these terms :

" The undersigned, Minister of State, &c. finds himself, most reluctantly, compelled to communicate, to M. Laforet, Envoy, &c.. of the Emperor of the French, the office with which he is charged by M. Novosiltzofi, of returning the French passport, and of announcing to him the order, which the Emperor of all the Russians has sent him, in consequence of the late changes in Italy, and particularly of the union of the Laguirian Republic with the French Empire, brought in here, captured on her passage from not to pursue his journey into France. The king could not but feel infinite pain at seeing thus confirmed the uneasy suspicion which, since the news of this unexpected event, he has not been able to repress, upon the effect which might result from it relative to the salutary negotiation upon the eve of being opened. The livel: desire for the re-establishment of a general peace, with which his Majesty has not ceased to be mi mated, and which he has so biten manitested, is a sure proof of the painful sensations he experiences upon this occasion."

Paris, August 20. Letters from Naples, dated Aug 2, estimate the damages in that city, by the late earthquake at 84,600,000 francs. The following are extracted from returns made to the government. by commissioners.—In Ibernia the commotion was terrible, the ground opened and vemited stirth flames, and 339 samilies were swallowed.

In Castel l'etroso there perished 132 families, Messino. St. Angelo-in Coila, Barranillo, Cantalugo, Lorenzano, and St. An elo di Lombardi, have been entirely destroyed.

A letter from Rome mentions the whole number of families which perished at 1750-that 1 villages were destroyed-and 4600 houses at Naples more or less injured.

at Vienna; and an alarming fire has destroyed a number of houses in the suburb of Isere. NEW-YORK, October 19. The following extract of a letter from one of the first mercantile houses in Europe, is dated London, August 29, I would simply give the Managers a hint, that and will be read with attention by our meicantile friends. " We have been in hopes of being able to give our friends in America, some explanation of the grounds of the detention of American vessels, bound to the ports of the Continent, that they may govern on what has yet transpired we should be as likely to misicadas assist them, and we shall therefore principally confine ourselves to a statement of facts.

"Our courts maintain the principle that a neutral may not trade directly between offend the most genteel or modest of the fair, the colonies and mother country of our sex.] enemies, and as a necessary consequence of that principle it has been decided that merely stopping at their own ports to change the ships papers and afterwards to proceed to Europe is equally as illegal as a direct voyage; the landing the cargo and paying the duties were considered by our court of admiralty as terminating the first voyage, but this doctrine has been reversed by a decision of a higher court, and a new principle is thereby introduced of tracing a continuality of the voyage it

The former plain and intelligible line being ahandoned it is difficult to say where the new one can be drawn, and almost every American cargo coming to Europe being more or less exposed by this uncertainty has induced our cruizers to bring them.in, and not as has been erroneously supposed by any general order for the purpose -- some of the vessels are already released, others are still detained, but from the distinction made no inference of any general principle can yet be thawn; but as we understand, the whole of this very interesting question is now under discussion with your. Thinister at our court we hope a short time will clear all doubts so as to enable the American merchants to proceed on certain grounds --- and we hope before this reaches you there may be information in America of the settlement of this unpleasant business, and which we are the more induced to expect, as, we are well assured the late measures have not brisen from any disposition in any degree hostile to America.
