

mund Burke, dashed in rage before your eyes, to arouse the indignation of the soul. Yet he is interesting; and he is so, because you expect from him that profound elucidation of his subject, that lucid arrangement of ideas, and that easy mode of bringing the understanding and the subject in unison, that we are willing to become wise at the expense of our amusements. Full and majestic here assembles the profound river which keeps the event tenor of its way, without noise or foam.

Perhaps there is no man in America whose principles, and whose mode of reasoning from them, are more suitable to a republican cabinet, than those of Mr. Madison. — Republics are naturally founded on good sense and virtue. They are Philosophic systems; because their elements form an enlightened combination of all the attributes of reason and morality. Corrupt governments, alone, require corrupt modes of thinking, and of action, for the support of their transitory principles. Hence, whilst in a republic, we see Madison as a statesman and orator, appealing to the plain sense of the mind, to combat error, and to enforce right, we sometimes hear the "music of the spheres" from the silver-tongued Chatham, to lull our reason asleep, in supporting the profligate principles of a British administration. Thus, Mr. Madison would never be able to produce a revolution where all the springs of right reason have been completely worn out, and sacrificed to the effervescence of the passions. — He would not be able to appease the storms and convulsions of state by the effect of mere reasoning, as an orator; because in this case, the voice of reason is never heard. He is better prepared to calm back the passions of men from their gentle wanderings, and deviations to a state of orderly society, to heal the wounds of a sickly constitution, and to establish the empire of reason, upon a firm basis. This point once gained, he doubtless possesses that superlative capacity which can maintain its existence in security, by the combination of great ability and moderation.

American AND COMMERCIAL DAILY ADVERTISER.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1895

Col. Burr has been appointed one of the directors of the Indiana Canal Company.

The New-York Board of Health report for Friday and Saturday—11 cases of fever and 4 deaths—and for Saturday and Sunday—3 admissions into the Hospital—2 deaths—5 discharged, cured—22 patients and 12 convalescent.

The Health Office of Philadelphia makes no report.

State of Maryland,

CITY OF BALTIMORE, ss.
By THORWGOOD SMITH,
Mayor of the City of Baltimore,

A Proclamation.

WHEREAS from the decline of the malignant fever in New-York and Philadelphia, and the advanced season of the year, it is believed that the uninterrupted intercourse with these cities, may again be happily renewed without danger:

I have therefore thought proper, by and with the advice of the Commissioners of Health, to issue this PROCLAMATION, hereby annulling and making void, from and after the date hereof, my several Proclamations of the sixth and ninth days of September last, restraining the intercourse with the Cities of Philadelphia and New-York.

Given under the corporate seal of the City of Baltimore, the (A. S. C.) twenty-third day of October, one thousand eight hundred and five.

THORWGOOD SMITH,
Mayor of the City of Baltimore.

By an arrival at New-York, we have received New-Orleans papers, to the 28d ult. They contain nothing important. — The Viper British privateer, was cruising off the Balize, and boarding every vessel going in and coming out. On the 18th September, the Marquis de Cassa Calvo, issued circulars to all the Spanish officers in the territory, requiring them to repair without delay to Pensacola, to join their respective regiments. The north-easterly mail for Fort Stoddard and New-Orleans, was robbed near Tuckabatch towns, (Creek nation) and the rider shot. — The portmanteau was afterwards found, cut up, and most of the letters and packages pilaged. (Phil. Gaz.)

The German journals cite a very extraordinary example of longevity. A man is now living at Poson, in Poland, in his 138th year; he was born at Olezew in 1647, of obscure parents, and was unmarried till he was sixty years of age.

The Major general of Georgia proposes as the militia uniform, green faced and edged with black, and yellow buttons, with a rattlesnake engraved thereon.

A RATTLE SNAKE measuring 10 inches in circumference, and from four to five feet long, was killed a few miles below this city on Tuesday evening last, which upon being opened, was found to contain a full grown Fox Squirrel. The number of its rattles amounted to sixteen. There were several eye witnesses to its death. (Virg. Argus.)

FRENCH ROBBERY.—We have been favoured with a protest of David Cothel and William Cook, masters of the brig Betsey and schooner Betsey, dated the 12th of September, at Kingston, Jamaica. By this protest it appears, that the brig Betsey and schooner Betsey, were bound from New York to Mosquito shore on the Spanish Main, with a cargo of dry goods, ironmongery, and lumber; and on the 30th of August, being in the Caicos passage, they were boarded by three French schooner privateers under English colours, and carried under the West Caicos, and brought to anchor. A boat's crew from each of the privateers then came on board the brig and schooner, and plundered the cabin and vessel of every thing of value—amongst other things of new clothes, bolts of canvas, &c. The day following they came on board the brig, and after taking off the hatches plundered the cargo of every thing valuable: also stores and provisions. They broke open almost every box, trunk, chest and package, and took such articles as they thought fit, and then destroyed the greater part of the brig's stores and started every cask of water on board, except one. Peter Rose, the supercargo of the above vessels, was taken on board the privateer, and the commander of one of them endeavoured to prevail on him to ransom the brig and schooner, which he refused to do. He was then requested to sign a paper purporting that the said privateers had been supplied from the said brig with a very few trifling articles, which they had stood in need of, and that they had not ill used or offered any violence to any neutral vessel. On Mr. Rose refusing to sign the said paper, he was treated with abusive language, and ordered to return on board his vessel. The passengers of the brig and schooner, on being requested, also refused to ransom the vessel, or to sign the above mentioned paper. They then returned the papers belonging to the brig, excepting the manifest, which they retained, and ordered them to get under way. While they were getting under way, a boat from one of the privateersmen came on board the brig with five American seaman prisoners, who were taken by them from on board an American schooner, called the St. Michael, of Baltimore, which had a short time before been captured by the said privateer and sent to Barracoa. Being thus short of provisions and water, and having five additional seamen on board, the brig and schooner were obliged to bear away for the nearest port for a supply, and arrived at Kingston the 4th of September last. (N. Y. Gazette.)

The subterranean works at Dover are quite completed, and an excavation has been made in the Cliff sufficient to contain 12,000 troops. There are also masked batteries, very curiously contrived, and the place is, in every other respect, in so perfect a state of defence, that the Kentish men may bid defiance to the enemy in that quarter. (London pap.)

On the 5th instant, Mr. Weaver, of Montgomery Square, and his Son, a young man, returning from market separated in the evening at the Springhouse tavern, the father in a chaise, taking the Bethlehem road, and the son who drove the wagon, that which passed by North Wake-meeting house—half an hour after the father had got home, the wagon arrived at the door without the driver. The family were alarmed and set out in search of the young man, whom they found murdered on the road opposite Mr. Jones's quarry. It is supposed the wretch who perpetrated this unprincipled act, must have shot him from behind a wood pile, and then dispatched him with the butt end of the pistol, as appeared from the marks on his head. It is probable the villain determined on the murder and robbery at the tavern, where the young man imprudently permitted his purse to be seen into which he was putting some change. — But at the report of the pistol, which was heard by all the neighbours, the barking of the dogs must have alarmed him before he could commit the robbery, as all the money was found in his Purse. (Phil. pap.)

Property of Drunkards.
Our laws very wisely and justly provide for the safe keeping of the property of idiots and lunatics, that they may not waste their substance, impoverish their families, and become chargeable to the public. But drunkards, those worst of idiots and wildest of lunatics, may squander their property, bring their families to beggary, and themselves to the town—without any effort on the part of the public to prevent it. I am told that in some parts of New England they have laws authorising commissions to be appointed, (upon certain proof being made that any man is habitually drunken, and dissipates his property, in such a way that he and his family are likely to be brought to want) to take charge of his property, to improve it in the best possible manner, and to maintain him and his family out of the proceeds. Such a law, tho' some objections may be raised against it, would, I think, be of great service to society. At least the subject may be worth the consideration of the people and of their Representatives. (Trenton True American.)

MEDICAL.—The following cure for a fellow, has never been known to fail but once these 13 years. It is both cheap and safe.

Take any sort of glass, pounded fine, and goose dung, and rue, with a little Indian meal, mix all together with cold water, then apply a pretty large poultice when the finger seems dry and hot, wet the poultice, and apply it again, in 12 hours and make a new one; two or three seldom fail to cure.

N. Y.—When the felon is coming on, the person will imagine there is a small briar or thorn in the end of the finger, or opposite the joint where the nail grows. (Western Telegraph.)

Married last evening, Zalegman Phillips, esq. of Philadelphia, to Miss Arabella Solomon, of this city.

Federal Humanity.—There is no greater evidence of the malignity of the federalists than their finding fault with every thing done under the present administration. They appear desirous to make difficulties and excite jealousies on all occasions. Who could think, that the important business of Tripoli, in the release of our unhappy captives should now become the theme of dissatisfaction? That Gen. Eaton and Mr. Lear should be set at variance and conjectures of the most uncandid nature, should be raised to make a difference between them! The letter of Commodore Barron, is an authentic Document, which one would suppose, would place this transaction in a proper point of view, and that the Ex-Bashaw and Eaton could not have any reason of complaint after such an explicit avowal of the intentions of government in aiding their enterprise. The federalists say, the Bashaw would not have executed his threats of putting our prisoners to death, in case we drove him to extremities; but are the lives of 300 citizens to be thus placed at hazard, when they could be secured at the sum of 60,000 dollars? If the present Bashaw was capable of driving his brother from the government—had usurped his authority—taken his wife and children prisoners, and exercised every act of cruelty to maintain his prerogative, how absurd is it to suppose that he would not sacrifice in a paroxysm of revenge our unfortunate citizens! If he was brutal enough to do what he did to his own brother for the government, why should we not apprehend he would put in execution his diabolical threats when in danger of being drove from it. The federalists are very humane when it serves their purposes. Before the peace, they were constantly exclaiming against the government for not ransoming our prisoners, and no sum was thought too extravagant for their redemption. Now forsooth, 60,000 dollars is considered an enormous sum for their entire release, and a promise in future, that our citizens should not be subject to slavery, but exchanged for their prisoners. If we had not closed with 60,000 dollars, and a massacre had commenced, then the federalists would be exclaiming against the perfidy of the administration. Then "Economy" would have been portrayed, as the price of our slaughtered citizens. Then the fathers, wives and children of the captives, would have been roused to anathematize the cruelty of the government in suffering them to become the victims of an incensed Tyrant. Cease ye federalists, your constant clamor.—The citizens embrace their returned brethren with affection, and pay with cheerfulness the price of their redemption. (Independent Chronicle.)

NOTICE.
The committee of Benevolence in Char. tons, Having been informed that Mr. Ludzie, late apothecary at Cape Francois, did some time previous to the event to which he fell a victim, remit to several parts of the United States, sums of money, which he intended for the use of his truly unfortunate family, request those in whose hands said sums have been deposited, to come to the assistance of his two helpless infants, and still more helpless widow, by transmitting to the committee a statement of the sums which they may have in their possession and remitting the same either to the committee, or any person of their choice, in this city. By order of the committee.

LE MERCIER, Secretary.
The printers throughout the U. States are requested to publish the present notice.
