

among whom that quarter of the globe will be divided, will be not only strong enough to ensure their own independence, but mutual interest will induce them to guarantee the dominions and rights of each other, by a general confederation. In this arrangement we behold a new Balance for Europe, and one too which promises to give happiness to the inhabitants of that portion of the globe. But perhaps while these grand and necessary changes are foisted by an American, those nations who have the power, and would be most benefitted by the changes, have drawn the sword of implacable and destructive war. If so, it is too late to hope that measures so wise and so salutary will soon be accomplished.

With respect to the discontents which these changes will give to a few individuals, when compared with the general benefits, they will bear so little in the comparison, that it is scarcely necessary to offer arguments against them.—In a few years they will die away and be forgotten.

The execution of these or similar innovations, depends upon the will of four men:—These are the Emperors of France, Austria, Russia and the King of Prussia. If the design is good, why may not these mighty monarchs ensure the happiness and tranquillity of Europe, and become the benefactors of mankind by a combined effort, which will be not less productive of their own glory and national strength, than it will contribute to the peace, prosperity and tranquillity of the world.

There are some persons who believe, or pretend to fear, that Bonaparte's ambition has no bounds; and that he will never stop his career unless by force, until he has made himself the sovereign of Europe and the law-giver of the world. Let those who dream over such idle chimeras, cast their eyes on the map of Europe; let them contemplate the naval and military strength, extent of territory and population of other nations, and they will at once determine that it is not likely that a man of so much penetration as Bonaparte poses, can seriously entertain such designs, or if entertained, that it is possible to execute them. Satisfied with a brilliant career, which has given to him both reputation and power, such as no other man ever did acquire, wielding the sceptre of the most powerful and polished nation of the earth, commanding all which greatness can require, Bonaparte will not give way to projects which might jeopardise his present situation. He rather desires to perpetuate what he has obtained. But if a new coalition shall compel him again to take the field, and put his greatness and his life upon the chance of a battle, it is likely that Europe will witness another battle like that of Marengo; and some of those who have provoked the war, may become fugitives from their own countries.

It is forgotten that Bonaparte, almost at the gates of Vienna, once gave peace and independence to Austria, and that his power again to invest that proud capital, existed after the battle of Marengo? Will the Emperor of Austria forget these things, and again commence a war, which may terminate in the destruction of his own power, and may change the destiny of his people?

If Bonaparte should be again victorious, is it believed that he would again relinquish the advantages which victory would give? or would he again restore the same count to power, which already so often vanquished, has so often used its power against its benefactor, to disturb the tranquillity of nations, and to convert the most civilized and enlightened regions of the earth into a vast camp?

In this country we are too apt to form opinions concerning the affairs of Europe, upon partial or superficial views. We give way to our passions, and listen to every evanescent tale. If our prejudices are excited, we cast from us every truth and resist every reason which might soften the asperity of jaundiced and irritated feelings. Hence it is that Bonaparte has been often condemned, and sometimes execrated for acts which were the necessary consequences of an unavoidable situation. We forget that nothing less than those very measures, which we condemn, could have saved him from destruction. But it is time to close this article, and to invite those who have read it, to examine well its contents before it shall be consigned either to oblivion or condemnation. The character which holds the most conspicuous place in it, has certainly been the saviour of France—Why may he not become the benefactor of Europe, and the friend of mankind? PACIFICATOR

From the Charleston Times of October 9

"On Thursday last about 100 miles to the eastward of the bar, captain Hutchinson, of the ship Rolla, from Liverpool, fell in with the French privateer schr. Surper, captain Dominique, and was ordered to come on board the privateer with his papers. This order captain H. immediately complied with; but no sooner had he got on board her than he was surrounded by 15 or 20 Frenchmen, Spaniards, and mulattoes, who with violent threats and much abuse, drawing their knives and daggers, were proceeding to take his papers by force. This capt. H. resisted, but shewing each of his papers separately, they were satisfied of the property being American, and told him he might proceed.

While captain Hutchinson was undergoing this examination, a lieutenant and six of the privateersmen jumped into the Rolla's boat, and going on board the ship commenced a most disgraceful scene of plunder—breaking open the chests in the cabin, stealing every article they could lay their hands on, and otherwise behaving like savages and pirates. On capt. H. returning to the ship they were about taking away his boat; upon his refusing to give her up, the privateersmen struck him several times, and threatened to stab him, but finding him resolute and determined not to give up his property without a struggle, they went off.

Captain Hutchinson was informed by some of the crew, that they had engaged a ship off our bar, which they supposed to be a Guineaman; and that they had 4 men killed in the action. The sails and rigging of the privateer were much cut, but her hull did not appear to have received much injury. A great number of wounded men were on the decks, one of whom capt. H. supposed to be the capt.—They also confirmed the report of the captain having shot the lieutenant, for attempting to haul down the colours. The privateer had but two guns mounted; the rest, they stated, were in the hold. Capt. H. observed several people below, whom he supposed to be prisoners; but was not suffered to speak to any of them.

AND COMMERCIAL DAILY ADVERTISER

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1805

A Lloyd's List of the 6th September, mentions that two American brigs from Baltimore, have arrived at Smyrna, and the Mary, Wait, and North America, Vicker, from Baltimore, at Varel.

The Secretary of State arrived in the City of Washington on Sunday last, from Philadelphia.

The National Intelligencer of the 30th ult. makes no mention of the following important application; we therefore believe it deserves not the least notice, as we presume it would have been known at Washington earlier than at Richmond.

"It is reported says the Richmond Enquirer of the 29th ult. that the Spanish minister the Marquis d'Yrujo having determined to leave the United States, has demanded his papers from our government. The report adds, that the President observed in reply, that we had no such etiquette in this country, and that it was in the power of a foreign minister to quit the United States, when and how he pleased."

From information received from a respectable quarter, we have good reason for believing, that our affairs with Spain will be settled without war. France & Spain cannot but be sensible of the impolicy of adding another enemy to the numbers combined, and combining against them. From present appearances, in the threat of coalition, there is strong ground for believing that there will be England, Russia, Sweden, Denmark, Austria, Prussia, Turkey and Naples, against France, Spain, Portugal, Batavia and Switzerland.

In addition to our foreign intelligence received through the channel of English papers, we are in possession of some advices, received at Newport, by an arrival at that place from Bordeaux; they are dated as late as the 12th Sept. and report, THAT RUSSIA, AUSTRIA and SWEDEN HAD ACTUALLY DECLARED WAR AGAINST FRANCE; and that the armies of the coast were marching towards Germany.

Capt. Parsons, from Amsterdam, confirms the intelligence of the debarkation of the French and Dutch troops in the Texel; and of their having marched towards Germany. All the talk was of a continental war. (Boston Gaz.)

FROM HOLLAND, Sept. 2.

Letters are received in town from Amsterdam, by an arrival on Tuesday last, which contain the following information:—Seven vessels have arrived at this place, which were carried into England, and after a short detention, released. This circumstance has caused, in some measure, a depression in the markets. There is a report to day, that the Austrian Ambassador has quitted Paris; a continental war is therefore now considered as inevitable. (Ibid.)

FROM GIBRALTAR.

Capt. Rogers, arrived here yesterday from Gibraltar, in 34 days passage, brings accounts, that the combined French and Spanish fleets, were still at Cadix; that Admirals Calder and Collingwood, were before that place, with a squadron of about 17 sail; and that Lord Nelson, with an additional force, was hourly expected to arrive at that station, for the purpose of taking command of the blockade.

Capt. Rogers further advises, that the French and Spanish troops, in the neighbourhood of Gibraltar, were said to amount to between 20 and 30,000 men, and that on the event of a return of the calamity, which proved so fatal to the garrison and inhabitants during the last year, it was expected an attack would be made. At present the troops enjoyed great health, and were prepared to meet the enemy at every point. The differences between this country and Tripoli, being fully adjusted, a part of the U. S. squadron, then lying at Gibraltar, and consisting of 4 frigates, 2 schooners, and 2 bomb brigs, were expected to sail immediately for America.

No accounts had been received at Malaga or Gibraltar, of any hostile disposition having been recently discovered on the part of Tunis, or any of the other Barbary powers, against this country. (Ibid.)

A file of New Orleans papers, which we received by yesterday's western mail, breathes a strong spirit of defiance and war against the Spaniards. They contain few facts of any great moment; and these appear rather in the form of floating rumours, than in the firm and guttural language of truth. The paper of September 14th observes "we can state from a source that may be relied on, that an army of 5000 men is on its march from Mexico to strengthen the Spanish frontier on Louisiana." The paper of the 18th observes "we learn from good authority, that the Marquis de Casa Calvo has written a circular letter to all the Spanish officers now in this territory, requiring them to repair without delay to Pensacola, to join their respective regiments." That of the 21st in sketching out a concise plan of the measures to be taken on the commencement of hostilities, remarks; that "by drawing the troops from the various posts on the Mississippi, from the Walnut hills to Point Corpe, and calling into service the Orleans volunteers, we should have a force sufficient to strike a blow that the enemy would not recover from during the war. Baton Rouge might be taken by the troops as they descended the Mississippi; when concentrating our forces at this place, we would pass into West Florida, and occupy Mobile, Pensacola, and such other places as we might deem necessary." That their exertions would have the desired effect, we cannot presume to doubt, when we recollect the general imbecility of Spanish policy and the remarkably defenceless condition of the Floridas. One of the Creek Chiefs, who was lately in this city declared, that a very inconsiderable detachment of men might obtain possession of all the forts on the Mobile and even of Pensacola itself. (Richmond Enquirer.)

A gentleman from Lancaster, states, that all the official returns of the election for Governor, had been received at the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and that Governor McKEAN has a majority of 5189 votes. (Phil. Rec.)

DEATH.—On Tuesday evening last, in the 15th year of her age, ELIZABETH BURKE, yielded up her soul to the Great God of existence. During the continuance of a severe indisposition, which was borne with Christian resignation she always evinced perfect submission, to the Divine Will. She was the wife of an aged mother, numerous relatives, and a respectable circle of acquaintances to bewail her premature exit. After exhibiting lively proofs of patience and piety; her immortal parts, fortified by the cheering consolations of religion, winged its course to the bosom of its God, in whose presence it will find ample remuneration for all those vicissitudes which so eminently adorned her life.

The brig Eliza Hamilton, Culver, in 18 days from St. Croix, (W. Ind.) Left, brig St. Croix Packet, of Philadelphia, to sail in 6 or 8 days. At B. End, brig -----, Yard, of do. and others. Oct. 15, in lat. 26, long. 66, 20, spoke the brig Sarah, Price, 11 days from Martinique for New York, having been 6 days out of the 11 hecalmed. On Sunday last 50 miles S. E. of the Highlands, during the gale passed 2 ships, a brig, and several schr's all standing for the Hook—one of the ships was copped had no quarter galleries, and a white streak round her stern—he supposed her the George Barclay—One of the schr's had three masts. On Monday, he saw a large ship standing in under a jury foretop-mast. These vessels would all have been in, had they been on the same tack with the Eliza Hamilton.

The schr's Friendship, Dunn, for Philadelphia—the schr's Seaman, Croppay, for Richmond—and the schr's Harmony, Holmes, for Baltimore, which went to sea on Monday, put back to Staten-Island yesterday, on account of a strong head wind—other vessels bound to the Southward, put back and anchored within the Hook.
