Mr. WHITLOCK & Mrs. OLDMIXON, of the Theatre, came passengers in the schooner Sally, captain Bunce, from Philadelphia. Mrs. OLDMIXON we understand has rendered her services in aid of the Concert to be performed To-Morrow Evening, for the benefit of the orphan children of the late Mr. HODGKINSON. [Charleston Times.

Extract of a letter from William Goodwin, supercargo of the brig Stork, Walter Cornell, master, belonging to James De Wolf, esq. of Bristol.

"We sailed from Newport the 21st of June, and in 26 days, (during which we were constantly perplexed with head winds and calms) we found ourselves in lat. 35, N. and long. 38, W. On the evening of the 26th, being thick and squally, we were brought too by a French privateer of 12 guns; our captain was ordered to get out his boat and come on board with his papers, which was immediately complied with. Soon after they sent six men armed, who took possession of the vessel and ordered us on board the privateer. Eight men, Mr. Adams the mate, and myself embarked in a small leaky skiff, which the pirates sent for the purpose, for finding us to take our jolly boat, which was along side. We had not proceeded far from the vessel, before one of the men cried out the boat is going down! I threw off my great coat and prepared myself for swimming, but fortunately found a bucket and kept her free until we reached the privateer. They connected us all, and seated us on a chest of arms, and examined us one by one with a lantern, in order to discover if any of us were Frenchmen; one the wiseacres declared to be a fellow countryman of theirs: the rest were driven into the fore hold and had a guard set over them. He then examined the papers, and finding I was supercargo, they swore I was the son of some [illegible] to whom the property belonged. I was ordered down into the after hold, and as I was ascending one of them directed a blow which met me on the face so forcibly that I lay motionless for sometime at the bottom of the hold. When I came to myself I found I had lost a considerable quantity of blood but this did not distress me half so much as the gloomy prospect of what was to follow; being confined by their command in the way I was. PRISONER. I found the place in which I was confined to be filled with [illegible] of plunder and by what I could learn with my ear at the bulk head, I was satisfied my cargo was [illegible] My mate said: Thus you see [illegible]

"Pirates all are plunderers
"Darkened every hour."

"Their boats were employed the whole night in conveying plunder from our vessel. I was not permitted to see Captain Cornell:—the first exception he made was with the mate of a brig, which stood by him; they beat him—tore the hair from his head and otherwise abused him in the most inhuman manner. They then wrote for him to sign, what they termed a "capitulation," the last article of which was that our cargo was their property; on his refusal they threatened to put him to torture, until he should consent. Hearing the actual tortures of the [illegible] constant menace of repetition [illegible] shake his firmness, they exercised his paternal feelings in a manner at the recital of which humanity revolts. These villain's little son was left asleep in the cabin when we came on board the privateer; he was now taken on deck and lashed to the shrouds, where these merciless wretches scourged him in a manner too barbarous for conception, in order to carry their villainous project into effect. The father was released from his confinement and from the deck of the robber, he witnessed this affecting sight. The cries of his son however soon forced him below. Here he was threatened with the like treatment, if he did not immediately sign the "capitulation," which he perseveringly refused.

"After they had beaten the child as long as they had thought proper, he was unbound and commanded to find English colors; on declaring it was out of his power (there not being any on board the brig) one of them drew a sword and threatened to cut off his head. He immediately ran down into the cabin and finding he was pursued, he jumped out at one of the windows. The privateer's men manned their boat and took him in. He was thrown senseless on the deck with his hands tied behind him and thus they left him.

"About 11 o'clock the next forenoon I was called up and ordered into the boat; soon after the captain joined me and we were all dismissed from the privateer, which immediately bore away—we found all our men on board. The first object which demanded our attention was the captain's son, whom we stripped of his wet cloathes and put him to bed. His wounds for 6 or 8 days were painful, but he has since quite recovered.

"Our vessel was plundered in a shameful manner. The pirates broke open all our chests and trunks, and took nearly every article of cloathing except what we had on. They also took our spare sails, cordage, &c. and unrove a part of our running rigging. All our cabin stores, quadrants, charts, what money they could find,* my hat, boots, shoes, writing desk, watch, pistols, and even bosom-pin did not escape their rapacity. However we consider ourselves fortunate in coming off with one thing, that they almost frightened us out of—I mean, our lives."

* The loss of this vessel was about 600 dollars; they did not plunder the cargo.

Married on Friday evening last, Mr. Peter Filbert, of Alexandria, to Mrs. Hannah Green, of this city.

A large quantity of ship timber may be had thereon. The main stage road to Philadelphia passes through this tract of land, and has at different periods been the property of Col. Thomas White, Robert Morris and George Gale. It adjoins the lands of Gen. Samuel Smith, Robert Welsh, Englehead Keiser, Daniel Bowley and Tobias E. Stansbury. This tract of land lies on the navigable water of Back River, where wild fowl are plenty in the season, several valuable fisheries are thereon and springs of excellent water; on the premises are 150,000 good bricks, lately burnt to erect a house, of which, the foundation has been prepared.
