Is now Exhibited
TO the view and investigation of those concerned, A HYDRAULIC MACHINE, for the elevation of water, on principles of action entirely new, and on calculation, found to be more powerful than any other now extant:
particular description of which, will be represented for the satisfaction of those who may conceive it their interest, to adopt a measure of such evident utility to this city—and who will be fully informed, by either calling, or leaving a line with
ISAAC COX,
No. 70 1-2, Market-street, Baltimore.
Nov. 28 d

The subscriber, HAVING obtained a patent for his new invented STEAM ENGINE for raising water, notifies the public, that he is now ready to grant privilege to use the same, for grinding Grain, Plaster of Paris, &c. it may also be used for slitting mills, or for sawing timber, and in fact to any other purpose to which water may be usefully applied.
One peculiar advantage of this invention is that the water which is used on the wheel may be so directed, as to be returned back, and with but very little waste, continually re-applied, so that on very small streams, where once a body of water is collected, the most extensive works may be carried on.
It may also be with an inconsiderable expense, applied to raising water, for supplying cities which are situated on rivers that have not sufficient fall for that purpose.
SERAPHIM BELLI,
Brass-founder, Fell's Point.
N. B. Two apprentices would be taken to

AUTUMN.
The smiles of the summer are past,
The labors of Flora are o'er;
Ah! seasons too charming to last,
And almost too fleet to deplore.
Of late, like the sailor so gay,
Who sings on the top of the shrouds,
The lark from on high tur'd his lay,
Now seen, and now lost in the clouds.

Of late, how the banks were array'd Wherever you rivulets run!
Of late, and the ivain sought the shade,
To hide from the rays of the sun.
These seasons are past—O how frail!
Like dews of the morning they fly—
The flow'r has forsaken the vale,
The tenant of ether, the sky.

What wars the wild element wage,
Chill Autumn has taken his stand,
And seems, as he howls, to presage
The horrors of Winter at hand.
Ah me! how august, how sublime
A lesson for wisdom is here!
How swift are the foot-steps of time,
How transient the dates of the year!

Our summer of life must decay—Its autumn, at farthest, is near—Then let us be wise while we may,
Ere time steal a march on our rear.
Let us husband, with care, lest it die,
The taper of life, while it burn,
And learn to improve, as they fly,
The days, which can never return.

CHARLESTON, November 14.
The French privateer Cr ole, after convoying the Esther into St. Mary's, has returned to cruise off our bar. When she hove in sight yesterday, the Adams frigate immediately gave chase to her—and when the pilots left the bar last evening, the frigate was close up with the privateer. The American commander, however, is so limited in his instructions, that he can merely examine the legality of her commission, and prevent her from committing depredation, within three miles of our coast.
The brig Mary, of Baltimore, with passengers, from Ireland, anchored in this road last evening.

SAVANNAH, November 13.
The legislature of this state convened at Louisville 4th inst. The senate made choice of the honorable Jared Irwin, as their president, and William Robinson, esq. secretary. The house of representatives made choice of the honorable Abraham Jackson, as their speaker, and Hines Holt, esq. clerk.
His excellency John Milledge is re-elected governor of this state, without opposition.
