PROSPECTUS

F the Philosophical Exhibitions intended to be displayed in the Octagon building below the Court-House: to begin on Tuesday, the 3d of December, at haif past 6 o'clock P. M. and continue every Saturday and Tuesday the same hours.

The spectable proposed to be presented to the painic consists altogether of Philosophical operations. .

It will be a series of Phenomena, which will fix the attention by surprising effects and exercise the genius for discovering the causes of Even those persons who may be acquainted with the principles of the operations, will probably find something new and interesting in the application of them.

Fire will be seen glittering inside of glass resels, and the same fire extinguishing in pthers, all of the in clean and empty. Artificial formains, will throw water, light, flame and fire under different forms. Lamps will be seen fed by common water, others will burn at the top of vessels containing nothing. Some of these lamps with a feint flame hardly giving any light at a few inches distance, will | inliante and even fuse all combustible matters metals, or varitable bedies, and iron in an instant will become red lot. A i.ne and hard whise metal will be seen in full fligstot, can mig out of water and taking any form in moulds.

Fire wall burst out and loud reports will be heard, considerably stronger than what can be produced by gan-powder without any application or use whatever of fice.

thair the sun at noon of a fine summer day. suddenly created and visibly without any kind of fire.

Iron will be seen in full fusion, in a glass ressel, Elling its capacity with large staning sparkles, and coin, nown to the bottom in red bot globular particles—this will be produced without any other fire than a little grain of sulphue Unoted by a candle.

A child will be seen lifting considerable weights, by no other action than his blowing : and many hundred pounds will be lifted by the power of only a few ounces of water." The spectators will see the strange effects of a combination of metals (which is called G.1 vanism) upon the muscles and herves of animals: Many other operations will be exhibited, which are not present to the memory, or an enumeration of which, would exceed the limits of this notice.

Thus will be employed the first part of every nights in a selection of subjects, always varied. The second part will be of a quite different nature; it consists of optical illusions.

The spectators in the dark will see apparitions, spectres, and figures of various kinds; some appearing suddenly, others issuing praduipreframeluminous points and clouds; some advancing forward in a manner which would terrify such as could forget that they are at a public spectacle.

In these apparitions personages will be seen of every me and conditions, figures in motion, shalles not the dead, coming out of graves; manaters of various shapes : and they will see A tepresentation of the Elysian Fields. As agliversion to such doleful objects, figures will also he presented from fable, from history inhabitants of different parts of the world, in their poural dresses: the most remarkable species of wild animals : landscapes, lierds of cattle, marine tieus, ressels at sea, and many objects which altogether will, it is hoped, give
