STICKNEY's Patent Improved Andirons,

THE principle of which is, to cause a friction or current of air similar to an air furnace, and consequently requires a less quantity of wood to heat a room than usual. They have the effect in a great measure to remedy a smoaky chimney, by a rarification of the air, passing in a confined direction; and with the assistance of a few loose iron bars, will answer equally well for coal as wood. The improvement may be attached to brass and irons already made. Apply to the store of the patentee, No. 1, Pratt-street, nearly opposite the bridge. Nov. 21 d2t-law2t
