

In the midst of these preparations, the envoys of France, Russia, and Austria, to our court, appear, in public, to be on very good terms.

October 6.
The king is on the point of departure for the army. His equipages, and those of the princes are ready.

All south Prussia is filled with troops, who are marching to the banks of the Vistula, to take post opposite that corps of the Russian army, which is approaching Dübrisko and Warsaw. It is not apprehended however that any attack, which in its consequences would greatly embarrass the coalition, will be made. But our court demonstrates its prudence in being prepared for any event.

HAMBURG, October 11.
We learn that the English have raised the blockade of the Elbe, and that the liberty of navigation is at length to be re-established.

An English cutter has already arrived at Stadt. Accounts from Berlin of the 7th instant announce, that the departure of the king of Prussia from that capital would take place the next day.

HAGUE, October 7.
The following letter, addressed by the Emperor of the French and King of Italy, from Strasburg, the 29th of Sept. last to his Excellency the Prussian monarch, contains not only the measures of security already taken by his Majesty in the event of the enemy's landing upon our coast, but shows, at the same time, how well his Majesty appreciates the character of the Batavian Nation:—

"My Dear and Great Friend!
"I have been obliged to withdraw my army from Holland, to make head-quarters in an impious coalition, which the gods and the spirits of England have formed against me and my allies. I have commended in my Majesty the formation of National Guards for the defence of my frontiers. You will be aware that, in the present circumstances, the friends of their country must take up arms to repel those bands, eager for pillage, whom England would throw into their shores—However, let not the inhabitants of Holland be alarmed. My armistice of Reserve, of Boulogne, and Metz, is more than sufficient to surround the troops which defend their coasts, and to prevent any army who violate the Batavian territory from re-embarking. In the present circumstances, my very dear and great friend, I depend upon your zeal and patriotic aim. The cares of war do not so entirely absorb my attention, that I shall not constantly watch for the concerns of the Batavian country. An army might indeed land, but be assured that it would not re-embark—However, I call upon the courage and patriotism of the Batavians to confound the hatred of the tyrants of these seas, and to secure that part of the Continent from the invasion of the pirates.

"Herewith I pray God to take you, my very dear and great friend, under his holy protection.

"NAPOLEON."
Strasbourg, 7 Vendemiaire, Year 14. (29 Sept.)
WURTSMACH, Oct. 1.
On the 29th ult. Marshal Bernadotte departed from hence. The march of the French proceeds without cessation; the head-quarters were yesterday at Eberbach, three hours from Amberg. The Marshal was received here in the most distinguished manner by the Electoral Family.

STRAZBURG, Oct. 1.
The whole of the Army has passed the Rhine. Yesterday the remaining detachments of the Imperial Guard took their departure.—Marshal Berthier and his Staff set out to-night. The Emperor himself took his departure at eleven this morning.

LISBON, Sept. 20.
By letters from Cadix we are informed of most deadly animosity subsisting between the French and the Spaniards, which is carried to lengths too shocking for the reflection of human nature; a night does not pass without the commission of some horrid outrage, which always terminates in the spilling of blood.—The origin of these misunderstandings is kept profoundly secret, but is said to be between the French Admiral Villeneuve and Gravina. The latter has professed his resignation, which the Spanish Government has refused to accept; yet no means are taken to soften the existing quarrel, or put an end to the nightly broils which take place between the French and Spanish sailors, which has of late been extended to the inhabitants of the town, who are now engaged in the dispute, under a plea that the provisions for the town are kept for the support of the French Navy, and that they in consequence will be starved.

In Madrid the disorders wear a still more dreadful appearance; the inhabitants are in arms, to whom the Swiss Guards have been opposed and defeated; upwards of 600 persons have been killed and wounded in this conflict; the cause is attempted to be kept profoundly secret; but it has arisen from an Edict lately passed under the sanction of the Prince of Peace, commanding all persons to receive in full payment, in lieu of money, the denaro vales, a paper currency, which, in the last war, was at a discount of 50 per cent.—This currency is the most unpopular in the Kingdom of Spain, is always at a discount; and the people refuse to concur in the terms of the Edict, which is the cause of a dispute which has at length occasioned this insurrection.

In consequence of this news, all intercourse by way of exchange between Lisbon and Madrid is at a stand; and all business between the two places ceases for the present.

It is very currently reported here, that Bonaparte has made another demand on the Government of this country, which, it is feared must be complied with, rather than endanger the terms of our present neutrality. Eight millions of cruzados is said to be the extent of his demand, which in sterling money is $50,000.

Whether this will ultimately turn out true or false, I have the mortification to inform you, that sur-billetes (the paper money of Portugal) are at this time at a discount of 20 per cent; which extraordinary depression is occasioned by the absence of reports for although the billetes are generally at a discount, it has not of late been greater than 10 per cent.

PRUSSIA in Braganza, October 3.
Letters have just been received from Italy by the way of Inspruck. They announce that the Arch Duke Charles was about to cross the Adige in a few days; that his principal forces had been concentrated upon the left bank of that river, chiefly near Verana and Porto Legnano, &c.—The body of the army which is in the Italian Tyrol, has been considerably reinforced. It was to march towards Brescia, from the commencement of hostilities. Some Russian regiments were expected at Venice from Corfu.

General Mack has written about 50,000 men from the Tyrol, to make them march towards Upper, Suabia, and particularly to the borders of the Lake of Constance. After receiving orders to this effect, the armies of Generals Jellicovich, Hiller, and Auffenberg repaired to this new destination. The division of General Jellicovich is to form a body of reserve. It has taken provisionally a favourable position in the environs of Brigenz. The Arch Duke John, brother to the Emperor, arrived there from the Tyrol; but stopped only two days; he afterwards returned to Feldkirch, and from thence to Inspruck.

The Austrian detachments have entirely quit the Valley of Hell and all the positions of the entrances of the Black Forest, and have joined their respective corps in the environs of Stokach. In the night of the 6th and 7th, a considerable corps of the army had been assembled in Halle at Guntzbourg—on the 7th, it was reinforced, and General Mack, arrived to command in person.

At 5 o'clock in the morning of the 8th, a courier arrived from general Mack, to order the general, who were in our city, or in its vicinity, to march immediately. The same morning, the main Austrian army, which arriving from Buchau, and Redlingen, had for several days been assembled in our environs, was put in motion and defended the Danube on each bank of that river. This unexpected departure of the army occasioned great joy in our city—and it was hoped that we should not again see the Austrians, who, having lived at free quarters, had occasioned the greatest scarcity of provisions, which cannot be wondered at, when it is considered that for several successive days our small town had been besieged with 25,000 men.

The Austrian head-quarters was also removed on the 8th to Breganz. On the same day M. Steinkir, the Austrian commander at Stuga, arrived at Um, on his way to head-quarters, where he was to succeed the count d'Altonost, as civil commissary with the army.

During the whole of the 9th, a heavy cannonade was heard proceeding from the lower Danube. In the night of the 8th and 9th, a part of the army, which had been stationed on the Lake of Constance, and which had reached the Danube by forced marches, arrived here, and also four battalions of grenadiers from Biberach.

The command of our city and its environs was soiled to the Austrian Field Marshal Lieut. Jellicovich.

On the 9th we learned that the Austrian intended in the night of the 9th and 10th, to have attacked that part of the French army which had left the Danube at Dusseldorf. General Mack reported that he thought it forced in consequence the French to retreat, and in retreating has commiserations with Ferrara but the defeat of one of his corps at Warrington, on the 9th, a courier to have invited him to re-nounce the attempt, and again to retire to the Elbe.

On the night of the 9th and 10th, the Archduke Ferdinand, General Mack, and many other Generals, arrived in this city, which continues to be the head-quarters.

Yesterday (the 10th) a strong body of the army passed through our city, on its way to the left bank of the Danube. It will take a concentrated position at Wizenfeld, and on the mountains of the Alb.

It is reported, that General Mack perceiving the impossibility of maintaining his position in Suabia, and of passing again into Bavaria, has conceived the hazardous project of retiring by forced marches, through Lower Suabia and Franconia into the Upper Palatinat—but it is difficult to imagine how this intention can be executed without exposing his retreat to be cut off by the French arms.

The Austrian Generals and officers, concede that things are in a very dangerous position.

There was a bloody action yesterday in the environs of Guntzbourg, in which the Austrians were repulsed with the loss of many men. It is said that they have retired by the bridge of communication which they had established on the left bank of the Danube.

The last letters from Augsburg, received here are of the 8th, (since which the Courier has not arrived.) The French were then at Metzen, some leagues from Augsburg. Two days before the work on the fortifications of Ingolstadt, had been suspended. Several Austrian regiments from the Tyrol had passed by Augsburg, others by Kempton, directing their march to Memmingen.

The corps of General Kienmayer, consisting of 10,000 men, which had been stationed in the environs of Nordlingen, has retired upon Neuburg, where it passed the Danube, and afterwards retreated to Aichach, and thence to Landsberg, on the Lech.

By the mail of yesterday we received a large body of Foreign news; a great portion of which was forwarded by our New York and Philadelphia correspondents. From amidst other matter received we have carefully selected such a connected series of articles as, we hope, will furnish our readers with a complete and comprehensive view of European affairs at the periods of their dates.

Interments in the different burial grounds of the city and precincts of Baltimore, for the week, ending on Monday morning at sun-rise:—Consumption; 2; Croup 3; Dysentery 1; Worms 2; Still-born 2; Cholera 1; Child-bed 1; and Disease unknown 1.—Adults 5—Children 3—Total 13.

London, October 12.
Government, we understand, announced to the Foreign Ministers yesterday, that the Elbe and the Weser are no longer blockaded.

This important event, which opens the communication with Germany and the markets of the North to our merchants, was announced by the following official notice, which was stuck up at Lloyd's:—

Downing-street, Oct. 9. 1805.

Informants having been received of the removal of the French troops from the position which they occupied on the borders of the Elbe and Weser, his Majesty has pleased to direct that the blockade of the entrance of these rivers should be discontinued, and that his Majesty's ships of war which had been stationed at the mouths of them, for the purpose of blockading the same, should be withdrawn.

Sur-Office, 3 o'clock, P.M.

A letter, from Berlin, under date of October 1st, mentions the intended positions and Commanders of the different Prussian armies; and adds, that a Circular Note, to His Prussian Majesty's envoys, relative to those arrangements, has been published, in which it is declared that they have no other object, than that of maintaining a perfect neutrality against any Power that might attempt its infractions.

The public are cautioned against receiving three dollar bank bills, purporting to be bills of the Burlington bank, signed S. Potter, cashier, and Charles Jones, president; also twenty dollar bills of Scituate bank, signed William Bradford, cashier, and Roger Brown, president; also five dollar bills of Fredericktown bank, signed C. Smith, cashier, and George Roberts, president; also two dollar bills of the Exchange bank of Burlington, signed S. Potter, cashier, and Charles Jones, president; also bank bills of any denomination, purporting to be bills of the Jefferson bank, of Providence, signed Wheeler Martin, president; as there are no banks of the above denominations in the United States.

A Cavern newly discovered.

There has lately been discovered in the territory of Falcon, a village distant about two leagues from Nice, a cavern, the entrance to which is formed by a very narrow aperture. The interior of this cavern, of which neither the depth nor extent are as yet known, exhibits a number of vast compartments that resemble temples, decorated with columns formed by the crystallization of water. One simple hall or saloon will contain about 400 persons. The reflection is so strong that it requires but very little light to illumine the interior in a very splendid style. Only a small number of curious adventurers have as yet entered it, among whom are a poet and a Roman designer, both of whom speak of it with rapture and astonishment. A certain general, whose name is not mentioned, purposed speedily to make a descent into it, and to draw up a circumstantial report of whatever interesting particulars he may discover.

Twenty-seventh Regiment.

The citizens enrolled in this regiment will please to hold themselves in readiness to form alternate patrols, for the protection of the district—to commence duty at 6 o'clock in the afternoon of the 11th instant.

This duty, so particularly incumbent on our citizens at present, will commence with the 1st company of the 1st battalion, who will furnish a patrol of 30 men, exclusive of officers, to do duty on the night of the 11th, and an equal number the night of the 12th. The 2d company of the same battalion commences duty the night of the 13th, and so on in succession. The 1st company of the 2d battalion are to be ready the night of the 19th, and so on alternately. The patrols are to protect Hanover-street and the intermediate space between that street and South-street, to the precincts; and the majors of each battalion will issue the necessary orders in succession.—Officers commanding patrols are particularly requested to guard against any irregularity in their several commands.

December 11

WHEREAS I cautioned the public against purchasing a certain piece of land, lately advertised for sale by J. Swanson, I think it proper to state, that I was induced to do so, in consequence of my having fairly purchased said land of him:—for part the purchase money I have his receipt, and the residue I tendered him for payment, in specie, before respectable evidence; but he could not give the requisite title, owing to the absence of his wife, with whom the right originated. This circumstance prevented his receiving the money, and it is believed, caused his passionate and malicious advertisement a few days ago—to avoid the consequences of which, he has thought proper to make an expeditious flight. I conceive this notice is sufficient to do away any evil effect he intended, his piece should produce.
