American,

Commercial Daily Advertiser

PRINTED AND PURCESURD BY WILLIAM PECHIN, PRINTER OF THE LAWS OF THE UNION.

Daity paper $7 and Country paper 5 per, ann. MTAll udvertisements appear in both papers.

31, SOUTH GAY-STREET,

NEAR THE CUSTOM HOUSE, BALTIMORE.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 7, 1806

MEMORIAL

the Merchants of the city of New York. other expendes in this country. YOUR Memorialists beg leave respectfully to approach the Government of their country, on subjects of great importance, which have affected their minds with the deepest anxiety and alarm. Confiding in the justice and friendly dispositions of the Government of Great-Britain, and entertaining a correspondetn expectation that no unusual restrictions would be imposed on Neutral Commerce, ample notice; presuming especially, that commercial enterprises, commenced under the sauction of established principles. kets of Europe.

After this commerce had been proseyears, and had attached a great proporwas strictly regular; having never received the slightest intimation, that could be deemed incompatible with the rights of a belligerent nation, they have been suddently confounded, by unexpecthigh seas, of a large portion of their property, which had been embarked with the most unsuspecting confidence.

The feelings of your memorialists are not only excited, by the losses which they have actually sustained, in consequence of a measure unsusceptible of previous calculation, but also from the state of uncertainty in which they are placed, with respect to future commercial operations.

Your memorialists have heretofore believed, that commerce between the U. States and colonies subject to the enemics of Great-Britain, when bona fide prosecuted on their own account, would be perfectly safe from interruption: They . have also believed, that all articles, which might be securely imported in the U. States, might be assecurely EXPORTED; with the exceptions well understood, both in respect to the import and export trade, of commerce with places blockaded, or in articles contraband of war.

In a recent interpretation of what! is considered by the tribunals of Grat Britain as a direct trade, between the colonies and the parent countries of their with concern, the developement of a principle, which, if conceded on the part Their commercial importance.

It is understood to have been decided; that whenever it appears to be the intention of the importer of colonial produce, to export the same to Europe; or, whenever it is so exported by the original importer, such intention or exportation. shall be evidence of a direct trade, and subject the property, though neutral, to confiscation.

Your memorialists consider it their bouden duty to themselves and their country, to express their most decided opposition to this decision.

- As to the evi ence rising, from the readily admit, that the great quantities of eplanial produce, which are acquired by means of the American commerce, exceeding the demand for consumption in the United States, will fairly justify a general presumption, that the surplus is ultimately destined for the European murkets. They assert, however, that the intention of a merchant, in respect to the Inture destination of his property, must, from the nature of things, be inconclusive. All plans of business, formed by Individuals, are liable to be affected by circumstances, not to be foreseen or controlled: hese plans are therefore necessarily revokable by those who formed ethem; and an intention which has no! inseen executed, proves nothing more than might justly be inferred from a general presumption, arising from the course of our commerce: To apply such an infe property of your memorialists, to confound and sports of a Bellicerent country, not in- mies, may we not, with the consent of raverse the best established principles of reason, equity, and law.

Your memorialis's contend for no innovicions on the law of nations; and, except where special treaties have prescriben a miffrent rule, they ad nit that they may lawfully be restrained from transporting the property of the parties engaged in war. . In the recent decision which prohibits an imperter of colonial produce from exporting it to Europe, they however perceive with concern, either a nugatory and vexations regulation, or a meditated blow, at what they deem an incontestible and valuable right.

Heretofore there existed clear and obvious circumstances of discrimination, between the direct trade, which Great Britain has assumed the right of denying to verned the conduct of nations, during any | Great Britain : they demonstrate, that neutrals, and the indirect or circuitous wars in which they have been engaged; the position against which we contend, Of the Merchants of the City of N. York. trade, which she admits to be lawful. The direct trade could be performed by a sin-To the president of the United States, & | gle shipment or voyage; whereas, the the Senate & House of Representatives | circuitous trade subjected the property to of the United States of America, in double freights and insurances; to deduc-Congress assembled: the Memorial of tions in favour of the revenue, and various

If the arrival of a ship in the country to which it belongs; the landing of the cargo; the inspection of the Custom House; the payment or security of duties; do not terminate a voyage; then we confess our ignorance on a point, which, never having been before questioned, has been assumed by us as an acknowledged truth. If the entry for exportation; the embarkation of merchandize; the rewithout adequate motives and the most inspection of the Custom House; the bond for securing a delivery in a foreign country, and a public clearance, do not indicate the commencement of a new voywould on no account be affected by a lage, then we are yet to learn the meanchange of system; your men.orialists | ing of the expression. If all the formaing various colonial productions, the sur- curity of our revenue; it operations of affected, by any vibrations of the complus of which, exceeding the demands of immense magnitude, transacted with the of this country, they have been accust im- greatest publicity, and without any moed to export freely to the different mar- tive for concealment, are considered as unreal representations, and merely co-Idurable and fraudulent contrivances to cuted without restriction for several cover an illicit trade, between the colonies and the parent countries of the enemies tion of their wealth; after their insurers, of Gr.at Britain; then it becomes neceshad assumed, immence responsibilities, sary, petu in regard to our characters and grounded on an opinion, that this trade I telests, to inquire, whether the new regiti itions establish a more efinite criteriit on for the discovery of truth?

We repel with indignation t'e suggestion, that the trans-suipment of property for a foreign market, by the original imed intelligence of the arrestation on the porter, is evidence of fraud or chicane; or that, unsupported by other circumstances, it can justify a suspicion, that it is other than neutral. In our opinion, any discrimination between the rights of an importing merchant, and a vendee in the United States, is manifestly fallacious, as it virtually asserts, that the former can exercise only an imperfect dominion over property lawfully acquired, and possessed in this country, while at the same time he can convey to the latter a title to a privilege nor enjoyed by himself : in snort, that a trace is unlawful, when the advantage is to result to one person, but may be rendered lawful, by being partici pated with another.

mildest form, its operation must be high- | viduals employed in commerce; would ly injurious, by originating new questions | not alone be affected: all the internal refor litigations, and of course, subjecting | lations of our country would be disturbed : terruption. We presume not, however, to most remote from our principal ports. comprehend, to what extent, or in what would, in proportion to their dependence manner, the principle will be applied: on foreign supplies, be most severely dewe perceive, that the ancient land-mack | pressed. has been removed, but we seek in vain for a beacon to direct our course;-If we enemies, your memorialists perceive inquire whether a bona fide sale and delivery of mercandize, by an importer, being a citizen, to another known citizen "of the United States, must prove fital to of the United States, for a valuable c nsideration, will, as in ordinary cases, be and import, are variously affected, in their conclusive evidence of a transfer of pro- | quantities and value, by new wants; by perty, and the answer is affirmative; then | the relinquishment of former pursuits, we complain, that our ships have been and by the new direction which is theredetained, the rates of insurance entan- by given to the industry of different naticed, and our property confiscated, for the ons. Other consequences result from establishment of a rule, which, when once the effects of ware; as the impoverishunderstood, will become nugatory, and ment of some, and the agrandiszement cease to pounce any commercial or poli- of other countries: also, from the actical effer. If on the other hand, this knowledged right of belligerent nations eviden is not to be deemed conclusive, to interdict commerce in contraband artiwe p.ofess ourselves to be utterly at a loss | cles, and to institute blockades. This to discover, what proofs of ownership, and last right is highly injurious to neutrals, neutrality of property, can with safety be as it fr. quently restrains them from prorelied on.

supposed intention of an importer, they | But these embarrassments, though perplexing and vexatious, are not those which the United States, in time of war, amidst principally occusion our solicitude. We. all these changes and disadvantages, to are compelled to consider the late decisions of the British tribunals, as preliminary steps towards a system for control-, ing the importations and exportations of articles usually exported from the United colonial productions, and thereby annihi- States to countries from which we receivlating the most lucrative branches of our ed necessary supplies, cease to be deloreign commerce.

> If we own d this trade solely to the favour of Great Britain; still we might the supplies we need? a k, what urgent motive, what imperi ous necessity, required that the favour should be resumed, at a period when our commerce was spread over the ocean, and sequence of our ability to obtain substiwhen a change so essential might destroy | tutes which we prefer, shall we be reits security, and subject us to incalcula- quired to renounce our export trade, by

ble losses? We deny, however, that the rights of connumption or for commerce for dial commerce, as claimed by us, are to be we be compelled to receive in exchange. deemed favours; on the contrary, if the articles which we do not require? tention, in a particular case, to the preju- law of nations is other than a temporary dice of an individual; to presume that tule, prescribed by an arbitrary will, and he has voluntarily incurred an immense | enforced by power, then we appeal to its | tries, we obtain in exchange, articles to riska which, cosistently with the success most universal and inviolable principle, in commerce exceeding our domestic wants of his main object, he might have fairly our defence. This principle is, that the arpided, aud to involve lum in ruin for Goods of a NEUTRAL, consisting of artiprosecuting a trade, which, if undertaken cles not conversed of war, in a NEUwith a Hifferent motive, would have been TRAL TESSEL, employed in a DIRECT tween her subjects and the colonies c declared lawful :-- would be, in the opini- PRADE, between NEUTRAL countries, and her subjects and the colonies, of her ene

, VESTED of BLOCKADED, are firetected.

In the controversies which have exist- commerce? ed at different times, for extending the privileges of neutral vessels, and limiting. Great Britain may now be confined to the the grounds of capture, we take no part: we appeal to the old law. If neutral rights we not apprehend that the principle will can be reduced within more confined li- be retaliated in respect to our commerce mits than this law prescribes, we perceive not how, amidst the collisions of national that case, what can ensue but war, pillage interests, any neutral commerce can exist, even in our native productions.

be confined to a commerce with such pla- | ples of our commerce : they evince the ces, and in such articles only, as were al- necessity of a circuitous trade, to enable lowed in peace, by the municipal regula- us to realise the great value of exports tions of the countries engaged in war; in our native productions, by which alone the doctrine may be repelled by the noto- we acquire the power to liquidate the barious fact, that no such principle has go- lance against us, in our commerce with all were free to vary, and all in fact have is not a rule which is unequal and unjust. varied, their commercial systems: whatever theoretical opinions may therefore have been advanced, there has existed no required, would deprive us of many adsuch practical rule, and to set up such a rule, under the unparalleled circumstances of the present war, must infallibly destroy the commerce of this country.

of the United States export to foreign bandonment of views, as a commercial countries a greater proportion of the aggregate annual value of the products of their industry, than any other people of [ the globe; they are consequently most at the pleasure of a belligerent nation, be deeply interested in the security and freedom of their trade: in short, being almost exclusively an agricultural and commercial people, those parts of our country, which, from recent settlement, or from other circumstances, are wholly agric: ltural, are more immediately interested than any other, as they are in a greater degree dependent on foreign sup-Irave employed a vast capital in import- lities and sanctions established for the se- plies, and consequently most liable to be to our ships in their ports a welcome re mercial system.

> As our manufactures do not flourish in proportion to the progress of our population, wealth, and luxury, the necessity of extending our commerce is constantly increasing.

The basis of all our trade is the aggregate value of our native productions, exceeding what are consumed in the United | a regard to mutual interests. States: these are exported to various ountries, from which we receive supplies for domestic use, or other articles for exportation. A very great proportion of all the results of our commerce with the world, centre in the dominions of Great Britain, and we receive almost exclusively from that country, our cloathing, and other necessary manufactures.

By the events of the late and present war, many countries with which we prosecuted an increasing trade, have been eitter diverted from manufacturiag pursuits, or have been greatly impoverished, or conquered and subjected to the colonial system of Great Britain.

With these preliminary facts in view, the most important consequences of the a sumed rule, that neutrals may be restrained, in time of war, to their accustomed t ade in time of peace. The injustice of such a rule, in relation to the United | bear to enumerate the humilating and oppres-If the new doctrine is executed in the | States, will be more manifest; the indiall our commerce to new hazards of in- | the interests of those districts which are

Tie effects of war cannot be confined to the countries engaged in war. The value of money; the price of labour the rates of treight and insurance, are by war enhanced throughout the world all articles of merchandize, both export eccding to the best markets. It is obviously impossible, therefore, to confine their accus omed trade in time of peace, without destroying all trade.

If in consequence of the war, certain manded in these countries, may we not export other articles, and thereby obtain

If articles usually imported into the United States in time of peace, cease to be demanded by us in time of war, in conbeing forbid to import other articles for

If, in consequence of an increased demand for our exports to particular counshall it be required that the surplus perish on our hinds?

If Great-Britain permits commerce be-

these colonies, participate in the same

If our commerce with the enamies of system established in time of peace, may with the colonies of Great Britain? In and devastation?

These are not imaginary suppositions: If it be intimated, that neutrals should | they illustrate the most important princi-

But still we have other and more forcible objections; the concession which is vantages, connected with our local situation, our enterprise, our wealth, and our fortune; It would require us to divert much of our capital and industry to new It is a well known fact, that the people | employments; It would amount to an apeople, and might involve us in dangerous controversies, by a virtual admission, placed in a state of inhibition, equivalent to being declared contraband of war.

Hitherto we have regarded it as a peculiar felicity incident to our neutral ituation that it was equally beneficient to ourselves, and to all the parties with whom we are connected: the articles exported by us to the enemies of Great Britain, being convenient supplies, promised to secure ception and hospitable treatment. As the direct returns for these exports were inconsiderable, and as the products were almost exclusively remitted to Great Britain, and thereby applied in payment for manufactures purchased on our account, we considered ourselves sure of receiving from them, at least, that degree of

It is however with much surprise that we have recently discovered, that the very circumstances upon which our hopes of security were reposed, have been urged as arguments to jus- i permitted to display their energy in their own tify an invasion of our ri kts, and that, hav ng totally suppressed the external commerce of her it is a particular and minor interest only which suffers, and that the disadvantage is a necessary conse uence of her colonial system; that the her wealth: and that these interests can never of our country, be promoted by the impoverishment of her best cus'omers. Surely the security of neutral rights we request permission to detail some of ought not to diminish, as their value is augmented: surely a maritime preponderancy, which enables its possessor to blockade any of the ports of its enemies, conveys no just title to a monop be of the commerce of the world!

In the list of our complaints, we cannot forsive conduct of ships of war, in the vicinity of our coasts and harbours. We respect the principle, and emulate the conduct of Great Britain, in regard to her own jurisdiction, and we wish merely to claim for ourselves the same measure of justice which she exacts from

But while we contend that we ought not to be exposed to humiliating inquisitions in the verge of our port, which by means of secret connexions with our city, may be rendered conducive to the indulgence of partiality, favour, or malice, we disavow every wish to divest the belligerent nations of their rights. If, in particular instances, the American flag, and the character of an American merchant, have been prostituted to unworthy purposes, we declare the individuals thus guilty to be our enemies, and we wish not to screen them from the just consequences of their misconduct. -We also assert, that a comprehensive view of our commerce, affords, conclusive evidence that of the property circulated through this port, the preportion which can possibly belong to the enemies of Great-Britain, is an object unworthy the attention of a great power; especially, if in a rigorous pursuit of its strict rights, it incurs the hazard of forfeiting the esteem of its

1f, therefore, the mode in which the American commerce is prosecuted, is allowed by the law of nations; if irrefragable evidence arises from our situation, wants, and necessary connexions with the rest of the world, that it is almost exclusively grounded on American capital; if the suggestions, that we are the mere agents of foreigners, are ungenerous insults, contrived as applogies for injunies; if frauds in relation to foreign trusts, are not more frequent in this country than in Great-Britain's and if no government is able wholly to prevent them: then our conclusion in the present, asim all other cases, ought to be deduced from general facts, and not from particular exceptions. This conclusion is, that the American commerce is one of the great links which connect those interests of civilized nations, which wars ought not to disturb : that to break this link, will be to destroy all commerce; and therefore, that a serious misunderstanding with Great-Britain would prove fatal to the most important interests of both coun-

This view of the subject, while it excites our anxiety, furnishes also a resource for believing that a commercial nation which disregards justice, thereby undermines the citadel of her power, we rely on the effect of mutual interests and wishes in promoting cordial explanation, and fair adjustment of every cause of misunderstanding: in particular, we rely on the government of our country, that our rights will not be abandoned, and that no argument in favor of an usurpation will ever be derived from our ac-[quiescence.

If our personal interests and local attachments have not greatly mis-directed our opinions, the defenceless situation of the pert of New York, ought to excite the anxious solicitude of every friend of his country. Our river is the only commercial avenue to a fertile and populous country, which is rapidly rising.

into importance. It is here, that one-third of the revenue of the Union is collected; and this proportion is understood to be relatively increasing,-But while we are grateful for these distinguished advantages of nature, pur satisfaction is diminished, by reflecting on their insecurity; for in proportion as the resources of our country accumulate to this point, is the hazard, that they may present a temptation to rapacity, and become the prize of violence. Without recurring to the experience of past times for proofs, that no nation can long maintain an extensive commerce, without well defended sea-ports, and an efficient military marine, we are admonished by the new and portentous aspect of Europe, and the alarming prevalence of piracy in the West Indes, that energetic measures of defence have become indispensably necessary.

We presume not to express any opinion respecting the degree of force, of which the permanent navy ought to consist; and being sensible that delays must attend the construction of suitable defences for our port, we shall rest satisfied, when we perceive that these measures are commenced in a manner, and ." upon a scale, which will assure to us an efficient completion.

Such however, is the present organized force of the United States, that we sliould consider it inconsistent with the honor, interests, or security of our country, to parley with the pirates of the West Indies, whose conduct being inconsistent with any known rules of lawful warfare, cannot have been authorized by any civilized nation towards another nation, in a state of peace. Our vessels, while pursuing a lawful trade, have been piratically seized: that any essential articles of supply may, ! their cargoes have been forcibly taken away and distributed, without even the form of a trial; the vessels in many instances sunk and destroyed, and the crews stripped of all their property; all these outrages have been exercised upon innocent and defenceless men, aggravated by unprecedented circumstances of insult, oppression, and barburity. Some of these violences have been committed on vessels, which were captured within sight of our harbors; and the great scene of these unparallelcal enormities, is the island of Cuba, which commands the only avenue by which we preserve a commercial connexion with our brethren of the Western States: a connexion which we cherish with ardor, as a source of mutual advantage, and a bond of permanent

But it is not on account of our pecuniary losses alone that we complain. The constancy and valor of the scamen of the United States, are justly themes of patriotic exultation .-From their connexion with us, we consider their cause as our cause, their rights as our protection, which was recommended by frights, and their interests as our interests: our feelings are indignant at the recital of their wrongs; and we request, in addition to the protection of a naval force, that, at least in the American seas, our brave countrymen may be

Your memorialists conclude with remarking, enemies, Great Britain is now counselled to ap- | that they deem the present situation of public propriate to herself that of her friends If it be | affairs to be pecuniarly critical and perilous, and true that, as exporters of certain articles to the | such as requires all the prudence, the wisdom, ultimate markets our interests are in collision | and energy of Government, supported by the with hers; yet it ought to be recollected, that | co-operation of all good citizens. By mutual exertions, under the benign influence of Providence, upon this kitherto favored nation, we hope the clouds which threaten to obscure its general results of our commerce are greatly in | prosperity, may be dispelled; and we pleage her favour; that they invigorate her manufac. our united support in favour of all measures turing interests, which are the great basis of adopted to vindicate and secure the just rights

And your Memorialists, as in duty bound, will ever pray, etc.

Si ned by the unanimous order, and on behalf of a peneral meeting of the Merchants of t c city of New-York, convened on the 26th December, 1895.

John Broome, Chairman. Oliver Wolcott, John Franklin; William Edgar, Isaac Laurence, Thomas Carperter, Henry L Wyckoff, John Taylor, Thomas Farmer, Geo M. Woolsey, David M. Clarkson, Robert Lenox, Goold Hoyt, Elisha Coit, John B. Murray, Lessert Lesferts, Samuel A. Lawrence, Samuel Russed, Joseph Blackwell, Johd Murray, M. Clarkson, John B. Coles, Archibakl. Gracie, Wm W. Woolsey, Benjamin Minturn, Wm. Bayard, Gulian Ludlow, Ebenezer Stevens, Rennsselaer Havens, Wm. Lovett, Gen. Griswold, Henry Post, jun. John R. Livingston, Daniel Ludlow, ... Wm. Henderson, James Arden, John P. Mumford, Benjamin B iley, Wynant Van Zant, junior, John De Peyster, Isaac Clason, Edmund Serman, Peter Schermerhorne, James Scott, Charles M'Evers, jun. John Kane John Clendining, William Couman. . - Committee

Nathaniel F. Williams

LIAS received per brig Harriot, Captain Luce, from Boston, and for sale at No. : 15, Bowly's wharf.

50 boxes fresh Muscatel Raisins 50 do Mould Candles, Sampson's brand.

2 cases Flotant Indigo 40 boxes Brown Soap. · January 6 ·

A Topaz Ear Ring SET WITH PEARL.

OST at Mrs. Groombridge's examination La on Saturday night, a Topaz Ear Ring set with Pearl-The finder thereof will be so-good as to leave it with the Editor of the American, who is authorised to make a suitable compen-, sation therefor if required.

ADVERTISEMENT.

January 6

HE subscriber respectfully informs the public that he has opened shop at No. 92, Market-street, one door below his furmer shop, and in the store formerly occupied by Messrs. CALHOUN & LAMMOT, where he will execute with punctuality and dispatch, his business, in the most approved stile, and our hopes. We wish only for justicer and silicits the patronage of the public, his friends and former, customers. Fushionable, goods suitable to the season, kept on hand and will. be disposed of an accommodating terms, by BENJAMIN YOE, Taylor.

> HE one half the store, at present occupied by the subscriber, and a large dry cellar, together or separate. They may be had for a term of years at a moderate, rent. Apply as above ...

December 9-

Dec: 31 .

For Sale, WO COWS, with young CALVES, just A from Pennsylvania, by Thomas Stansbury, opposite the Hay-Scales, Old-Town.