

Army of reserve—in Bradenberg, gen-Mollendorf.

The English expedition under general Burrard and Moore, had sailed and was supposed to be destined for Hanover.

Another invasion of the Batavian state is mentioned; and this is possible, for the whole of the warfare of Great Britain has been actuated by an apprehension of fatal consequences to her naval and commercial power, which may result from the possession of the Belge provinces by France, and the resources which so many navigable rivers, so many materials and means for naval constructions, so many artists in every branch of useful and commercial industry—and not the least important consequence, the exclusion of England from the market, which next to America was the best which England possessed. A ditto perfectly well understood, that the policy of Bonaparte has been to restore to Belgium the linen and wollen manufactures which the English originally borrowed from that country; and to secure to Belgium the advantage of its industry—by a French act of navigation.

The French emperor has invested the electors of Wirtemberg and Baden with the sovereignty and interim, of the territories, formerly belonging to the house of Austria, in Suabia; and the elector of Bavaria with the absolute possession of the former allodial possessions of the Austrian house in Bavaria, between the Lech and the Inn.

The French Rochefort squadron had not returned to port on the 30th of Oct.

LONDON, Nov. 14.

Sir R. Strachan's squadron has arrived at Plymouth, with the four French ships of the line which he captured.

Capt. C. E. Fleming, commander of the British frigate Egyptienne, late officially informed the Admiralty, under date of the 8th Nov. of his having captured the French Imperial frigate L'Albatros, of 16 guns, and 126 men, capt. Depoges, two hours after he left Rochefort.

Mr. Rume, the messenger, arrived in town on Monday from the Eba. Cuxhaven is open. Lord Harrowby and suite landed there on the 7th. The expedition from the Downs, under general Don, was daily expected.

November 15

The intelligence from Vienna, reaches to the 20th. At that time not only were the disastrous events in Suabia known, but gen. Mack had arrived there. He was not a first allowed to enter the town, for fear, it is said, the populace have got him in pieces. He has been transferred as a prisoner to Brunn, where he is to be tried by a court martial.

It is stated that Bonaparte sent offers of peace, both by general Mack, and through the archduke Ferdinand, which, however, the Court of Vienna shewed no disposition to accept. Bonaparte will reiterate these offers, and will derive great advantages from them. Talleyrand has arrived at Munich, to give his aid, should any negotiation be undertaken.

Nov. 16. Dispatches have just been received from Ad. Collingwood. The following was transmitted by the Lord Mayor to Lloyd's Coffee-House:

Admiralty-office, Nov. 15, 1805.

By a dispatch received this evening from Vice-Admiral Collingwood, via Lisbon, dated off Cadiz the 26th ult. it appears that owing to the violence of the wind, he had not succeeded in bringing off any of the prizes made in the action of the 21st. He expresses his hope that by the following day he should complete the destruction of the whole, except the Santa Anna, which was towed into Cadiz by a frigate. It further appears, that when Admiral Gravina put to sea again, in order to protect the disabled ships, the Prince of Austrians, his flag ship, and the Ray, another three-decker, were dismasted, and the latter fell into our hands. The number of killed and wounded in his Majesty's ships, from which returns were received, was much smaller than had been apprehended. Their names will be published in the Gazette of to-morrow evening.

Signed, J. SHAW, Mayor.

The French talk of being at Vienna by the middle of Nov.

The Expedition which lately sailed from the Downs, was seen off the Texel on the 10th inst. on its way to the place of destination.

It is said Gen-St. Cyr, with the army which was in the Neapolitan, is to join Massena, a convention for the neutrality of Naples being agreed to by France.—This is not improbable; or at least it is not improbable that to strengthen Massena Naples should for the moment be evacuated.

Nov. 11.—No intelligence has been received of the attempt which it was supposed was about to be made on the port of Boulogne. It seems generally believed at any rate, that the troops which have sailed from the Downs are gone Northward, and are not to be employed in any attack on the French Coast: They are gone to join the Russians and Swedes in the North.

The Duke of York, it is said, does not go till March.

November 23.

General Dumourier sets out immediately for the continent, where, it is said, he is to be employed in a military capacity; but in what service, or under what power, we have not yet been informed.

COMMERCIAL DAILY ADVERTISER

THURSDAY, JANUARY 8, 1806

Three different alarms of the cry of Fire, at short intervals, were resounded in our city, about 3 o'clock last evening; but we could not learn, satisfactorily, whether they were false or otherwise. As it is generally the case, the quarters where the fire or fires were said to be, were named in a manner so confuse and equivocal, that it was impossible to know which course to move; indeed, at one and the same time, one would report the Point, and another a part of the city, the most distant from it. With such information, and for the want of better, it would seem a man might as well stand at his own door, as to pursue a wiggling route, which might only bear him further from the seat of danger. On more than one occasion, we have witnessed the ill effects arising from such uncertain information. At one fire this season we remember to have seen an engine with a large number of our vigilant citizens, make an unwilling stand, for a considerable period, at the corner of a street, anxiously waiting for satisfactory direction to the seat of danger; when, with something more of system, they might have been setting bounds to a wiggling flame. To obviate this serious difficulty, it would be well if every citizen who hears the alarm, would, briefly add to the street, or some noted place in the neighborhood, if he has it, those who commence or set the alarm would do this, and if the person should be a gentleman, his name and address, as it would give the citizens the opportunity of being far more particular in their active exertions, and better informed.

Being thus furnished with means, in order to us, respectfully to inform the public, if the authority would please to order, we will, upon the spot, as a mark of our respect, to a regulation of the nature of the above.

The ship Warrick, sailed from here, last arrived Cape Breton 15 days.

The Alexander Hamilton, of an 14 from this port, sailed from the Isle of France in the 13th inst. carried into Moravia, and condemned.

The Hercules, of this port, sailed from the Isle of France on the 14th of November, dismasted.

The Liberty, of this port, arrived at Falmouth, on the 14th of November, dismasted.

Mr. THOMAS HIGINBOTHOM of this city, came passenger in the Amity, arrived at New York from Spain.

Captain Wells, arrived at New York from Curacao, in a manner that the Isle of Curacao, about 30 miles N. E. ward of Curacao, had been taken from the English by a lutch sloop of war; there were 5 Spanish prizes at the Isle. A British tender of 14 guns, and several hoop of war two hours, but several shot through her quarters, and succeeded in getting off with a Spanish prize worth 20,000 dollars. She got safe into Jamaica.

The brig Neptune, Delmo, from Lisbon, was spoken with at sea on the 1st ult. having on board dispatches for the government of the United States. He informed that the disputes between France and the United States, were in a fair train for accommodation.

Republicanism in Connecticut, notwithstanding every exertion of all the powers of government and state to resist its progress. The great stronghold of federalism in that state is the county of Titchfield, the capital of which is noted for the residence of Tracy, Wolcott, Allen, Falmadge, and several inferior leaders of the party. Till within four months past no republican newspaper has been established in the county. But now the most zealous and energetic and we believe effective weekly print in the United States is published there, under the direction of Silbeck, a born, republican poet.—And we have the pleasure to find that their late election of officers, after an adjournment and every manoeuvre to prevent so mortifying an event, the republicans succeeded by a majority of 18—and long may they preserve their ascendancy. Bee.

The Trenton True American says, that the Trenton Federalist last year found no room for the President's Message; though he found room enough for his British Majesty's Speech. But now room enough is found for both.

In Carr's celebrated stranger in France, the following affecting anecdote occurs:—Whilst I was at Paris, an affair happened very near the hotel in which I lodged, which in its sequel displayed that high spirit and sensibility, which appear to form the presiding features in the French character, to which may be attributed all the excesses which have stained, and all the glory which has embellished it. A lady of fortune and her only daughter, an elegant and lovely young woman, resided in the Fausbourg St. Germain: A young man of merit and accomplishments, but unaided by the powerful pretensions of suitable fortune, cherished a passion for the young lady, to whom he had frequent access, on account of his being distantly related to her. His affections were requited with return; and before the parent suspected the attachment, the lovers were solemnly engaged. The indications of pure love, are generally too unguarded to escape the keen eye of a cold and mercenary mother.

She charged her daughter with her foolishness, and forbade her distracted lover the house.—To close up every avenue of hope, she withdrew her wretched child into Italy where they remained for two years; at the expiration of which, the mother had arranged for her daughter a match more congenial to her own pride and avarice, with an elderly gentleman who had a considerable fortune and property in the vicinity of Bordeaux. Every necessary preparation was made for this cruel union, which it was determined should take place in Paris, to which city they returned for that purpose. Two days before the marriage was to take place, the young lover, wrought up to frenzy by the intelligence of the approaching nuptials, contrived by bribing the porter, whilst the mother was at the opera with her intended son-in-law, to reach the room of the beloved being, from whom he was about to be separated for ever. Emaciated by grief, she presented the mere spectre of what she was when he last left her. As soon as he entered the room, he fell senseless at her feet, from which state he was roused by the fits of her frigid maternal laughter. She stared upon him in a bewilderment. He clasped her one hand, and with the other drew from his pocket a bottle of double distilled laurel water; he pressed it to her lips until she had swallowed half of its contents: the remainder he drank himself.

The drug of death soon began to operate. Clasped in each others arms, and exclaiming, they reviewed their hard fate, and in the first and second sentences, implied in the great God of mercy, that he would pardon them for what they had done, and that he would receive their spirits into the regions of eternal repose; but he would be pleased in his divine goodness, to forgive the unjudging severity which had driven them to despair, and would support the unconscious utterance of their heavy affliction which their fatal wound occasioned. They had scarcely finished their prayer, when they heard footsteps approaching their room. Madam R., who had been in disguise at the opera, returned home before its conclusion with the intended bridegroom. The young man awoke as it were from his deadly slumber, and extending his last strength, pulled from his breast a dagger, which he held up in a supplicating manner to his heart, and taking up in her arms the bleeding and mortal wounds, the door opened, and the frantic mother appeared. All the time was in a moment assumed; and the father, who had been furnished the materials of this scene and said: it was taken from the lips of the dying lover, who had scarcely finished it before he breathed his last.
