

From the NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

The recent political triumph in Massachusetts is too important to be passed by without more than ordinary notice.

In every view in which it can be contemplated, it is an event of great magnitude, and it is well worthy of our deliberate consideration, whether we view it in reference to the causes from which it has flowed, or the effects which are likely to ensue from it.

If we look back but a few years, we shall behold federalism in full triumph in that state. In the reign of terror, as it has been emphatically denominated, Massachusetts was, perhaps, the leading state in our national councils.

The European world, hostile to our principles or our rising importance, bereft of their last hope, that our internal divisions would destroy us, will learn the policy of respecting our rights, lest their continued invasion shall recoil on themselves.

NEW-YORK, June 19. London papers state, that letters from Gibraltar, speak in the highest terms of praise of the conduct of Sir Sidney Smith who in disguise had landed at Algiers, and after obtaining some useful information effected the destruction of several Spanish gun boats, by means of some light vessels which have been fitted out under the judicious direction of that enterprising and meritorious officer.

Several of the swords given by the patriotic Fund of London, to the captains who fought at Trafalgar, under Lord Nelson, have been delivered. The scarfs are blue velvet, with the figure of Britannia holding a wreath, with ships, trophies, &c. in gold. The hilts are formed by scitons, faces, lions' heads, and other beautiful ornaments. The blade is engraved with the record of the battle.

A late voyager to the Sandwich Islands, immortal by the fate of Capt. Cook, informs us, that in one of these remote islands he found the ambition which has given extensive conquests and glory to ancient and modern heroes of Europe.

Extract of a letter from Leeds, Eng. April 30. "This day there is a terrible alarm. It is said your government have passed the non-impatriation law. I do not in the least doubt, if this news is confirmed, it will cause an immediate embargo on American shipping."

Advice is received by the ship Eugenia, that the British were preparing an expedition from the Cape of Good Hope, to be reinforced at St. Helena, and thence to proceed against the Spanish settlements on the River La Platta. Montevideo was supposed to be their first destination.

Married on Thursday evening last, by the reverend Mr. Roberts, Mr. Joshua Steward, to the amiable and truly accomplished Miss Rachel Parish, both of this city.

Died, on Wednesday morning, after a long illness, which he bore with christian resignation, Mr. James Morgan, senr. in the 62d year of his age—he has left a wife and children to lament the loss of a tender and affectionate husband and father. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

time Tousaint could command 20000 men of whom a sixth part were cavalry. The French had not more than half of that number. The French landed with the proclamation of Liberty, but without regarding even the laws of war. The French seized on the capital and confiscations ensued. After many ravages, Tousaint submitted to the French, and the conquest of the island appeared sure. But Tousaint was soon seized, without any regard to the alarm it must occasion, and soon slavery was again established. Dessalines, the present commander, consented to be the instrument of reducing his countrymen to obedience, till the sale of whole cargoes, and the decrease of the French troops, became signals for revolt. Cruelties multiplied, and in November 1804, the French troops abandoned the country to the blacks. As victory was sure, the apprehensions from the whites have lessened. But the policy of France which has reminded them of another struggle for their liberty, and which has denied them the commerce of a free people, have excited anew their animosities and resentments. By brutal men the appeal is to force. Of no violence have they not had awful examples.— They are now left to penetrate, what their sufferings and their fears may suggest to them, and we may expect in the attempt to conquer the island, that the extirpation rather than submission of the blacks will be contemplated. Great care is taken that the independent blacks of St. Domingo should not find refuge in any of the French Colonies. And danger is apprehended from them in all islands in which slavery is established.

A late voyager to the Sandwich Islands, immortal by the fate of Capt. Cook, informs us, that in one of these remote islands he found the ambition which has given extensive conquests and glory to ancient and modern heroes of Europe.— By arms, and persuasion, a hero named Tamahama, had extended his power over the surrounding islands. Only one still refused submission, and in that the inhabitants, almost wild with despair, had contemplated to construct a vessel upon which they might trust to the ocean, and find another abode for their independence, which they no longer hoped to support by courage and arms. But this ambition has given progress to society, in the allied islands, and their necessities have furnished arts which they cultivate and advance in peace. The hero had already prepared a fleet, and had purposes of commerce with the continent of Asia. Abandoning the savage manners, an opportunity is given for the milder doctrines of European nations. The resemblance in the language of these islands, even such as are most remote, is now fully ascertained.
