A JUDICIOUS writer remarks, that "to live with satisfaction to one's self and others, to procure as many comforts of life as arctconsistent with our mental and bodily constitution, and to avert impending danger, or in other words, to preserve ourselves from the injurious attack of external agents, are nearly the whole of what relates to the practical part of human life." If then to live with satisfaction to ourselves and others is so desirable, how can we accomplish it when deprived of that which is more to be esteemed than gold and treasures? that which enlarges the soul-that which, when possessed, leaves little more to be wisher! forthat which when wanted is the greatest q wants-even that which is the greatest of all blessings, namely HEALTH! The principal source of misery, then being the loss of this great jewel, it behoves us to find a remedy for those diseases which have hitherto buffled the skill of the Faculty, namely herrous, consumptive, and hypochondriac. Such a medicine, for its healing, balsamic, friendly and sanative qua lities upon the debilitated constitution, de serves the wondrous encouragement it meet
