From the NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER. A resolution of the charges, that the measures of the administration have a greater tendency to advance the interests of the South than the Eastern sections of the Union.

The remarks applicable to the acquisition of Louisiana may be applied with still greater force to the acquisition of the Florida. The district of country embraced in Florida is not only more fertile than Louisiana, and in point of position is vastly superior.

It may be thought impolitic, while the negotiation for the purchase of the Florida is depending, to enter into a discussion which may tend to expose their great intrinsic value, and the estimation in which we hold them, under the impression that such a view may induce their present owner to demand a higher price than would otherwise be required.

It is not to be denied, that the acquisition of the Florida will tend to the growth of manufactures in the southern states for a century to come.

But there is a still more important consideration in which this subject may be considered. The force of habit is great and almost invincible.

commercial and mechanical. If this be not allowed, it is certain that they are in a much higher degree so than the pursuits of the inhabitants of the southern states.

Already the fabrics of eastern industry find a considerable market in the southern states. Is it then for the interest of the former to accelerate or retard the period when similar fabrics shall be manufactured in the southern states? It is undeniably their interest to keep it off to as remote a day as they can, as in the mean time they will keep open a source of great profit to themselves.

This profit does not merely arise from the value of the articles manufactured beyond their cost to the manufacturer; but it is increased, so far as relates to the district in which the manufacture is carried on, by the increased demand for, and proportionally increased value of the native productions out of which they are made; or if native productions be not the basis of manufacture, by the profit arising from transporting them from the places where they are raised; and it is together increased by the profit of carrying the manufactured articles to the places where they are used.

It would be difficult to estimate the extent of this benefit derived by the eastern country from its intercourse with the southern in supplying it with its manufactures; but no man will entertain a doubt of its being immense, who goes into an enumeration of the numerous and extensive manufactures carried on in New England, or who beholds the number of small eastern craft with which the southern harbours are crowded.

Now while it continues the interest of the southern states to remain in agricultural and pastoral sources of wealth to the eastern states will be kept open, and nothing can so eminently have this tendency, as the furnishing the eastern capitalist with new regions to cultivate, and new staples to produce.

In this point of light it is probable that the acquisition of the Florida will tend to the growth of manufactures in the southern states for a century to come.

But there is a still more important consideration in which this subject may be considered. The force of habit is great and almost invincible.

(By Authority.) BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS a treaty between the United States of America, and the sachems, chiefs and warriors of the Wyandot, Ottawa, Chippawa, Meninee and Delaware, Shawanee and Puttawatima nations, was holden at Fort Industry, on the Miami of the lakes, on the fourth day of July, Anno Domini, one thousand eight hundred and five, and was duly ratified and confirmed by the President of the United States, on the twentieth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and six; and with the advice and consent of the Senate, which treaty is in the words following, to wit:

A treaty between the United States of America, and the sachems, chiefs, and warriors of the Wyandot, Ottawa, Chippawa, Meninee and Delaware, Shawanee, and Puttawatima nations, holden at Fort Industry, on the Miami of the lakes, on the fourth day of July, Anno Domini, one thousand eight hundred and five.

ARTICLE I. The said Indian nations do again acknowledge themselves and all their tribes, to be in friendship with, and under the protection of the United States.

ARTICLE II. The boundary line between the United States and the nations aforesaid, shall in future be a meridian line drawn north and south, through a locality to be erected on the south shore of Lake Erie, one hundred and twenty miles west of the west boundary line of the state of Pennsylvania, extending south until it intersects the boundary line of the United States, and extending south until it intersects a line heretofore established by the treaty of Greenville.

ARTICLE III. The Indian nations aforesaid, for the consideration of friendship to the United States, and the sums of money hereon hereunto, to be paid annually to the Wyandot, Shawanee, Meninee and Delaware nations, have ceded and do hereby cede, and relinquish to the United States, forever, all the lands belonging to said Indian Nations, lying east of the aforesaid line, bounded southerly and easterly by the line established by said treaty of Greenville, and westerly by the northernmost part of the forty-first degree of north latitude.

ARTICLE IV. The United States, to preserve harmony and its territorial integrity, and in consideration of the cession made in the preceding article, will, every year forever hereafter, at Detroit, or some other convenient place, pay and deliver to the Wyandot, Meninee, and Delaware nations, and those of the Shawanee and Seneca nations who reside with the Wyandots, the sum of eight hundred and twenty-five dollars, current money of the United States, and the further sum of one hundred and seventy-five dollars, making in the whole an annuity of one thousand dollars; while the sum of one hundred and seventy-five dollars has been secured to the President in trust for said nations by the Connecticut Land Company, and by the company incorporated by the name of the proprietors of the half million of acres of land lying south of Lake Erie, called Sufferers' Land, payable annually as aforesaid, and to be divided between said nations, from time to time in such proportions as said nations with the approbation of the President shall agree.

ARTICLE V. To prevent all misunderstanding hereafter, it is to be expressly remembered, that the Ottawa and Chippawa nations, and such of the Puttawatima nations as reside on the River Huron of Lake Erie, and in the neighborhood thereof, have received from the Connecticut Land Company, and the company incorporated by the name of the proprietors of the half million of acres of land lying south of Lake Erie, called Sufferers' Land, the sum of four thousand dollars in hand, and have secured to the President of the United States, in trust for them, the further sum of twelve thousand dollars, payable in six annual instalments of two thousand dollars each; which several sums is the full amount of the purchases effected by this treaty, and also by a treaty with said companies bearing even date herewith; which proportions were agreed on and concluded by the whole of said nations in their general council; which several sums, together with two thousand nine hundred and sixteen dollars and sixty-seven cents, secured to the President, to raise said sum of one hundred and seventy-five dollars annuity as aforesaid, as the amount of the consideration paid by the agents of the Connecticut Reserve, for the cession of their lands.

ARTICLE VI. The said Indian nations, parties to this treaty, shall bear liberty to fish and hunt within the territory and lands which they have now ceded to the U. S. so long as they shall demean themselves peaceably.

In witness whereof, Charles Jouett, esq. a commissioner on the part of the U. S. and the sachems, chiefs and warriors of the Indian nations aforesaid, have heretofore set their hands and seals.
