Bonaparte has to retrieve his same in Egypt—and to accomplish there the great means of realizing the objects of his political system, " shifts, colonies, and commerce;"-and in all human probability, Russia will not only countenance but cooperate; upon condition of her aggrandizement on the shores of the Caspian sea-whether this be the immediate offect of the peace with Russia or notsuch is the irresistible course of political affairs—in this paper, such a consumination was anticipated seven years ago-and though a reverse in battle might have suspended this inevitable progression-it must still be inevitable, for it is founded on the interest of these whose interests are involved and the interests of the men in power, in every government, always supercede the interests of the people-if there is no check to their power.

COMMUNICATIONS on hand shall be attended to at an early period.
