distorted facts, and so grossly misrepresented the measures of our guvernment, may mistate, and probably has mistatred, in this instance, the measures of his own. Be this, however, as it may, the triumph of the sederal presses is perfectly characteristic of the party, who do not fail to rejoice at every obstacle that is presented to the accommodation of our differences with foreign powers. da Be it their boast, that in their devotion to, personal feelings they forget their morrow. country.

If the king of Spain has unqualifiedly pieces on hand, shall receive all due attention. approved the conduct of his minister, and has thus made his acts those of the Spanish government, much as we may phia. The circumstance of his not progressing regret the folly of the measure, we must submit to its effects. Our government copied from the Aurera, into the American of has acted with dignity and torbearance. It has endeavoured to prevent the misconduct of a subordinate, agent from being converted into a serious misunderstanding between the two goversments. If Spain' will permit hersself to be deceived, and will adopt the unjustifiable conduct of her agents, she must take the consequences.

The circumstances attending this case strictly enforce the policy of having the least possible political connection with the nations of Europe. Their course cf conduct & motives to action are so repuguant to the honest principles of our own government, that it is scarcely possible to make them believe that our views are not as contracted or sinister as their

Of the gross ignorance of foreigners with regard to our views and measures, we have another conspicuous example in the following extracts from the [London] Morning Chronicle.

" If we did not consider the intemperate language of the Americans as occasioned in some degree by their pending elections, it would appear incredible that a people so prudent as to have hitherto avoided embroiling themselves in the wars which have desoluted Europe, should think of quarrelling with the only power they are connected with, and for a cause so easily capable of explanation and satisfacti-

"The resolutions of the clubs and par. ties of the Americans are intemperate and absurd enough. They not only wish to anticipate but to dictatethe proceedings of their government. It is, however, a bad beginning of hostilities against us, to fall out among themselves, and to hesitate whether they shall be guided by the House of Congress, or the tavern,"

Here the U.S. are charged with en-Extraining the idea of "quarrelling with the only power they are naturally connectod with, and for a cause easily capable of explanation and satisfaction."

Now, with respect to the idea of quarrelling with England, can those measures be said to indicate such a purpose, which are, only in mimature, those which Britain Britain has herself systematically pursu ed towards the U.S. If these occasional measures, taken by us, are evidence of a momentary disposition on our part to quarrel with her, are not her uniform measures of the like complexion, une quivocal evidences of a systematic hostile disposition on her part?

Further, can those measures be ration. ally viewed as hostile, which are accompanied by a new mission, by renewed efforts to negociate, by the strongest assurances of a desire to remain on friend. ly terms?

46 A cause so easily capable of explanation and satisfaction."-By whom ?-By the British government. Why then does not that government at once, if the task be so easy, explain its views, and render that satisfaction which our interests and their honor require? If it refuses or declines to this, when it can be so easily done the disposition to quarrel is on its part, and not on ours.

. With regard to the last paragraph we have quoted nothing which we have seen betray's a more profound ignorance of real facts, for we will not be so uncharitable as to ascribe to the writer a deliberate purpose to misrepresent. The fact is, that measures were never taken by a government with less freedom from the influence of popular passion than those of the last session. An opinio i universally prevailed of the necessity of doing something, but it was entirely left to the wisdom of Congress to decide what this should be. It was fest that the subject was a complicated one and the public prints forbore to press any-particular plan of operations. They confided totally in the wisdom of the government. As to the allusion made the tavern influence, it is too contemptible for

The Marquis Yrujo yesterday took passage on board the Frenchtown packet for Philadelto the seat of government, and the observations to-day, seem to declare that the tenor of the late paragraph was incorrect, which clothed him with new powers, calculated to offer insult to our government.

Mr. PECHIN,

It has long since been announced in your paper, that our friend HEN-RY TRAPNALL, is a candidate for the office of Sheriff, at the next election. The great personal worth and well tried official qualifications of this gentleman, eminently qualify hm for the responsible station he now solicits from the voice of his country.-He has attained to that period of life, where the judgment becomes fully matured, and the most important lessons of prudence have been learnt in the school of experience. It should moreover be recollected, that he was among the number of unsuccessful candidates at the last election; and that upon principles of fair play, it is now at least his turn. Added to these considerations, he now is, an lever has been, in the worst of times, a firm, decided and inflexable republican; a merit, it is hoped, which will have its weight, in the acale of the public delibe-A VOTER.

AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.

DOMESTIC PRODUCT AND MANUFACTURES. The lover of American prosperity, will perceive in an advertisement, in the Aurora of yesterday, from the Repository for the sale of Home Manufactures, an interesting evidence of the progress of manusacture under circumstances new and unexampled in success and utility in the whole world.

The articles of manufacture advertised are all produced at what is sometimes called the Alms House, by others the bettering House-and the floor house; which is in reality the most benevolent and best conducted asylum for the poor in health and purse, of any on earth—For to it flock the poor and the afflicted, not only from all parts of this state, but from the surrounding states, and even from some of the remotest states-to obtain relief from disease—to obtain employment and to obtain the meed of public mun ficence to the innocent and helplessly unfortunate. This house is at once, a school of benevolence, an example of the efficacy of regular habits-of the health and comfort of moderate employment for those who would other vise be idle and uscless to society, and a striking refutation of those barbarous and auti-social writings which have been published in European nations, only to pulliate the miseries which wicked governments draw down upon society.

In this place, where the hungry are fed, the naked clad, the unfortunate chorished, the maniac protected, the sick and sore made whole; industry wears an air of cheerfulness and action, that al most forbids the idea of poverty, and totally satisfies the man of humanity, that it is only want of benevolence or of know. ledge, that prevents every community from maintaining its poor and sickly, and even rendering misfortuns, without inconvenience or injury to the pour capable of largely remunerating the community.

Ye men of generous hearts who visit Philadelphia from the surrounding or distant states-go and vivit the Alms House—it atends on the equare next to the Pennsylvania Hospital: and there be not tired of seeing and examining every thing; and treasure up the information and the example for your own state ze to imitate such an establishment with success would be glory and consolation for any good man forever; it would be living for some purpose.

While we are upon this institution, let us not lorget; that altho' the establishment has existed for several years, and great merit and praise belong to the founders and guardians by which it was regulated; that it was after the democia cy became ascendant, that the useful manufactures were introduced, and only about four or five years ago; the whole institution has indeed undergene a revo lution; its comforts, and resources have been improved, beyond conception.

S. 50 do do R. G. Captain Adams being | deprived of all his papers, does not recollect the names of the gentlemen by whom they are owned, or to whom consigned.

The undersigned, therefore, to save time, requests those interested to furnish him with such decuments as will enable him to support the claim he has instituted in their behalf: and, in case of scriber. condemnation for want of such proof, to empower him in case of appeal to give bond for the prosecution thereof.

HUGH LENNOX, Agent of the U. States Kingson, Jam. August 12, CAUTION.

The public are cautioned against receiving bank notes of the smaller denomination, without previously examining them as there is reason to believe that many counterseit notes of 2, 3 and 5 dollars are put into the hands of inferior agents by the principal countersciters for the purpose of being passed. Those inferior agents pass these counterfeits in the evening at the shops and on Saturday evening at the markets when they are less distinguishable from the genuine for want of light. If persons to whom small bills are offered in the dusk of the evening were to examine them attentively, and in case they proved to be counterfeit, seize the persons who offered them and take them to the police office for examination, a detection of the ging would probably follow, and the evil be cured. A number of cases have occurred lately where small grocers, hucksters, cerinen marketmen and market women. have had imposed on them small counterfeit notes.

Extract from the Log-Book of the brig and in compleat order to receive a cargo. Charleston, Charles Jewett, master, from Samana, Island of St. Domingo, arrived at Charleston.

July 13 - Arrived schr. Trial, Arnold, master, from Baltimore, bound to Jamaice, prize to the privateer schr. Napoleon, commanded by Jn. Maria, belonging to SantoDomingo-sent in on suspicion of being bound to a Brigand post-condemined 9th August.

August 1 .- Sailed, the brig Rolla, capt. Clapp, of new-York; sent in on the same suspicion, by the same privateer, but acquitted.

August 2 .- The British frigate Fisguard, captain Bolton, ran on a reclin the Bay of Samana, and received some damage; but continued to blockade the port with her boats-On the 3d, re-captured the pilot-boat Swift, of Baltimore captured in the Caicos passage by a French privateer belonging to Cuba, on suspici in of being bound to a Brigand port-captain and supercargo on board. On the spproach of the barges, the prizemaster, with the people of the privateer made their escape in their boat, taking with them the sch'rs papers; The frigate immediately made atender of the scar which continued to cruise in the Bay, with seven boats of the frigate.

On the 5th, the barges detained two Danish verseles, -On the 6th made an attack on the town of Sama a and a Fren h privateer, Prince Murat, captain Put at, pilot-boat of 4 guns, with the Swift, pil. t boat, and seven boats, one carrying an eighteen pound carronade. Capt in Bolton commanding in person on board the pilot-boat, the expedition commenced their fire at half past 7 in the morning, on the town and privateer, which was a warmly returned, long shot, and terminated in the loss of two killed in the frigate's faunch, and without the loss of cither killed or wounded on the part of the French, at half past ten A. M.

Arrived in Annapolis Roads on Monday exening, under jury musts, the French ship L'Æole, of 74 guns, Mons. Prevost la Croix, commander, one of Jerome Bonaparte's squadon; driven in by stress of weather, having lost all her masts, and her rudder mat rially injured. saluted the city, which was returned by a discharge of cannon from the City-Point. The captain arrived here yesterday evening. Jerome was in the fleet when the gale commenced.
