From Holland we learn, that King | cided. Louis by a decree, has not only suppressed one of the Amsterdam papers, the Avond Journal (Evening Herald) but has decided that the unfortunate editor shall not be employed in any periodical work. The reason assigned for this act of authority is the publication of some free remarks upon governments with whom his majesty is at peace. This decree is part of a plan laid down by the French government to strangle, if possible, the freedom of the press in every country in Europe

The confused accounts from the Neapolitan territories do not enable us to ascertain the extent of the disasters suffered by the enemy in that quarter. It is evident that the whole of the country is in a tsate of insurrection, and that the French are extremely perplexed by the frequency and diversity of the attacks which are made upon them. Massena is now advancing against them with the whole of the French force.
