TRINIDAD, Sept. 20.

We are at length enabled to lay before our readers some news of Miranda that can be depended on. His majesty's ship the Osprey having arrived on Monday last from a cruise to leeward, during which she intercepted the Spanish mail-boat on her passage from La Guayra to Cumana and Margarita with the mail up to the 16th August on board, from which we receive the following intelligence, extracted from various letters:—

Miranda has made himself master of Coro, the garrison of which, consisting of 200 fusiliers, retreated without opposing him. If the English support him he will give us more trouble than is generally supposed. On receiving this intelligence the captain general and his aides marched with all the armed force, but before they can reach him he will be fortified so as to secure his retreat, for no doubt he will have chosen the best and most advantageous position of the many coast forts for defence, and therefore the consequences may be very serious. It is not that there are any want of numbers will afford to oppose him, but the country is entirely disarmed, and of what use is inclination without arms, to which we may add, the total want of money, for we have not a real in the treasury."

Another Letter.

"Of the persons taken in Miranda's schooners ten or twelve have been executed at Puerto Cavallo, and their heads exposed on piles in the public roads there at La Guayra and other places. Last week was burned on the public parade, by the hangman, the picture of Miranda, the colors, and seditious papers found on board the schooners intended to insurge this province. It is now said that when the news of this expedition got to Spain, of his being at Jamaica, orders were given to fit out four ships of the line at Cadiz to bring out troops for our defence, but I give no credit to this news—Spain in Europe is even worse than Spain in America, they have neither money provisions nor soldiers, all is a labyrinth of miseries. We never see a vessel arrive from home, nor, not even a little one."

Another Letter.

"Miranda with his expedition has arrived on the coast of Coro, and taken post on the elevation called the Vela."

"The garrison, composed of 320 men retired on his approach to the heights above the town, to wait for a reinforcement from Maracibo, which has probably now joined."

"The captain-general, with a numerous retinue of custom-house officers, priests, surgeons, barbers, apothecaries, and all the armed force of every description, marched on the 12th to form a camp at Valencia or San Carlos, whence reinforcements can be sent to any place attacked."

"They carry with them above 2000 mules laden with provisions, ammunition and stores of every description requisite for an army in the field. Affliction, sorrow, want of money, and every sort of misery reigns in this city.—The army has left behind them all their dearest possessions. Now a face is to be seen that is not the picture of extreme grief—fields without labourers; shops without workmen; families without money, and fathers without sons form a melancholy scene, which is only interrupted by the lamentations of the women bewailing the fate of their friends and relations whom they never expect to return."

Another Letter.

"That damned fellow Miranda of whose peregrinations and despicable designs you gave me a detail, will set us all mad, and leave us, by the expense he puts us to, without a penny to bless us. He has justly arrived at the Vela of Coro, and taken post, the garrison having retired on his approach without making opposition."

In consequence of this intelligence the captain-general, accompanied by a motley retinue, has marched with all the armed force that could be collected to encamp at Valencia and San Carlos, and there await events.—Every thing necessary for an army in the field has been forwarded, and we are in hopes the success of the expedition will be favorable, unless he be supported by the English, for then a good capitulation would be the most advisable mode of arrangement we could adopt. We have a numerous population, it is true, but the country has been long disarmed for political reasons. Indeed the truth is, we can only confide in the queen's regiment, now reduced to 180 men, which with the invalid militia remains for the protection of the Cumbre and capital, under the command of Pasquin Martinou. Such is the situation Miranda has placed us in. God grant us a happy riddance of him.

Another Letter.

"I have to acquaint you that Miranda arrived at Coro, on the 21st inst. (August) with nine or ten vessels, corvettes, brigs, schooners and launches, and having landed without opposition, made himself master of the town and fort of Coro. Our troops retired to the heights of Bonavista the 3d, and on the 8th were still there, without having received a reinforcement sufficient to attack him."

"He has hoisted English colours on the fort and town, whence we suppose he is supported by that nation."

Another Letter.

"On the 6th inst. an express received from the governor of Curacao, informing that a squadron had been seen passing that island, which was supposed to be Miranda. On the 6th it was confirmed by an express from don Juan Manuel Salas, commanding at Coro and that the enemy had landed and taken possession of the fort and town, our troops have retired to the heights without making opposition. On this was the first division of the armed force marched under the command of major general Matias Perez, having for his second don Francisco Caravano, who will be the executive officer, for the other is very old and infirm, though suitable to give orders, and the second and third divisions successively followed, consisting of a motley crew, of all ranks and descriptions under the immediate command of the captain-general and his retinue, consisting of custom-house officers and other great services."

"According to the general's account he will have an army of nearly 10,000. But this multitude, being militia who have never seen a shot fired, will be a confusion and dismay. Even the regiment of Carances has not an officer of tried valor, they are a corps of muscadins who think of nothing but of well cut clothes and fine feathers. This is to the Spanish infantry of the times of Carlos I. and Philip the II. It is whispered that Miranda took the fort at Coro by assault, and that twenty of our troops were killed, among whom is the eldest son of Caravano, and the commanding officer don Joseph de la Veg, a poor emigrant from Santa Domingo, whom the general had placed there."

"On the same day that Miranda landed at Coro, was burned here, by the hands of the common hangman, his picture, which had been found on one of the prisoners at Puerto Cavallo, and also, his proclamations, commissions and colors, of three stripes, red, blue, and yellow, taken in the schooners."

N. B. These letters are all dated the 16th August.

American, AND Commercial Daily Advertiser.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1806.

GABRIEL CHRISTIE, Esq. has been appointed Collector of the Port of Baltimore.

A number of advertisements omitted, shall appear in a supplement, which shall be presented to our patrons in course of the day. By withholding our supplements, as we usually do, till after the arrival of the mails of the day, we afford ourselves a better chance of rendering them more interesting to our patrons: we state this as the reason why they are not issued with the American.

On Friday last, about 10 miles south of Cape Hatteras, in 15 fathoms water, captain Dawson fell in with the wreck of the schooner Valentine, captain Eaton, belonging to Portland. Captain D. took captain Eaton, and one seaman, M. John Read, of Newport, from the wreck, where they had been for four days, without food or nourishment; the mate Mr. Edward Crow, and two seamen, E. Willifiguers, of Edenton, and Thomas Clark, of Cape Elizabeth, were washed off the wreck, and drowned shortly after the schooner upset. The The Valentine was from Baltimore, bound to North Carolina, with a cargo of rum, brandy, &c. and on the 28th ult. off Cape Hatteras, experienced a very heavy gale of wind, she was thrown on her beam ends and filled. When captain Eaton was taken from the wreck, she had nearly gone to pieces, and as it came on to blow immediately after they were taken off, they must have soon shared the fate of their companions, had not captain Dawson providentially come to their relief.

The carriages of some cannon have drifted on shore near Beaufort, N. C.

supposed to have belonged to gun boat No. 1, which was probably lost in one of the late gales.

In lat 51, long. 16, s. oke ship John, from Charleston for Antwerp; same day, a Danish brig bound to Copenhagen; lat 42, long. 50, schooner Jane, from Leghorn for Boston Off the Capes, was boarded by an English 74, and treated politely.

Lees Elixir,

A sovereign remedy for Colds, Obstinate Coughs, Catarrhs, Asthma, Sore Throats, and approaching Consumption.

Thousands are too well acquainted with the nature and effects of empirical medicines daily offered for the cure of the above complaints. Dear bought experience has taught them that oily or stinging medicines, joined with strong opiates (or sleepy drugs) repeated doses of which flatter and deceive the patient for the present, by procuring momentary ease; experience has taught thousands that the common opiates and balsams, as they are called, finally aggravate every disorder of the breast and lungs in their most distressing symptoms; that they load the stomach and impair the digestion; inflame the whole system, increase the difficulty of breathing, and excite fever. But the qualities of this valuable discovery are evinced by perfectly opposite effects. A single trial will prove that it restores the determination of the fluids to the surface of the body, and brings on the common healthful perspiration; that it discharges and evacuates the tough, viscid phlegm, or mucus, strengthens the weakened vessels of the lungs; sheathes the acrimonious humour, which irritate the lungs; and finally discharges it. Thus striking at the root of the disorder, the symptoms are of course effectually and permanently conquered; the reverse of common medicines which weaken the constitution and give strength to the disorder, for the sake of moderating for the present some of its painful effects.

To parents, who have children afflicted with the Whooping Cough.

This discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorder to which children are liable. The Elixir is so perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small, that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Take notice that the above valuable medicine cannot be genuine if had at any other store than Warrior and Hanna's, corner of Gay and Market streets—John Vancot and Co's, No. 17B, three doors below Charles street, in Market street, and at N. Knight's, No. 23, Fell's street, Fell's Point.

Observe that the signature of Richard Lee and Son, is on the outside wrapper of the genuine medicine.

N. B. The whole of Lee's Genuine Medicine may be had at the above Book-Store, and no where else in Baltimore.
