

American, Commercial Daily Advertiser.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1868

Our valuable correspondent at ... has forwarded us several interesting official documents, signed by Robert Deane, auditor-general, and presented by him to the legislature of this State. They furnish a highly flattering view of the public debt. One is an estimate of the State debt, which made up to the first instant, by which there appeared to be a balance of twenty-two thousand two hundred and forty-six pounds fifteen shillings and five pence three farthings current money, and three million two hundred and thirty-two thousand five hundred and ninety-five dollars and forty-one cents in stock of the United States, to the credit of the State of Maryland, exclusive of the back in the Potomack Navigation, and the Banks of this State.

The following credits given to the State are included in the above: Stock in the Potomack Navigation, $15,000 13 4; Ditto in the Bank of Baltimore, $2,225; Ditto in the Union Bank, $5,000; Ditto in the Farmers' Bank, $5,000; Balances due from the Supervisors of the public roads, 1,757 14 4; Ditto from the poor-houses, Baltimore County, 2,400; Ditto due from John N. Henry and Co. finally, 1,297 2 11; Do. due from W. A. Washington, of Va. overpaid his acc. against the Principio Company, April 15, 1758, 1,267 11 8.

The treasure found was immense, and His Majesty's ship Narcissus was sent home with the clip of gold, and two millions of dollars on account of the captives. Every subaltern officer would share, at least one thousand pounds sterling, besides his proportion of public stores.

Thus is one of the most important possessions of Spain in America surrendered to His Majesty's arms, we may say without boasting. The treasure of the crown, its specie and other valuable effects, is reported to be immense, and the rewards of our gallant soldiers and sailors will not be confined to the honor of the achievement.

In a political and commercial point of view, the importance of this conquest is invaluable. The Rio de la Plata, on the south bank of which Buenos Ayres stands, is a valuable hundred leagues for small craft, into a part of the kingdom of Paraguay, which bounds the river on the north and east, while, on the south and west, it waters the extensive province of Tucuman, a country that in health and fertility is not surpassed in the world. The capital of this province is Potosi, the mines of whose mines is proverbial. It is distant from Buenos Ayres about 800 leagues, by the road is good and the horses are to be found in sufficient numbers to mount all the cavalry of Europe. The treasure from Potosi conveyed on mules' backs to Buenos Ayres, in packages fitted for the purpose, and there shipped for Europe, would on all occasions, when the season of the year to pass Cape Horn is unfavorable, or on account of enemies, and the exigencies of the state require the assistance of Peru, the treasures from Lima are conveyed in the same manner over the Andes, deposit at Potosi, and brought by the king's caravans, or mule-trains, thence to Buenos Ayres; so that we may consider this post as the key of the treasury of Peru, in like manner as the Havana is the key of that of Mexico.

As Bonaparte has divided and subdivided the continent of Europe in kingdoms and principalities, and created kings and princes at his own contemplation, may we not also be indulged in the sports of fancy by making a few of our own chief, who are required by profession. We have an extensive royal family to provide for, and here is an ample field of speculation for a western empire. A revolution in the Spanish and Portuguese European government is expected, and we have every reason to suppose the removal of the royal family of Portugal to St. Salvador, the capital of Brazil, is determined on; hence the expedition of Lord St. Vincent, and General Sinco, with a suitable force, his general Libbon. Should this event take place, it is our business to deprive Bonaparte of the dominions of Spain in America, and of the riches that immense country has hitherto furnished its government. A fair opportunity now offers—we have the road of Peru open to us; Potosi may be considered as already in our possession—Chili is in our rear, and only separated from us by the Cordilleras. A well-concerted attack on La Vera Cruz, to put us in possession of Mexico; and on Carthagena, to enter the kingdom of Granada, would, by one great and combined effort, deliver all South-America from the domination of Spain and open to Great Britain a source of wealth and commerce hitherto unknown in the annals of the whole world. Let His Majesty's ministers look to it—the spirit of the people is with us—they abhor French doctrines and principles, and now is the time to make a stroke that will change the face of the commercial globe.

The Potomack has brought the first division of the Chinese emigrants, 200 in number, mechanics and artificers, all very orderly industrious people; and we here it is the intention to give every sort of protection and encouragement to this valuable class of laborers, who, by proper attention and treatment on the part of the inhabitants, will prove a source of riches to the colony, that at present we have not even a suspicion of.
