ABSTRACT

Of the arguments urged on the RECOMMITMENT of the bill prohibiting the importation of Slaves.

The recommitment was advocated by Messrs. Sloan, Bidwell, Findley, Quincy, Ely, Smille, J. Clay, Gregg, Bedinger and Alexander; and opposed by Messrs. Early, Holland, and Masters.

The advocates of a recommitment observed, that the bill in its present shape was such as they could never agree to, and that if a modification of it were successfully resisted, they would be compelled, however reluctantly, to give it their negative. They flattered themselves, however, that a spirit of harmony and accommodation, of which so illustrious an example had been set by the framers of the constitution, would induce the friends of the bill to allow its modification in such a way as to reconcile its provisions to the sentiments entertained in the eastern section of the union; by which means it would go forth with the sanction either of the whole House, or of a great majority, and be thereby more likely to prove operative and effectual than if passed by a small majority.

They declared that they never could agree to that feature of the bill, which authorised the sale of persons of color introduced into the U. S. as slaves. They were ready to acquiesce in the principle of a forfeiture of the person, inasmuch as it had been sanctioned by the vote of a large majority, and as it appeared to be so strenuously insisted on by the representatives of the southern country. But while they yielded their individual opinions on this point, they expected a correspondent concession on the part of the representatives of the southern states, which was, that persons thus introduced into the U. States should be disposed of in such a way as to prevent their convertion into slaves, and so as to save the U. S. from the humiliation and disgrace of sanctioning a principle at which the strongest feelings of humanity, as well as the plainest dictates of reason revolted.

They remarked that the bill had hitherto been in the hands of those who were devoted to its present features; and no fair opportunity had consequently been afforded those who entertained different views on the subject to devise a plan, and exhibit the necessary details, for such a disposition of these people as would at once prevent in the highest degree their importation, and save the general government from the ignominy of sanctioning the principle of slavery. It was added that if the bill were recommitted to a committee of seventeen members, composed of a member from each state, it was probable that a plan would be devised that would be most likely, by combining the sentiments of the several states, to meet with general approbation in the legislative body, as well as throughout the whole union.

It was incidentally observed that it might, perhaps, be founda most efficient auxiliary to the bill, to allow a bounty on the conviction of every person who should infract its provisions.

With regard to the allegation that the power of Congress to act on this subject was exclusively derived from their authority to regulate trade, that doctrine was altogether denied. Such a doctrine, it was said, was of the most dangerous complexion, as it went to sanction the principle that it was lawful for Congress to deal in human beings as an article of commerce—a principle abhorrent to humanity, & at war with our fundamental institutions, for the establishment of which we had put every thing that was dear or valuable to hazard. A reference to the constitution would expose the fallacy of the ideas of gentlemen on this head. Among the powers delegated by that instrument to Congress was the power to "define and punish offences against the law of nations." It was afterwards added "That the migration or importation of such persons as any of the states now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year 1808, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person." Before this act could go into effect, this last provision could in point of time expire and the first provisson would be reinstated in full efficacy, which unquestionably gave Congress a full power over the subject, independently of that derived from their right to regulate commerce.

Extract of a letter, dated Montevideo, River of Plate, October 4, 1806.

All the troops that came with the British squadron, a number of seamen, and all the mariners, were killed or made prisoners at the recapture of Buenos Ayres, and the prisoners sent two hundred leagues into the country. The commodore (Popham) informed me he should continue the blockade until he heard from Europe. The ship which carried his dispatches of the re-capture of Buenos Ayres, did not sail until the 18th ultimo, therefore the blockade will certainly continue until January or February.

There has been an embargo at this port ever since the British arrived in this river, early in June. Seventeen American vessels are now in this port, some of which have been embargoed with their cargoes on board between 3 and 4 months.

One schooner escaped in a fog, for Charleston, since when all our papers have been taken from us. The following, as far as I can ascertain, are the names of the American vessels in this port.

Ship Pigou, of Philadelphia, captain Collet, here 8 months
Belisarius, of Boston, Wilds, 4 do.
Margaret, of Charleston, Milberry, 5 do.
American Eagle, of New-York, King, 4 do.
Recourse, of Providence, M'Gee, 4 do.
Truth, of Boston, Weld, 4 do.
Eugene, do. Hickson, 4 do.
Virginia, do. Webb, 4 do.
Wampoo, of New-York, 8 weeks.
Rufus, of Boston, Davis, 3 do.
Brig Harriet and Jane, of Portland, Turner, 5 months.
Mary, of Baltimore, Barbara, 5 weeks.

KINGSTON, (Jam.) Nov. 29.—The Tobago schooner, of 10 guns, Lieut. Salmon, was captured on the 20th ult. by the privateer brig Gen. Lincoln, after an action of nearly an hour and a half and carried into Basseterre, Guadaloupe. The defence of this vessel is highly honorable to her officers and crew. The Tobago mounted 12 guns, and carried only 31 men; notwithstanding which the contest was most gallantly sustained against the enemy's superior numbers, and not until one officer was killed, Lieut. Salmon, and thirteen of his crew were wounded, three of his guns dismounted, and the vessel cut up in her rigging, sails, &c. fell into the enemy's hands, who also suffered considerably in wounded, and had three men killed.

Insurances upon Lives

BY THE

PELICAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

OF LONDON.

THE Pelican Life Insurance Company, of London, was established in the year 1797, by a numerous and respectable proprietary, upon an exclusive capital, vested in the public funds, with the additional responsibility of every individual proprietor. The Board of directors, in consequence of repeated applications on the subject, have determined to extend their engagements to the continent of America, deem it proper briefly to suggest to the public, the numerous and important benefits resulting from such an institution to every rank and order of society.

Persons in the receipt of income arising from estates dependent upon life—profits in business—offices, civil or military—or the yearly payment of a moderate premium, may secure at their death an adequate provision for their families, relations, or friends.—Life Policies or Annuities renewable at the death of particular persons, may be provided for by insuring the lives of such persons. Insurance affords the means of reimbursement to those who advance money upon life-annuities, and in many cases furnishes ample security for the loan of money. Persons entitled to property in expectancy or reversion, or upon attaining a given age, may secure an equivalent, in case their interests should be affected by premature death. In a variety of other instances, and most peculiarly as applicable to persons engaged in commercial pursuits, or in the employment of casual income, this valuable precaution will establish a resource to which families may look with confidence and security, and by which the distresses too often attendant upon human life may be alleviated or effectually prevented.

The rates of premium for such insurances will be rendered as moderate as possible, and in every instance proportioned to the age, health, and other circumstances of the life assured.

The terms will be made known on application at the Phœnix Fire Office, in Second-street.
